'Wilderness' Area Dropped From Study

U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) has decided that 174 Minnesota islands, totaling 701 acres, do not warrant further consideration as potential wilderness areas. The islands, scattered throughout the state, have been the subject of BLM wilderness inventories for the past year.

Roger L. Hildebeidel, BLM's Eastern States director, said the islands do not have wilderness characteristics. "Jerry Heinz, BLM's Lake States office manager, has recommended that the islands be dropped, and I agree," Hildebeidel said. "Each of the islands was field-examined to determine if it had the essential characteristics to warrant further study," he added. In order to qualify, the islands must provide naturalness and an outstanding opportunity for solitude or primitive and unconfined recreation, in addition to any other existing significant values. These criteria are defined according to the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976, which is the authority for the wilderness review of public lands administered by BLM.

"BLM's wilderness inventory in the state of Minnesota is now complete," Hildebeidel said. "Originally, over 43,000 acres of public lands and 1,171 islands administered by BLM were subject to review for wilderness characteristics. Step by step, with regular opportunities for public comment, all of the lands have been inventoried, using existing records and maps, information from the public, and field examinations, to determine their suitability as wilderness study areas," he explained.

BLM announced a proposed decision to drop the last 174 islands from wilderness review on May 20, 1980. During the following comment period, the public agreed with the recommendations. Two counties adopted resolutions supporting BLM's proposed decision; and other people contributed information about existing uses of islands.

Decision to drop the islands from wilderness review was announced in the September 17, 1980 Federal Register and will become final 30 days later October 17, 1980, unless new information or timely protests are received by the Eastern States director.

"Throughout the entire inventory process, many people expressed their views that the islands should be left as they are and that wildlife habitat, cultural values and other attributes of BLM's public lands and islands should be protected," Hildebeidel said. "These values are now being considered in a comprehensive multiple use planning effort for all BLM lands in Minnesota."

The plan will consider several management alternatives for the lands, including the possibilities for continued BLM management, transfer to other Federal or State agencies, or management under cooperative agreement with another organization. Possibilities of special designations such as the recently-announced Areas of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC) are also being considered in this planning effort. All existing resource values, as well as national, regional and local needs, will be considered in the management plan decisions.

Complete wilderness inventory files, maps, and records of public response are available for review at the Lake States Office, Bureau of Land Management, 125 Federal Building, Duluth, Minnesota 55802.

Canned Pears Dress Up Economical Meals

Here's a tempting supper suggestion that's sure to be as popular with the family as it is with busy homemakers. A basic baked bean dinner has been converted to an adventure in eating with a few simple additions and canned Bartlett pears.

Baked beans are given extra zest with brown sugar, onion and a hint of orange. Canned Bartlett pear halves are arranged over the beans and drizzled with a tangy mustard glaze before going into the oven to heat through. Serve with franks or German sausages for a satisfying and economical meal.

Offering on-the-shelf convenience, versatile canned Bartlett pears with their smooth texture and subtle flavor often can provide just the right accent to turn the most basic meal into an attractive and satisfying dinner experience.

PEAR BEAN POTS

1 can (16 oz.) Bartlett pear halves
1 can (28 oz.) baked beans
3 tablespoons packed brown sugar, divided
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel

Woodward And Newman Chair Card Campaign

Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward have been named honorary co-chairpersons of the 1980 courage Christmas cards campaign.

Courage Christmas cards are original-art cards, some created by artists with physical disabilities, which are offered nationwide on a suggested-donation basis. Artwork for the cards is selected from entries in a nationwide contest held each year.

Funds raised from card sales help support Courage center, a nonprofit United Way organization headquartered in the Minneapolis suburb of Golden Valley, providing medical and vocational rehabilitation, recreation, sports, camping, educational programs and residential services to people in the Upper Midwest with physical disabilities and speech, hearing and vision disorders.

This year's Courage Christmas card collection includes 11 new cards and 17 old favorites; in addition to a first-time selection of holiday postcards and all-occasion note cards. The artwork includes religious themes, traditional holiday scenes, winter landscapes and wildlife and modern art.

Cards can be ordered with a variety of special features, including personalized imprinting, braille greetings and large order discounts.

Each card is offered at a tax-deductible suggested-donation price, though customers can contribute whatever they wish. Cards or a free catalog are available by calling 612-588-0811 year-round, 588-9419 in the Twin Cities area October 15-December 13, or toll-free 1-800-752-4288 in the greater Minnesota area and 1-800-328-4816 in the U.S. outside of Minnesota November 3-December 3.

Scallops For Tender Morsels Of Goodness

Scallops, those tender little morsels of goodness so plentiful in Virginia waters, once were so scarce that a scallop feast was only within the reach of the well-to-do who lived in scallop country.

Now these delectable nuggets of tender shellfish meat are available throughout the year. Scallop landings have increased dramatically over the years, especially in Virginia. And because of modern processing facilities, scallops from Virginia waters are shipped fresh or frozen throughout the eastern half of the nation.

The only part of the scallop sold in the United States is the sweet-flavored muscle that opens and closes the scallop's shell. The nugget, called the "eye muscle," varies in size from about 1/2 to 2 inches across.

Scallop meat contains high-level protein, many of the minerals and vitamins valuable in good nutrition and, important to dieters, very little fat.

Versatile as well as delicious, scallops can be fried, baked, broiled or even boiled for use in a scallop salad.

Scallops offer a year-round dietary delight. They pack a delicious wallop. And as appetizers at parties ... well, your guests will gallop toward the scallop! Try this recipe, a favorite of Virginia Chef Thomas L. Evaldi of Lynnhaven Fish House in Virginia Beach.

BROILED SCALLOPS EN BROCHETTE

2-1/2 lbs. large sea scallops
16 slices bacon
paprika for color
seasoning salt
1/2 lemon
yellow rice

Take 2 or 3 scallops (depending on size) and wrap in one slice of bacon. Repeat this step 15 more times using all the scallops and bacon.

Take a 12-inch skewer and place each scallop bundle on carefully. Place the completed skewers on a cookie sheet and place under a hot broiler. Keep the brochette under the broiler till the bacon becomes lightly browned. Remove from the broiler and season lightly with the seasoning salt, paprika and lemon juice.

Place the brochettes back into a 400° F. oven for approximately 10 minutes until the bacon is crisp and the scallops are firm to the touch. Serve the brochettes on a bed of yellow rice, and baste with the drippings from the cookie sheet. Serves four.

Safe Driving Tips

KEEP WHEELS STRAIGHT WHEN STOPPED

A vehicle stopped in traffic, especially when preparing to make a turn, has a special vulnerability. Last year, according to the National Safety Council, nearly 3,000 Americans lost their lives in rear-end collisions. Some of these deaths may have been avoided by using a simple driving technique.

When waiting for oncoming traffic to clear or for a traffic light to change, always keep your front wheels pointed straight ahead until you actually begin to move into the turn. The direction of your wheels controls the direction of your vehicle's forward motion. In the case of a left turn, for example, a rear-end collision could push your car into the oncoming traffic lanes if the wheels are already turned left in preparation for the turn. For right turns, a similar collision could push your car into pedestrians who might be using an adjacent crosswalk, so watch your wheels and keep them pointed straight ahead until you begin your move into the turn.

TWO FINISHED PIPES carved by Ed Needham of rural Goodridge are shown with a partially completed model. The pipes are shaped with hacksaw, drill, files, knives and sandpaper into the design existing in the carver's mind. When finished they are treated with lacquer to give them a shiny and smooth surface. Because each is carved by hand in accordance with the characteristics of the stone available, no two pipes are exactly alike. Various models of pipes from plain to large and ornate vary in price from $12 to $250. The more expensive pipes are large, have intricate carved effigies and elaborate stems trimmed with beadwork, buckskin, rawhide, pipestone ornaments, feathers, hair or fur and wood burned symbols.

For Local Government Day . . .

Fire Hall Open House And Park Dedication Planned

In observance of local government day, open house will be held Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Thief River Falls fire hall. Public attendance is invited during the open house hours and coffee and cookies will be served, according to Duane Noel, fire chief.

Fire fighting equipment will be on display throughout the day and a limited number of fire safety program booklets prepared for Thief River Falls will be available for visitors who want them.

Also a part of the local government day activities will be dedication of Oakland Park picnic ground at 4 p.m. and a dinner for city appointed boards and commissions in the evening. The dinner will be served to the commission members and city officials invited to attend and special recognition for service will be given to D.H. Stewart, former city engineer.

Among those serving on city boards and commissions are the following:

Park and Recreation Board — Ken Wiebolt, chairman, Don Howe, Ole Engelstad, Dale Wennberg and Lori Olson;

Police Civil Service Commission — Gene Gaer, chairman; Dr. O.D. Beich and Orin Green;

Housing and Redevelopment Authority — Randall Noper, chairman; Orville Hanson, Larry Belmont, Paul Ihle and Myrtle Wilson;

Greenwood Cemetery Board — J. Orville Feragen, chairman; Robert J. Lund, Roy Jensen, Ray Johnson and Roger DeLap;

Planning Commission — Al Christofferson, chairman; Don Barron, Stan Gibson, Glen Peterson, Jon Larson, Duane Walton, Edith Etter and Les Sabo;

Participating in the park dedication at 4 p.m. will be representatives of the county board of commissioners, state planning agency, regional development commission, city parks and recreation department and city government, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director.

The 10-acre park near Oakland Park nursing home was created by the county with financial assistance from state park and recreation development funds and federal land and water conservation (LAWCON) funds. The county's 25 per cent participation was primarily

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Knife and file grate against reluctantly yielding stone in the Needham workshop on the Red Lake Indian reservation southeast of Goodridge. Out of the red stone and the powdery dust emerge realistic effigies of people, animals and birds.

Dan Needham, 85, and his son Ed, 54, are at work supplying the market which exists for authentic Indian peace pipes. Their artistic creations have gone throughout the world — to China, Japan, Norway, Germany, South America, Alaska, India, the Arabian countries and Canada.

Former Gov. Wendell Anderson took a number of the pipes with him for gifts to government officials when he and his wife visited the Peoples Republic of China a few years ago. Foreign visitors occasionally buy one as a souvenir. But the main market is still among the Indians themselves, especially in Canada where many age-old ceremonies are still observed.

Both craftsmen are primarily self-taught, although Dan took an art course from Indian artist Lone Star while a student at Carlisle college. He attended the school at the same time as Jim Thorpe, the famous American Indian athlete.

"Getting an idea of what you want to carve is the hardest part," Ed Needham explained about the work. He carves about 30 large and intricate pipes a year and has been a carver for the past 15 years. "Once you have in your mind what you want to do with a piece of stone, all you have to do is carve it to look like you want it to look.

Every pipe is an individual effort from the very start. For a large pipe a piece of stone about nine or 10 pounds in weight is needed. It can be up to two and one-half or three inches wide — about the widest available — and is cut to rough shape with a saw before being further shaped with knife and files and finished with sandpaper.

On some pipes the bowl to hold tobacco is an integral part of the design. On the Indianhead pipe, for example, the bowl is formed by drilling down through the top of the head. On another design, an Indian hunter is on his knees, peering around the bowl at a buffalo carved near the front of the pipe. Yet another design shows the pipe bowl held upright in the clutching talons of an eagle.

Not satisfied with fine figure carving in itself, Ed and Dan often add inlays to their larger pipes, using Canadian pipestone of a dark green color and-or molten metal to form geometric designs.

Stone for the pipe carving business comes from a quarry near Pipestone, MN., where the narrow layer of soft red stone lies between layers of hard quartzite. The stone, known as catlinite, may be quarried only by Indians and without the aid of mechanical or explosive devices. Ed and Dan purchase the stone they use from a resident of the Pipestone area, although they have quarried some of their own years ago.

As they gain experience and PEACE PIPE CARVER Ed Needham of rural Goodridge has been making pipes from pipestone for about 15 years. His craftsmanship is steadily improving and the figures he carves are increasingly realistic and more greatly detailed. "I still have the first pipe I ever carved," Ed says. "I wouldn't show that one to anybody!" Ed is the son of Dan Needham, a former treasurer of the Red Lake tribal council. The pipe Ed is carving above is shown in finished form with two more of his creations elsewhere in today's issue of the Times.

I have outlined my views on a number of issues in this campaign — all of which are very important to rural Minnesota. I will address some major issues here as concisely as possible, but first I would like to present some background information about myself.

Farming has always been a big part of my life. I grew up on a dairy farm near Fergus Falls and presently farm outside of Elbow Lake. I graduated from Fergus Falls high school and from Moorhead state university. Between 1970 and 1974 I taught school and farmed in Elbow Lake. Between 1974 and 1978 I served in the Minnesota legislature.

While serving in the Minnesota legislature, I was proud to help pass many important bills, several of which I was the principle author. I authored part of the Minnesota Corporate Farm law that prohibits large, non-farm corporations from buying up hog, cattle and dairy farms. I authored a bill to make the state bureaucracy more responsive to local citizens, and supported several bills to help senior

PLAYGROUND EQUIPMENT and picnic shelters are among the amenities of the new Oakland Park picnic grounds near Oakland Park home in Thief River Falls. The former Oakland Park home, most recently used as a dormitory for local post high school students but now vacant, is pictured in the background. The park was created by Pennington county with 75 per cent of the funding coming from state and federal sources and is maintained by the city parks and recreational department. The park also includes a softball diamond, horseshoe pits, volleyball court and bicycle-pedestrian trail.

Nov. Absentee Ballots Now At Auditor's Office

Absentee ballots will be available starting today, October 20 for the November 4 general election.

"Any qualified voter who will be absent from the precinct on election day, or who is unable to go to the polls because of illness or religious reasons should apply for an absentee ballot as soon as possible," says Joan Growe, Minnesota secretary of state.

No one can legally vote by absentee ballot simply because they don't want to be bothered with going to the polls. "Absentee ballots cost the city and county more money to process, and put an additional burden on the election judges," Growe said.

Voters can obtain absentee ballots from their county auditor in person, or by mail with a signed and dated written request stating the voter's name, voting and mailing addresses, and the reason the voter will be unable to go to the polls on election day.

The absentee ballot must be mailed in time to be received in the polling place by election day, or, for the first time, a new law allows the absentee voter to appoint an agent to deliver the ballot. If the voter returns the ballot in person or appoints an agent to return it, the ballot must be received by the proper election official before 4:30 p.m. on the day before the election. "This new procedure will allow for situations where possibly a voter's spouse could return the ballot after it is too late to be returned through the mails," Growe stated.

An agent must be at least 18 years of age, may not be an agent for more than three people, and must provide indentification which shows his or her name and address.

Stangeland Seeks 2nd Full Term In Congress

Thank you for the opportunity to express my views on the important issues facing our nation and the Seventh district.

I have been a family farmer all my life, now owning and operating an 850-acre diversified farm in Wilkin county near Barnesville. My wife Virginia and I have seven children. From 1966 to 1974 I served in the Minnesota House of Representatives. First elected to the U.S. Congress in a special election in February of 1977, I was reelected for a full two-year term in 1978.

A member of the House government operations committee and public works and transportation committee, I also served on the Republican study committee, task force on agriculture and task force on senior citizens, as well as the congressional paperwork reduction group.

INFLATION — Most of us would agree that inflation — and its effects on our economy and our daily lives — ranks by far as our nation's number one problem. We all know the demoralizing statistics — the average American family is worse off than a decade ago — a down-payment on a house is more than they can possibly save and they have already cut down on driving due to the price of gasoline. Instead of helplessly accepting this situation, let's examine what has created it, and perhaps consider some solutions.

The rate of inflation is affected primarily by two factors: the cost of products and government spending.

What constitutes the cost of

Times Error Causes Calls On Fuel Aids

An error in the Times Wednesday has resulted in a flood of telephone calls to local outreach workers for the Inter-County Community council and to the council office at Oklee.

The announcement Wednesday stated that a representative from the Inter-County office would be at the city auditorium Tuesday mornings from 9:30 a.m. to noon to fill out fuel assistance applications and answer questions.

That information was incorrect. The representative will take applications for weatherization programs, legal aid and Head Start programs. The fuel assistance program will not start until late November or early December, and the council will run advertisements at that time to notify individuals who may qualify.

The Times regrets the error which resulted from an attempt to expand on incomplete information.

October Theme Developed At Deer Park Meet

"What October Means to Me," was the theme of the Deer Park garden club meeting held recently at the Dorothy Svanjord home.

To correspond with the theme, the table featured floral and dried arrangements which Mrs. Svanjord used in her decorating presentation based on the theme. To capture various moods, Mrs. Svanjord used a backdrop draped with print fabrics in bold colors and textures, and changed the groupings featuring floral and dried arrangements, an abandoned wasp nest, different kinds of vegetables and autumn leaves.

Members answered roll call by presenting a written list of ideas for the 1980-81 book. Selected to work with president Ethel Wiseth, in preparing the book were Marion Marquis, Lois Swanson and Dorothy Svanjord. In the absence of the secretary, Elva Fiedler recorded the minutes.

Reports on the 13th District fall workshop held at Viking were given by Mark Kusmak, Norma Hanson and Lois Swanson. It was noted that club member Norma Hanson had been elected treasurer of the 13th District. The transportation bill to the annual meeting was approved and the 1980-81 club dues were collected by the secretary. A letter was also read announcing that the 1980 annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society will be held October 25 at Duluth at the College of St. Scholastica.

During the business session members discussed interesting the younger people in the community in joining garden clubs. Several possible community projects were also discussed.

During the craft session, Ethel Wiseth displayed samples of wheat weaving. Club members cleaned a bundle of wheat which will be used at the club's November workshop with Mrs. Wiseth giving the lesson on straw weaving. A lesson in macrame knots will also be shown at the workshop with Lavonne Radniecki as instructor.

The next meeting of the club will be held November 11 at the home of Helen Chervestad.

Homemakers Of Wyandotte Study Egg Cookery

October meeting of the Wyandotte homemakers club was held at the Carolyn Mack home with Vi Houske and Linda Conely giving the lesson on egg cookery. Various dishes made with eggs were sampled and included in the lunch served by the hostess.

Linda Ulrich was welcomed into the club as a member. A Christmas supper was planned and members suggested having a ceramic class at the meetings together with the regular homemakers lesson. Kathy Carlson won the door prize. A magazine exchange concluded the meeting.

Members attending in addition to those mentioned, were Doris Nelson, Evelyn Erickson, Naomi Peterson, Mario Solberg, Hazel Jesperson, Donna Mossestad and Helen Hanson.

The November meeting will be held.

The next meeting of the Wyandotte homemakers club will be held November 11 at 1:30 p.m., at the Donna Mossestad home. The lesson will be on flower arranging. Table settings will also be demonstrated.

Kleinwachter-Larson Vows Exchanged Here

Miss Patricia Ann Kleinwachter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Kleinwachter of Strandquist, became the bride of Wayne C. Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wally Larson of Strandquist, at a recent ceremony at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city.

Officiating at the double ring-ecumenical ceremony were Rev. John Kleinwachter, brother of the bride, Rev. Duane Pribula and Rev. Keith Prekker. Marcia Knuttila, a friend of the bride, was organist and played "Sanctus" for the processional. During the ceremony, Miss Knuttila and Llewellyn Troska sang "Gift of Love," "Wherever You Go," and "Wedding Song," with Billy Hustad as accompanist.

Baskets of white gladioli and mums graced the chancel together with candelabra adorned with white mums, greenery and ribbon streamers. Silk flowers marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a chiffon gown featuring a blouson bodice with a sheer illusion yoke trimmed with Venice lace and pearls. Matching lace formed the cuffs on the sheer bishop sleeves. Her full skirt flowed back into a cathedral length train. A Juliet headpiece of matching lace, etched with pearls, held her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses, miniature carnations, stephanotis and babies' breath, accented with small blue flowers.

Maid of honor was Mrs. Betty Pietruszewski, Strandquist, a sister of the bride. Other attendants were Ginger Larson, Strandquist, sister of the groom; Rita Reider, St. Cloud, and Mrs. Jeri Longfellow, Newport, friends of the bride. Their identical gowns of a gem-blue lusterglow knit were styled with blouson bodices with chain lace necklines and split, elbow-length sleeves. Their bouquets were of white miniature carnations, and babies' breath, accented with small blue silk flowers and white ribbon streamers.

Attending the groom as best man was Ben Kleinwachter, Strandquist, brother of the bride. Groomsmen were Roger Holmstrom, Strandquist, cousin of the groom, Paul Kleinwachter, Minneapolis, brother of the bride; and Rickie Carlson, Inver Grove, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Robert Bielski, Fort Pierce, Fla., brother-in-law of the groom, and Terry Pietruszewski, Strandquist, brother-in-law of the bride. All wore charcoal gray tuxedos, white shirts and white miniature carnation boutonnieres.

The bride's personal attendant was Mrs. Shirley Kleinwachter, Minneapolis a sister-in-law of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a five o'clock wedding supper in the church parlors. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kleinvachter, Thief River Falls, cousins of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Danny Carlson, Inver Grove, cousins of the groom. Mrs. Dee Kleinwachter, Strandquist, sister-in-law of the bride, registered the guests as Lois Kleinwachter, Strandquist, a cousin of the bride, and Connie Knoll, Thief River Falls, a friend of the bride, served the punch.

The tiered wedding cake was iced in white and decorated with white flowers with a ceramic cherub gracing the middle tier. Topping the cake was a silver Christogram surrounded by white fresh roses and greens. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Clem Kalinowski of Greenbush. It was cut and served by Mrs. Sophie K. Benson, St. Paul, and Mrs. Merrill Carlson, Inver Grove, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Judy Kleinwachter, Strandquist, and Mrs. Delores Erickson, Karlstad, also aunts of the bride and groom.

St. Anne's Court Halloween Party Set

St. Ann's court 855 of the Catholic Foresters Halloween party will be held Tuesday, October 21, at St. Bernard's Church parlors. The event will begin at 6:30 p.m., with a potluck supper. Entertainment will follow the supper.

Precautions Given To Cut Rural Crime

The fact that rural crime in Minnesota increased 27 per cent last year is alarming enough but it is more disturbing when compared to the increase in the supposedly crime-ridden metropolitan areas (15 per cent).

A number of crimes go unreported in both areas which has to be taken into consideration in any analysis of the reports.

State Department of Public Safety (DPS) through its Crime Watch programs, is asking residents to cooperate with crime prevention activities. It has been shown, said DPS commissioner John Sopsic, that participation in crime prevention programs does deter thefts.

Charles Rix, Minnesota Crime Watch coordinator, said there is renewed interest by a number of communities in the program. Six police departments are new to the program. Two departments reactivated programs.

Crime Watch is a statewide program working with local law enforcement personnel to help citizens take steps which reduce their chance of becoming a crime victim.

Here are some reminders of what can be done on the farm to protect property:

—Install good locks and lock them.

—Make your home look and sound occupied. Leave drapes in a normal position when you are gone. At night, leave on some inside lights. An automatic timer can turn on a lamp or radio and turn it off in a few hours.

—Never leave barn, shed or other doors open. An open door anywhere is an invitation to burglars.

—Do not leave keys hidden outside; they're too easily found. Do not leave notes telling visitors when you will be back and where they keys are kept.

—Keep an eye on the neighbor's place and he will do the same for you.

Seventy senior citizens attended the Northwest Regional Library's Open House for Seniors Wednesday and Thursday, October 15 and 16.

Wednesday the 50 seniors were greeted with accordian music by Kathy Erickson who played many numbers requested by members of the group.

Dan Kelty from the Polk County library presented a series of puppet shows including the Hopping Gourmet and a unique version of Cinderella. He also led the group in singing new songs including "Three Rodents With Defective Vision." Participants were also reminded of library services available to them. A door prize donated by Hall's Floral was won by Hilding Berch. The group was treated to refreshments.

Thursday, the 20 seniors arrived to find displays designed to stimulate memories of county fairs including live chickens and rabbits.

"All in the Family" an old-time band featuring the Rogalla family performed music which inspired some participants to get up and dance.

An audio-visual show entitled "Step Right Up" was viewed by the group. Discussion then centered on the first fair attended, and what ribbons had been won by members in the past.

Discussion finished with the story "An Aromatic Adventure at the Fair." The door prize donated by Hanson's Floral was won by Louis Schultz and the participants were served pie and cider.

HOT APPLE CIDER and pie were refreshments accompanying the county fair theme for senior citizens Wednesday during the open house for seniors conducted at the Northwest regional library last Wednesday and Thursday in Thief River Falls. Approximately 70 seniors attended activities presented during the open house.

Music provided pertained to the county fair theme illustrated during the second day of the open house, and was followed by a county fair slide show, discussion, and display of county fair items.

Plans for Words, Well Wrapped II, a series of poetry readings and workshops have been announced by the Northwest regional library; Words, Well Wrapped II will involve three visiting poets in readings and workshops at the headquarters library in Thief River Falls.

Monday (October 27) Patricia Hampl of St. Paul will be in Thief River Falls. Hampl published her first book of poems "Woman Before an Aquarium" (University of Pittsburgh Press) in 1978. This winter Houghton Mifflin company will publish her first prose book — a memoir titled "A Modern Girl," which concerns, among other things, her travels to Czechoslovakia, the homeland of her grandparents. She has published fiction in "The New Yorker" and elsewhere, and her poems and essays have appeared in various magazines. She has recently been awarded the Houghton Mifflin Literary Fellowship to write a new book. Hampl will conduct a workshop at the Thief River Falls library at 4 p.m. October 27 and will give a reading at 8 p.m. in the library meeting room.

William Kloefkorn will be the library's second visiting poet. Kloefkorn is a member of the english department at Nebraska Wesleyan in Lincoln. His poetry career began about nine years ago and he has published poems in a variety of magazines. He has five collections in print: "Alvin Turner as Farmer" (now in its fifth printing); "Uncertain the Final Run to Winter" (ready for a third printing); "Loony; Ludi Jr;" and "Voyages to the Inland Sea". Kloefkorn's workshop will be at 4 p.m. (November 3) and his reading will be at 8 p.m. that evening, both in the Thief River Falls library.

Final poet to visit Thief River Falls during this series will be Margaret Hasse, of Minneapolis. Hasse is especially interested in the performing arts, and reads in poetry series. Her workshop will be conducted at 4 p.m. November 10 and her reading will follow at 8 p.m. Both will be conducted in the Thief River Falls library.

Hartz Grant Given To UMC Child Center

Grant for $10,000 was awarded to the Children's Center at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) from the Hartz foundation of Thief River Falls, it was announced by Lowell Larson, director of UMC's office of institutional research and development.

Given in installments over three years, the grant will be used for minor remodeling and to enrich the outdoor facility for the infants' and toddlers' program, according to Marilyn Grave, director of the Children's center.

Because state and federal guidelines require a high square footage and large number of personnel in that program, it is expensive to run.

"We are one of the few institutions to have an infant and toddler program to allow our students the opportunity to work with children of this age," said Emily Minnichsoffer, chairperson of the home and family services division.

The program is justified, according to Minnichsoffer, because, "when our students graduate they have an easier time finding a job because of their experience."

Although plans are still in the early stage, Grave says, "at the present time we are planning to proceed with minor remodeling and the enrichment of the outdoor facility for the infant and toddler program."

1980 Census Now Complete In This Area

The 1980 census of population and housing has ended in the 16 Minnesota counties handled by the temporary census district office in Bemidji which is now closed, the bureau of the census, U.S. department of commerce, announced today. The office was responsible for taking the census in the following counties: Aitken, Beltrami, Cass, Clearwater, Hubbard, Itasca, Kittson, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, and Roseau.

Preliminary population and housing figures for the local governments in these counties have been sent to the highest elected official in each community. These preliminary totals are subject to later revisions.

Completed census questionnaires from the Bemidji office have been shipped to a census processing facility where they will be fed through high-speed equipment which microfilms each page. Microfilm is then scanned electronically and the data from the census forms — excluding names and addresses — transmitted directly to the Census Bureau's computers in Suitland, MD, just outside Washington, D.C.

Once computer tabulation of the data has been completed, final population and housing counts will be released early in 1981 and will supersede the preliminary totals.

Fire Hall Open House; Park Dedication Set

in-kind services and work supplied by county highway department crews.

The park is maintained by the city of Thief River Falls with the county responsible for capital improvements. It includes picnic shelters, playground equipment, softball and volleyball areas, horseshoe pits and a bicycle-pedestrian path.

Any interested members of the public are invited to participate in the dedication program.

In proclaiming local government day, Gov. Al Quie noted that local government provides a flexible and responsible method of offering vital services to the citizens of the state and that "it is desirable to recognize locally elected officials, staff members and citizen volunteers who together enable government to efficiently meet the needs of the citizens of the state".

Peace Pipe Carving Is Art For Needhams

confidence, Dan and Ed produce increasingly intricate and elaborate pipes. The figures become more life-like and the designs more challenging. And the craftsmen will stack their work up against most of the other work they have seen.

"Pipe carving is a dwindling art," Dan said. "There are still a few other carvers, but on the work I have seen the effigies are poor and the stems and trim are quite plain. We have never had a pipe returned because a purchaser was dissatisfied with it."

"It's a dusty job," Ed added. "We work at it pretty regular during the winter, but you can't work at it every day, week in and week out. We wear respirator masks but the powder still gets into your lungs. We have to take a few days off every once in awhile."

While the Needhams take a few days off from carving, they may well be working on other projects connected with pipe making. It may be gathering sumac for making the pipe stems, cutting rawhide, preparing feathers, fur or hair ornamentation or wood burning symbols on the stems.

Complementing the carved pipes themselves are the colorfully decorated stems, usually featuring bits of pipestone drilled out and threaded on rawhide and a carved thunderbird emblem as part of the decoration. Ermine tails, feathers of various types, horsehair, buckskin, beadwork designs, deer dewclaws and other items are also used.

In addition to the approximately 30 large pipes he makes a year, Ed creates about 50 smaller ones. Dan produces about 300 smaller pipes a year, including tiny pipes six to eight inches long which are primarily souvenir items. Prices range from $8.50 for the tiny pipes to $225 for the largest, most ornate models.

Most of the pipes are sold direct from the Needham workshop by mail order, and many of them are made to order in accordance with what the customer wants. Most of the time a special order pipe can be carved and shipped within a week or two.

In addition to direct sales, the Needhams have had some of their pipes sold through stores in Bemidji, Minneapolis and Minot, N.D. They also used to create a number of other Indian items — including drums, cradle boards, headdresses, bows and arrows. But in recent years they have concentrated their efforts in the pipe making art.

Dan considers himself semi-retired now that he has reached the 85 years of age milestone, and when he spends his four or five hours a day in the shop he jokingly says, "At my age, I'm on Indian time." And he has also been designated chief inspector. "The work has to be satisfactory to ME or it doesn't go out," he says. "I am proud of the work that comes out of our shop."

As Ed and Dan ply their trade, replicas of Crazy Horse at Mt. Rushmore, eagles, bears, wolves, bison and human figures materialize out of shapeless blocks of stone. Aided by some modern tools, their craftsmanship goes well beyond the bounds of their primitive predecessors.

"There were some nice pipes made years ago," Dan notes. "But we take a lot of pride in what we make. Time is running out for the peace pipe because only a few pipestone craftsmen carry on the art."

Anyone wanting further information may contact Dan Needham at 378-4210 or Ed Needham at 378-4322.

A NUMBER OF TOOLS are used by peace pipe carvers Dan and Ed Needham of rural Goodridge, but files are used most extensively in the finishing work. Most of the larger pipes feature birds or animals in one way or another and are carved from a stone which weighs nine to 10 pounds when the work begins. Relatively soft when it is taken from a narrow vein buried under eight feet of dirt and rock, it hardens over a period of time when exposed to the air. No mechanized equipment nor explosives may be used in quarrying; the pipe stone may be quarried only by Indians and only with hand tools.

ACTIVE AT AGE 85, Dan Needham of rural Goodridge works with his son Ed in a peace pipe carving business. They spend most of the winter months in a shop at the Dan Needham farm southeast of Goodridge on the Red Lake Indian reservation, creating distinctive pipes from the red stone quarried by hand near Pipestone, MN. Dan is wearing the war bonnet he made himself and the ornate beaded costume used for powwows and other ceremonial events. "When I hear a drum," he said, "I'm ready to take a couple Bufferin and do a little dance."

Mrs. Hjalmer Lee Rites Held At Newfolden

Funeral services for Mrs. Hajlmer (Alma) Lee, 86, of Newfolden were held Thursday at 11:00 a.m., at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden. Mrs. Lee died Monday, October 13, at the Karlstad Memorial hospital.

Rev. Richard Lund officiated at the services. Mrs. Vernon Nelson was the organist and Deland Elseth, the soloist. Interment was in the Opdahl cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Randy Lee, Brent Lee, Jeff Lee, Bill Green, Roger Green, Jeff Juppru, Bob Bartlett and Don Virden.

Serving as active pallbearers were Bruce Berg, Rocco Wilson, Scott Lee, Harold Lee, Barry Nelson and Gerald Nelson.

Mrs. Lee, the former Alma Blinsmon, was born May 22, 1894 in Kingsbury county in South Dakota to Stener and Anna Tallum Blinsmon. On March 7, 1923 she was married in Thief River Falls to Hjalmer Lee. The couple lived in New Maine township of Marshall county until 1942, when they moved into Newfolden. Since June of this year, she had been a resident of the Karlstad Nursing home.

The Lees celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1973. At the time of her husband's death on September 10 of this year, they had been married 57 years.

She is survived by three sons: Jasper Lee, Minneapolis; Avery, Holt; and Vernon, Thief River Falls; two daughters: Mrs. Marvin (Avis) Nelson and Mrs. Betty Berg, both of Newfolden; 17 grandchildren, 19 great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by her step-mother, Emma; three sisters and one brother.

Dear friends,
After her husband died, a widow remarked that she could almost feel when her friends ceased praying for her as their concern turned to other things. She said this experience reminded her that she should be a long-term prayer partner on behalf of others with similar bereavement needs.
Respectfully,

William Kruse Rites Today At Black River

William Kruse, 84, who farmed in Polk Centre township of Pennington county, died Thursday afternoon at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for William Kruse are being held today (Monday) at 2:00 p.m., at the Black River Lutheran church with Rev. Keith Prekker officiating. Mrs. Donald Mosbeck will be the organist and Steve Sorvig, the soloist. Interment will be in the church cemetery. The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

He then returned to St. Hilaire and worked for a time in the creamery there. In 1931, he moved to the family farm in Polk centre township and had since farmed there.

He was active in community affairs. He served on the Black River church board, the St. Hilaire creamery board, the Wylie Elevator board, the rural school board of district 94, the Farmers Home Administration board, and the Polk Centre township board.

He was married Dec. 26, 1933 in St. Hilaire to Evelyn Maakrud. She survives.

Full Board Of Agassiz Health Agency To Meet

Full board of the Agassiz health systems agency will meet at the Ramada Inn, Grand Forks, N.D. Thursday (October 23) at 9:30 a.m.

First item on the agenda will be election of board officers for the 1980-81 year. The board will also review and adopt changes in the health systems plan and annual implementation plan which reflect comments received from the Minnesota and North Dakota statewide health coordinating councils.

Eric Monson, agency director, will give a presentation on appropriateness review. Appropriateness review is a process by which services in existing public and private hospitals, rehabilitation facilities, and nursing homes are periodically reviewed to determine whether or not these services meet the needs of the population in their area. These reviews would examine not only areas of excess capacity and duplication, but should also identify areas needing additional or improved services.

After lunch, staff will demonstrate planning in action by showing a slide show that was developed through the efforts of an Agassiz initiated infant mortality consortium in North Dakota.

Agassiz board members from Pennington county are Sherryll Irvine and Richard Kruse.

All Agassiz meetings are open to the public. Anyone wishing further information or a specific agenda should contact Mary Ellen Preston, Agassiz health systems agency, 31 South Third, Box 129, Grand Forks, ND. (701) 746-0441.

A PUPPET THEATER Wednesday brought smiles to the faces of many seniors who attended the Northwest Regional Library's open house for seniors conducted last Wednesday and Thursday in Thief River Falls. "Dan Kelty and Friends," the theater, was presented by Dan Kelty from the Polk County Library. "The Hopping Gourmet" and a special version of "Cinderella" were featured during the show.

Stangeland Seeks 2nd Term In Congress

a product? The cost of the raw materials used and the cost of labor. Oil and its derivatives permeate American industry. As we all know too well, crude oil costs 10 times what it did prior to the Arab oil embargo in 1973. Each year we send $90 billion out of the country just to purchase foreign oil. The incredible increase in the price of oil is a real cost and must be paid for by those who use the product.

The cost of labor keeps going up. Every person should be paid — and paid well — for an honest day's effort. However, for the first time last year American productivity actually dropped. It cost more to produce less. Outdated equipment, a decline in the work ethic, and the ever-increasing tax burden all contribute to the drop in productivity.

The government's taxing policy is directly related to its spending habits. Each year the federal budget increases; currently it consumes almost 22 per cent of our gross national product. As people make more money, they are pushed into higher tax brackets which provide extra tax dollars to be spent by the government. However, the bureaucratic appetite is insatiable, and the government must resort to massive borrowing to feed its spending habit. When the government borrows, it competes with private enterprise for the available funds and pushes up interest rates and reduces private economic growth. Currently we pay $80 billion a year in interest only on the federal debt.

What can we do to solve the inflation problem? First, we must develop other sources of energy; we must encourage the production of domestic oil supplies; and we must conserve energy.

We must lower personal income taxes so that the American workers will have more of their own money to spend. We must demand that a person work eight hours a day. We must demand that able-bodied individuals contribute to society rather than live off welfare.

Taxes must be structured to provide business with incentives to modernize and expand. Today the economies of Japan and Germany — whose entire economic bases were destroyed in World War II — are far healthier than ours. I know that we can compete — and compete successfully — but we must be willing to take the steps necessary to do so. An important initial step is to reduce personal and business taxes. I have consistently voted for these tax cuts and will continue to do so.

The federal government must balance its budget and pay off its debt. I have introduced and supported legislation which requires a balanced federal budget, limits government spending to 20 per cent of the GNP, and provides for the retirement of the national debt.

If we are serious about beating inflation — if we are going to survive in the world as we know it — we must take these steps. The federal government must act now and set the example that we are willing, as a people, to live within our means, to work, and to spend our money wisely, and by so doing to expand our economy and improve our lives.

ENERGY — The recent war between Iran and Iraq raises serious concerns among oil consuming nations such as the United States and reaffirms the precarious situation in which we, as a country, find ourselves. Due to our heavy reliance on OPEC oil for domestic energy needs, our national security is once again threatened by the actions of two relatively small nations. It is, therefore, absolutely essential that we change our past policies and enact a strong, comprehensive energy program that will significantly decrease our reliance on OPEC oil by increasing oil production here at home, by developing alternative energy sources and by promoting energy conservation measures.

I believe that our country must reduce its reliance on oil and substitute alternative energy forms such as gasohol. As a strong supporter of gasohol, I have cosponsored numerous bills, among them the Grain Utilization act of 1979, the Alcohol Farm Use Tax act of 1980, the Alcohol Fuels and Environmental Coordination act, the Alcohol Production Incentive act of 1979, the Oil Independence act and the Replacement Motor Fuels act.

These gasohol bills will provide for loans, loan guarantees and other financial incentives for small, on-farm alcohol fuels plants, as well as for larger alcohol fuels production facilities. The Energy Security act, which I entusiastically supported, has now been signed into law and will provide for $1.45 billion in incentives for alcohol fuel production and biomass energy projects.

In addition to gasohol, I have cosponsored and worked to pass bills promoting solar, wind, hydro, geothermal and other alternative energy forms. I am particularly happy that H.R. 605, a bill I cosponsored, was used as a model for the Solar Eergy and Energy Conservation Bank provision in the Energy Security act. This would provide subsidized loans for persons making energy conservation improvements on installing solar energy equipment.

Regarding energy conservation, as a member of the Environment, Energy, and Natural Resources Subcommittee, I worked with the subcommittee on reports dealing with the need for greater conservation efforts by the federal government; low-cost, no-cost energy conservation measures, and the need to improve emergency planning and response in case of a supply interruption.

AGRICULTURE — A healthy agricultural community is important not only to the people of the Seventh District, but the economy of the entire nation as well. Unfortunately, due to a variety of circumstances — the grain embargo, high interest rates, rapidly increasing production costs and the drought — 1980 has proven to be a disastrous year for many of the farmers in our area. As a lifetime farmer, I am well aware of the devastating impact these problems have had on the Seventh District farmers and have pushed for several administrative and legislative actions designed to assist our farmers and help them obtain fair prices for their crops.

Without strong action to provide farmers with fair prices, the farmer will continue to fall behind and further in debt, and sooner or later it will not be economically feasible for him to produce the food we eat. I have been a strong advocate in Congress of reasonable price supports for dairy products, grain and sugar as a means of assuring our farmers of a fair return for their crops. It is also my opinion that increased farm income can be generated by expanding U.S. agricultural exports and I supported successful legislation to develop greater overseas markets for our nation's farm products.

In recent years, U.S. wheat farmers have been forced to sell at extremely low prices and with Canada and the United States supplying almost 70 per cent of the world's exported wheat, there is no reason why wheat farmers from both countries should not be assured of fair prices. For this reason, I organized wheat export meetings between five U.S. Senators, eight Congressmen, and 11 members of the Canadian Parliament to discuss what mutually agreeable policies both countries could pursue to expand wheat export opportunities and insure a reasonable profit for our farmers.

There is little doubt that, through the years, the family farm has been the backbone of our nation's economy. I have introduced and cosponsored several bills specifically directed at preserving the family farm and authored the "Young Farmers PURCHASING Act," a bill to help young farmers to purchase their own land. This measure provides that interest on sales to young farmers planning their full-time life's work would be tax free, thus allowing the seller to part with his land at a lower price.

In Congress, I'll work for similar programs and bills to help rural Minnesotans. I will also work to repeal laws that have outlived their purpose.

Some of the important issues we've outlined solutions on are:

ENERGY. . . Because of high energy costs our economy is unstable. Because of our reliance on OPEC, our national security is threatened. I believe a number of steps must be taken to get control of our energy future. First, in Congress I'll work to expedite the production of alternate forms of fuel. Second, I'll support increasing tax credits for energy conservation. Third, I'll work to see that the big oil companies are serving the national interests.

I do not believe that our energy future should be handed down from the boardrooms of a few large corporations. My opponent talks about unleashing the big oil companies. But instead of unleashing big oil, I think Congress should work to unleash the potential of our own citizens and our own fuels. Alcohol fuels can be the OPEC of the midwest. But we should not allow the production and distribution of that fuel to become just another product offered by oil companies. Alcohol production has to remain in the hands of local citizens so that our rural communities can become energy self-sufficient.

ECONOMY. . . I believe we have to reform tax policies that have stymied U.S. productivity. This slack in productivity is caused by unacceptably high levels of inflation and by reduced investment in new, more efficient machinery and technologies. I have proposed tax reforms that would reduce taxes for small, mainstreet businesses.

I also believe that tax policies for individuals need to be changed. It just isn't fair that taxes for working men and women continue to go up, while taxes paid by large corporations continue to decline. We have to shut off tax loopholes.

Some form of individual tax reduction is going to be necessary in 1981. But I also know that politically motivated tax cuts aimed at slashing taxes by unrealistic levels could be disastrous to our economy. For this reason I am opposed to the Kemp-Roth plan, which my opponent supports. Economists point out that this tax scheme would cause 30 per cent inflation, add to the federal deficit, and worse — most of the benefits go to those making more than $50,000 a year. Very little goes to the working men and women of this area. It's a bad idea that's unfair to middle income Americans.

BUDGET. . . I support a balanced federal budget. A family has to live within its means; so should a government. To balance the budget we have to reduce our reliance on OPEC, we have to cut wasteful government spending, and we have to reform tax loopholes. By closing unnecessary tax loopholes for large corporations, we could come much closer to an economically just balanced budget.

AGRICULTURE. . . Unless the Seventh District has a member on the Agriculture Committee, farmers are not receiving the voice in Congress they deserve. Seventh District farmers have traditionally had a congressman on the committee, but the incumbent turned down his opportunity. Because of that, our farmers have not had someone speaking for them when farm bills were forged. In Congress, I'll work to get a seat on the committee.

By being on the committee, I'll be able to introduce several bills. First, I believe we need a program to help young farmers similar to the Family Farm Security Act. Second, we need to assure farmers that future programs will give them cost of production plus a fair profit. Third, we need to make sure that our highways and railroads are maintained in such a way that farmers will be able to get their products to market. I have proposed a rural transportation administration that would assist local people in running and operating the abandoned branch lines.

SENIOR CITIZENS. . . We owe our senior citizen so much. They have paid taxes for a lifetime, they have built our mainstreet businesses, been the stewards of our land, served as teachers for many of us, and now I believe it our duty to give something back to senior citizens for all that they have given us. We have to preserve the integrity of social security, we have to keep the extreme budget slashers from cutting vital programs for seniors, and we have to utilize and enjoy the wisdom of senior Americans. If we ever waste the experience of our senior citizens, we have wasted a precious voice. In Congress, I'll fight to make sure senior citizens are given a just retirement.

RURAL AMERICA. . . We have to maintain our small towns, churches, rural schools and family farms. In rural Minnesota we have been able to keep alive the independent spirit, the feelings of responsibility of fellow man, the loyalty and goodness that has given this country great strength and stature. I believe we have to proceed in the future while still preserving the best qualities of the past.

Some people say, well, times have to change. It is understandable to think that we have to sit back and see our rural institutions close. . . it is understandable, but not acceptable. To accept these things is to undermine the very spirit of the nation. In the U.S. Congress, we need people who will try new ideas and new methods to better our rural way of life.

I don't have all the answers, but I have the necessary experience to get the job done. That's why I'd appreciate your support on November 4. Thank you.

High Standards Imperative

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

It's something of a tossup at this point whether the 96th Congress will be best remembered for its number of cases involving questionable conduct of members or for being the first to expell a member since the outbreak of the Civil War.

In the last nine months, one member has been expelled after a bribery conviction, another has been under indicment, another is starting a prison term, several have admitted serious drinking problems, and one has agreed to take special treatment after being accused of soliciting sex from a teen-age boy. It is a shabby record for any group, particularly one which should be bound by the highest ethics in the land.

Rep. Michael Myers, a Democrat from Pennsylvania, was expelled from the House of Representatives by a vote of 376 to 30 after his conviction for accepting a $50,000 bribe in the FBI's Abscam undercover operation. Myers reacted strongly, calling the assembled house members "a lynching mob" and insisting that he has been denied his rights. This was the second clash with the law for Myers since his election in 1976 — he and another man were arrested in 1979 and accused of beating a cocktail waitress at a Virginia motel. He pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct charges.

Myers is the first member of Congress to be expelled since 1861 when three border-state members were ousted for joining the Confederate army.

Rep. John W. Jenrette, a South Carolina Democrat, has been convicted of bribery in the FBI Abscam operation.

Many citizens feel that it is high time that Congress did something concrete toward stemming some of the excesses and abuses of recent years. It would not be fair, however, to judge all congressmen by the misdeeds of a minority. In fact, some political scientists suggest that the record of Congress is probably good when compared to the activities of the past.

"I believe that from the 19th century and up until around World War II, things were a lot worse," writes Professor Norman J. Ornstein of Catholic university, a close observer of Congress. "Congress is a lot cleaner now, probably cleaner than it's ever been." He adds that, in the past, there was much greater visible alcoholism, wilder sexual escapades and "clearly a lot more bribery."

Oridinary citizens have little to judge Congress by except for its record and the performance of its members as depicted in the press and on radio and television. We believe that most congressmen are decent, law-abiding citizens who would compare favorably with any other group. It is imperative, however, that they personally maintain high standards and that cases of doubtful ethics are handled swiftly and firmly.

MPIRG Suing Nader?

Following is from the "Statewatch" publication of the Minnesota Public Interest Research group (MPIRG):

Is a watchdog agency needed to keep tabs on Ralph Nader's own conglomerate? A consumer's complaint directed to MPIRG raised that question recently.

It all started when Joe Tepley, a retired St. Paul union man well over 70, contacted Monte Bute of MPIRG's state office regarding a new study titled "The Corporate Lobbies." Tepley was impressed with a review of the study and wanted to pass it on to some of his friends and colleagues.

Bute directed him where to obtain a copy of the study and Tepley ordered it May 12 at the advertised cost of $10.

Two weeks later, Tepley called Bute wondering why the copy hadn't arrived yet and Bute advised him that the mailorder process probably delayed it by several weeks.

After two months, Tepley still didn't have his copy and wrote to Nader's Public Citizen organization, who was marketing the study. They informed him that the study cost $25, not $10, and would he kindly remit $15 more.

Tepley was irate and demanded his money back. Two months passed and still no results.

Tepley contacted Bute once more and he, in turn, contacted Public Citizen. A typographical error was responsible for the advertised price of $10, they said. No matter, said Bute, send the book anyway. They refused.

Following Public Citizen's advice, Bute contacted Big Business Day, which also had a hand in the study. The response there was that Nader had thought the study was a good fundraiser and had raised the price to $25.

Upon Big Business Day's offer to return Tepley's check, Bute informed him that Tepley didn't want the check back, but instead wanted a copy of the study at its advertised price of $10.

After much haggling, Big Business Day relented and assured Bute that Tepley would receive his copy of the study.

Two weeks later, Tepley called Bute and complained that the book still hadn't arrived, who in turn, called Public Citizen again.

No, they replied, only Big Business Day could send the book. Big Business Day then responded that they had decided to send the check back instead of the book, at which time Bute demanded the book, not the check, be sent, and threatened legal action.

Again, Big Business promised delivery of the book.

At press time, Tepley still did not have his copy and MPIRG was contemplating legal action.

Old Song . . . . New Tune

Following editorial is from the Milbank (S.D.) Herald Advance:

The Buy at Home song is one that is sung many times in local newspapers — many times on occasions when the editorial writer is at a loss for words on other subjects. It's a theme that can be trotted out regularly without danger of being repreated too often.

However, sometimes in the repeating, the message is dulled and it falls on insensitive ears. The reader thinks to himself, "Here we go again" and decides to skip on to another article.

But, this little essay on the subject might shed new light on an otherwise tired theme because it deals with something that actually happened. . . something that this editorial writer has never before seen or heard in years of attending board meetings in the community.

A Milbank city councilman, Duane Winquist by name, actually came right out recently and said, "We should instruct our city employees to buy city supplies at home, whenever they can."

He then went on to say something to the effect that it is tax dollars generated at home that pay the bills and city salaries. If in our for-the-city buying, we don't support local businesses, how can we expect anyone else to.

Good point and well said, Mr. Winquist.

It is a germ of thought that many people, including even local businessmen, don't seem to understand. In a town this size, there has to be a lot of mutual support in order for people to survive.

Yes, indeed, sometimes local prices are higher than at discount stores forty or a hundred miles away. But this is an isolated spot and freight is costly. The trade area is not huge and many merchants cannot buy in the volume that their competitors miles away manage so nicely.

We, too, can make quite a case for buying away from home and we have heard all the lingo that people use to rationalize this habit many times.

But traveling miles to save pennies usually won't pay for the trip and the only justification for taking the drive is to view it as a sort of recreation, which it is for many people. But it's short-sighted in its outlook and the long-range effect is not good for the community.

So, as Mr. Winquist has said, "Buy at home, if you possibly can.

If you like Milbank, and that may be one of the reasons you are still living here, in the long run, you won't be sorry.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Two women boarding an airliner stopped by the flight attendant. "Young lady," one said, "you tell the pilot not to go faster than sound. We want to talk."

Pocketing a $25 fee, the fortune teller informed her patron that he was entitled to ask two questions. "But twenty-five dollars!" the man exclaimed. "Isn't that a lot of money for just two questions?" "Yes, it is," the medium agreed. "Now you may ask the second question."

Wife: "Listen to this, honey. Your horoscope says not to be angry with a loved one because she's extravagant."

Husband: "What does your horoscope say?"

Wife: "Be extravagant."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The Wisdom of Big Brother V

In case you missed the June edition of FDA Consumer, it began with a letter from 12-year-old Terry Jacobs to the FDA stating that he normally drinks at least two cans of diet soda a day. Terry had heard that saccharin used as a sweetener in soda could cause bladder cancer within 10 years, so in his letter he asked: "I don't particularly want to drop dead on my 22nd birthday. Could you please send me some information about recent "rumors" regarding saccharin?

The young man's inquiry received special attention. FDA Commissioner Jere Goyan personally responded with a long letter explaining that, despite some disagreement, the FDA believes saccharin might cause cancer and that Terry may be "flirting with trouble" by drinking two cans daily. The Commissioner then assured Terry that taking his personal time to answer the boy's letter "was worth it because we were talking about you and the millions of young people like you."

Well, not quite. According to Charles Sieb, reporter for The Wall Street Journal, young Terry never wrote the FDA. His letter was a fake, fabricated by the agency as a means of making their case against saccharin. FDA maintains that it had received a similar letter. But Edward Frantel, president of Seven-up Co., a unit of Philip Morris Inc., called the entire episode a "sham" and vigorously disputed the assertion that saccharin causes cancer. He noted: "I was under the impression that the events of the 70's had resulted in an upgrading of our political appointees. It appears I was mistaken."

Thanks... But No Thinks

Oklahoma officials have decided to turn down federal grants totaling $1 million for an education program, because it costs them $3 to administer every $1 from Washington. Dr. Dan Hobbs, vice chancellor for planning, told the state's regents the acceptance of the funds would require Oklahoma to carry out follow-up reports on 27,000 students annually who participate in the program. He estimated that paperwork alone would gobble up at least 80 per cent of the $1 million the state would receive and noted that state discretion in using the funds is almost nil.

Thanks, Oklahoma, we needed that.

Memo From OSHA to Fire Department: Drop Dead

OSHA, which is coming to be known as the Obstacle to Safety, Health and Achievement, recently went out of its way to polish its image as the most counter-productive agency in government. Created to protect workers on the job, what do you think it did in California recently when fire fighters rescued a man from a caved-in sewer excavation? It reprimanded them for going into a trench whose walls had not been fortified by metal-to-metal jack screw shorings. It also cited the fire fighters for entering the trench without any advance excavation training.

As Don Skinner, chief of the Moraga, California, Fire Department asked: "What were we supposed to do, let the man sit there while we go find shoring from some unknown place that meets every code?"

Yup.

In Stubbornness and Stupidity We Trust

Despite the public's earlier cool reception to the quarter-sized Susan B. Anthony dollar, coined in honor of the famous American feminist, the government has gone ahead and minted 800 million of the Anthony dollars anyway. To overcome any public rejection, the U.S. Postal Service has been ordered to force-feed 250,000 of the coins as change to the public each day. If people don't like it, that's tough. Their only recourse is to fill out complaint cards expressing their dissatisfaction. In other words, you accept the change or fill out paperwork. Fair trade?

Senator Bill Roth, of Delaware, also discovered that to promote the coins the government is spending well over $600,000 on an ad campaign. The package features pamphlets and suggestions for holding Susan B. Anthony parties, bingo parties to give away the money and a poetry contest for the new coin.

A Billion Here, A Billion There... It's Only Money

The Republican Study Committee in Congress recently itemized 107 selected federal recommendations issued between January, 1979, and July, 1980, regarding specific unnecessary federal expenditures resulting from waste, fraud or mismanagement.

Total: Thirty-four billion, four hundred eighty-four million, seven hundred sixty-four thousand, eight hundred ninety-four dollars.

Nonetheless, it is anticipated that Uncle Sam, starved for funds, will increase taxes this fiscal year by $86 billion.

Support For Russian Grain Embargo Drops

Support for the Russian grain embargo invoked by President Carter in January 1980 has declined substantially in recent months, according to a PROBE public opinion poll conducted by Mid-Continent Surveys, Inc., Twin Cities marketing research firm.

Less than half of those polled in August indicated support for the embargo, compared with a support level of about two-thirds in February — a month after the embargo went into effect.

Reasons given by those opposed to the embargo were the potential harmful effect upon U.S. farmers, and the ability of the Russians to obtain grain elsewhere. Proponents of the embargo cited the need for the U.S. to have taken an aggressive stance on the matter.

The question wording and results were:

"As you may know, after Russia sent troops into Afghanistan, President Carter took a number of economic steps to withhold American products and technology from Russia. One of these steps was an embargo on grain shipments. In your opinion, was this a wise course of action, or not?"

Yes, wise — February 1980 — 68 per cent; August 1980 — 48 per cent; no, not wise — 16 per cent and 33 per cent; and don't know — 16 per cent and 19 per cent.

In both February and August, there was considerably higher approval of the embargo among metropolitan area residents than among outstate residents. In August, those who said they were likely to vote for Carter in the 1980 presidential election were generally more favorable to the grain embargo than were those likely to vote for Ronald Reagan.

PROBE survey data is collected quarterly through in-home interviews with adults. For each survey a different sample of approximately 1,000 households is scientifically selected, providing almost virtual certainty that at the time the survey was taken answers given by all Minnesota adults to the same questions would have been within three percentage points either way of the survey percentages, the survey firm said.

Gov. Quie's Column

Fall has arrived and with it has come questions about availability of heating fuel for the 1980-81 winter season.

The outbreak of fighting between Iran and Iraq has brought new uncertainties about U.S. supply of foreign oil. However, the Minnesota energy agency has indicated that these international events will not have any immediate impact on Minnesota energy supplies. Minnesota should have adequate supplies of home heating fuel this winter.

There are two reasons why I am optimistic about our winter supply of heating fuel.

One, Koch Refining company, a major supplier of Minnesota crude oil, won its case in federal district court restoring a first priority rating for allocations of Canadian crude. This court decision helps to secure a stable supply of crude to Minnesota. Had Koch lost and a second priority been placed upon the company, Minnesota may have received 18,000 barrels per day less than under priority one status.

Two, the new Koch-Williams pipeline project is proceeding on schedule. It should be partially completed by Jan. 1, 1981 and fully operational by Aug. 1, 1981. The pipeline will have an initial capacity of 130,000 barrels per day. The crude will be used by both Twin Cities refineries, Koch and Ashland.

This pipeline was laid in Missouri and along existing pipeline cooridor through Iowa. The additional oil will be pumped through a large-size existing pipe in Minnesota. We will have more crude without new pipeline construction in our own state at this time.

We also will have enough federal energy assistance funds to help Minnesota's poor pay their heating bills. Legislation for the federal funds is working its way through Congress. Minnesota could receive as much as $73 million in energy assistance funds. This is more than twice the amount spent in Minnesota last year.

While energy supplies look good for this winter, Minnesota will have to soon make preparations to meet the growing energy demand.

Minnesota energy agency officials have presented me with their biennial energy report. Their research shows that in the late 1980s, Minnesota energy demand will surpass available supplies of traditional fuels.

To help meet our future energy needs the Energy Agency has recommended three courses of action:

One, increase traditional energy supplies. As mentioned earlier in this column, Minnesota this year has achieved two goals toward more stable traditional energy supplies: the re-establishment of a first priority rating for Canadian crude and the near completion of the Koch-Williams pipeline.

Two, conservation. With my strong support Minnesota has developed an effective home weatherization program for low income households. More than 16,000 homes owned by the poor and elderly were insulated, weather stripped and caulked during the past two years. I have also encouraged energy audits and retrofitting of state buildings, schools and county court houses.

Gasoline consumption is down 10 per cent in the second quarter of 1980 in Minnesota. Continued conservation measures by the motoring public must be encouraged.

Three, development of alternative energy sources. Minnesota's alternative energy future appears best in biomass, peat and district heating, according to the energy agency, with solar and wind also playing a role.

Undoubtedly, energy will remain a major state concern for years to come. As I have during my first two years as governor, I will continue to place a high priority on energy matters, to prepare Minnesota for its energy future.

Parents Of UND Students Meet In Crookston

Parents, it's fall semester, do you know where your children are?

If the answer is, "enrolled at the University of North Dakota," University President Thomas J. Clifford would like to have a word with you.

Clifford and a team of UND faculty and staff have scheduled a Parents Outreach meeting for Crookston, beginning at 7 p.m. October 30 in the Best Western Motel.

Parents of UND students from the Crookston region will receive an invitation in the mail although Clifford emphasizes that anyone in the community is welcome and encouraged to attend.

Area hosts Mr. and Mrs. Allen Chesley will join the UND group in the evening presentation.

This is the seventh year Clifford and company have traveled to communities in and around North Dakota in efforts to provide a better understanding of the University to parents of current and prospective students and other interested persons.

Brief sessions about financial aids, academic programs and career placement as well as a slide show about UND will be presented by faculty and staff members. President Clifford will address current issues and directions and future plans affecting UND.

Parents and participants are encouraged to make comments to the University officials and to ask questions about the school in the informal setting.

Parents Outreach Program has been an annual event since it began in 1974 during the oil embargo crisis. Gasoline shortage made travel an impracticability for many people and signaled an end to the then-traditional Parents Day at UND.

Traveling programs met with favorable response, Clifford said, and they became an annual event.

THOMAS J. CLIFFORD, president of the University of North Dakota (UND) and a team of UND faculty and staff have scheduled a Parents Outreach meeting in Crookston at 7 p.m. October 30 at the Best Western Motel. Meeting will help provide a better understanding of the University to parents of current and prospective students. Financial aids, academic programs, and career placement will be topics of concern.

Dr. Heinrichs Is Appointed Assistant Prof

Richard W. Heinrichs, M.D., has been appointed a clinical assistant professor in the department of family practice and community health with the University of Minnesota. According to the announcement from Edward W. Ciriacy, M.D., of the university, this appointment is made because Dr. Heinrichs is responsible for the family practice residency program at the Falls clinic in Thief River Falls.

Through the residency program, Dr. Heinrichs and the Falls clinic provide rural practice opportunity to physicians in the family practice program. During the current year, six physicians have spent at least one month at the Falls clinic under the program. Five physicians are already scheduled for one month rotations in 1981.

In his announcement Dr. Ciriacy states that "by opening your practice to medical students, you are making a significant contribution to our training program in family practice."

Frost-Covered Bridges Create Road Hazard

Motorists should be alert to the danger of frost-covered bridges at this time of year, warns the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Frost — sometimes not visible — can form any time that the bridge deck temperature is below freezing.

Drivers should cautiously approach bridges, particularly when they look wet or frosty. Slowing down immediately without applying brakes is advised. If one bridge is slippery, look out; the rest are probably slippery too, frequently when the roadway is not.

Volunteers For Heart Attack Study Needed

Volunteers are urgently needed to help combat America's number one killer, atherosclerosis — the disease primarily responsible for heart attacks, strokes and related fatal diseases that account annually for some one million deaths or 53 per cent of all deaths in the United States.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute is conducting a program at three participating medical institutions, including the University of Minnesota, to determine whether lowering blood cholesterol levels will reduce the risk of heart attacks. The University is seeking persons 28 through 64 years of age, who have had only one heart attack in the past five years. All such persons are asked to call the University of Minnesota Hyperlipidemia study collect at 612-376-4494 for more information.

Hilton To Speak On Bioethics At UMC Thurs.

"Decisions, Decisions: Our Growing Control Over Life and Death," is the topic of a speech to be given by Bruce Hilton Thursday (October 23) at 8 p.m. at the Kiehle auditorium, University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC).

Author, ethicist, and activist, Hilton is director of the National Center for Bioethics, an independent, nonprofit "think tank" founded in 1973 to encourage discussion of the new problems in biology and medicine.

His knowledge of the test-tube babies, the Karen Quinlan dilemma, and many other bioethics cases comes first-hand, from personal experience.

He edited the text, "Ethical Issues in Human Genetics," and worked in England with Dr. R.G. Edwards ("godfather" of the first test-tube baby) on ethical guidelines for the new genetics.

Hilton tells the story of the biomedical revolution with drama, warmth, and humor, and follows it with a lively question-and-answer session. He tells what's happening, and shows audiences how they can use the new biology rather than becoming its victims — equipping them to make the crucial new decisions.

Hilton's program, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by UMC's Concerts and Lectures committee.

Give Memorials To Heart Fund

Memorial gifts have been given to the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate in honor of Larry Runger, George Stewart and Thomas Truedson, former Pennington county residents.

"Through the heart association's memorial program, a way is offered for us to both express our feeling and also help fight heart and blood vessel diseases — the state's largest cause of death and disability," said Mrs. Drotts, heart memorial gifts chairman.

Conversion Point Spells Difference

For the second consecutive year the failure to come up with conversion points against East Grand Forks cost the Lincoln high school football team a shot at Northwest Athletic Conference title. The Green Wave beat the Prowlers 7-6 Friday on the strength of Jeff Strandell's extra point kick. Thief River Falls took the ensuing kickoff and marched downfield for a matching touchdown, but failed to add the extra points. And it eliminated the Prowlers from the NWAC pennant race.

A year ago Thief River Falls was in the same position — needing a win over East Grand Forks to go into the 1979 season finale against Crookston with a chance to gain a Northwest Athletic Conference title tie. But while both teams scored three times in that game, the Prowlers came up empty-handed on all three conversion tries. The Green Wave won it 20-18 because John Roche was successful on both of his extra point kicks. East Grand Forks went for a two-pointer after wrestling the lead away from Thief River Falls in the final minute of play.

Extra points hasn't been a Thief River Falls strong point this fall. The Prowlers have been successful on just eight of 23 conversion attempts, a shaky 35 per cent success figure. And the method of success or failure are remarkably similar: Thief River Falls is 3-for-7 when trying to kick for a single point; 2-for-7 passing for two points; and 3-for-9 trying to add the two points on the ground.

Friday they had two shots at it when East Grand Forks was called for a pass interference penalty in the end zone on the first try. A dive play from the 1½-yard line the second time failed to reach the end zone.

Actually the East Grand Forks game is the first one the Prowlers have lost this year because of their failure to add the conversion point. They were 0-1 in extra point attempts at Grand Rapids, but lost that one 30-6, and they were 0-for-2 at Bemidji, but losing by a considerably bigger 26-12 margin.

Even in winning the conversion attempts haven't been all that critical for the Prowlers — until Friday.

TRF Has Final Game Incentive

Incentive for a share of the Northwest Athletic Conference title and a post-season Minnesota State High School League Class A state playoff berth will be gone for the Prowlers when they close out their 1980 football season Thursday at Crookston, but the Pirates themselves will present enough of a challenge that getting the players "up" for the game shouldn't be much of a problem for Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz and his staff.

Just the renewel of the Thief River Falls-Crookston rivalry is a good start. Then take into consideration the chance to upset the state's No. 2-ranked Class A football team, and an opportunity to spoil the Pirates' bid for back-to-back unbeaten seasons.

Crookston did that to Thief River Falls back in 1972 when the Pirates ended the Prowlers' 19-game winning streak with a 36-20 decision in the final game of the year. That loss cost the Prowlers a second consecutive perfect season, an out-right Northwest Athletic Conference title; and a post-season playoff berth.

In addition, that 1972 Crookston victory marked the turning point of the football series between the two rivals. Thief River Falls beat Crookston eight straight times from 1964-71. But the Pirates, beginning with their 1972 victory, have beaten the Prowlers seven times in their last eight meetings.

Crookston won 21-0 in 1973, 34-20 in 1974 and 12-6 in 1975 before Thief River Falls prevailed 22-6 in 1976. But the Pirates have won the last three meetings — 25-6 in 1977, 21-0 in 1978 and 28-8 a year ago en route to the NWAC title.

Thief River Falls is already assured of its first winning season since 1974. But 6-3 sounds a lot better than 5-4.

Scott Straus (68) and Robbie Schneider (86) threw blocks for the Green Wave as the Prowlers closed in, including Rick Gobell (60), Mark Harder (54), Rob Jorstad (64) and Scott Wiebolt (11). Fri., Oct. 24 — East Grand Forks at Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls' dreams of a season-ending Northwest Athletic Conference championship showdown with arch-rival Crookston were spoiled Friday when the Prowlers dropped a disappointing 7-6 decision to East Grand Forks on the snowy, wind-swept Thief River Falls athletic field.

"One point and we could have been playing Crookston for a playoff berth," snapped dejected Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz as he walked off the field. Instead, the Pirates, who will host the Prowlers Thursday to close out the 1980 regular season schedule, will get that Minnesota State High School League Class A state playoff berth as the already-crowned NWAC champion following a 34-14 victory over Bemidji Friday.

"We should have won the game," sighed Schmitz. "But we didn't make the big plays when we needed it. We just didn't move the ball when we had to."

Thief River Falls was certainly in position to win and set up that before-mentioned title showdown. But even with a stiff northwesterly wind at their backs that provided excellent field position in the fourth quarter, the Prowlers twice came up short on fourth-and-short yardage situations inside the East Grand Forks 20, then were forced backwards on a last chance opportunity at the end.

Beginning at their own 38 following an East Grand Forks punt late in the third quarter, the Prowlers marched 50 yards on a 13-play, five-minute drive that reached the East Grand Forks 12. But Thief River Falls had to get to the 10 to keep the drive alive with another first down. On fourth-and-two, fullback Scott Kezar lost his footing on the rain-slickened field after taking the handoff and wound up losing a yard with 10:01 remaining.

Thief River Falls' defense held, forcing East Grand Forks' Jeff Strandell to punt into the face of the strong wind. He did well in getting off a 21-yarder that put the Prowlers back to the 43 with 7:48 left.

Tom Ose quickly ate up 16 yards around the right side to the 27. But three straight inside runs by Kezar gained 9½ yards and not the 10 needed for the drive-sustaining first down. Scott Wiebolt hesitated on the quarterback sneak, looking for a place to dive, but instead found a wall of East Grand Forks defenders that stacked the play up at the 17 for no gain with 6:03 on the clock.

Again, Thief River Falls' defense held. And again Strandell did wonders in getting off a 28-yard punt from his own end zone after a penalty backed the Green Wave up to their own five-yard line.

Sitting on the East Grand Forks 33, Thief River Falls still had 3:38 to reach the end zone. But two carries by Wiebolt netted just two yards; a sweep by Ose was busted up for an eight-yard loss; and Wiebolt was sacked for a 13-yard loss back to the Thief River Falls 48 on a fourth-and-16 desperation pass play.

East Grand Forks then ate up the final 1:56 for a 5-3 record.

"Lots of defense," smiled East Grand Forks coach Gary Berg. "Thief River had the upper hand on offense in the second half, but we came up with the big defensive plays."

The scoring was done during a five-minute span in the second quarter.

Strandell, whose strong throwing ability has been held in check by the weather the past two weeks, completed just one pass Friday, but it was a big 45-yard gain that set up the East Grand Forks touchdown — thanks to runningback Mike Williams, who crossed through the middle on a short pass pattern, then cut back against the grain to turn what might have been a 10-yard gain into a first down at the Thief River Falls six-yard line.

Paul Bothun scored on the next play, even though he appeared to drop the ball before he reached the end zone on the straight-ahead dive. The officials, however, ruled he broke the plane of the end zone before fumbling — a touchdown. Strandell's pop-fly conversion dropped over the cross bar for a 7-0. It was his 14th successful conversion kick of the year.

"That extra point; I never dreamt it would be that important," said Berg, shaking his head. "I thought there would be more scoring. Thief River has broken a lot of big plays this year, and we've given up a few."

But Thief River Falls' only points came on the Prowlers' possession after the East Grand Forks touchdown — a 69-yard; 12-play drive that narrowed the gap to 7-6 with just 37 seconds left in the first half.

A blunder by the Green Wave, who were caught trying to get punt return men on and off the field after realizing the Prowlers were going for a first down on a fourth-and-two from theor own 39, gave Thief River Falls a gift first down to get the drive going. Wiebolt broke an 18-yarder on a busted play for a first down at the 25, and four plays later Ose reached the right corner of the end zone with an option pitch from the 12.

But even with two chances, the Prowlers failed to go ahead on the two-point conversion attempt. An interference penalty on an incomplete pass on the first try gave the Prowlers another shot from the 1½-yard line, but the middle was clogged and Kezar was stopped short of the goal line.

The loss dropped Thief River Falls' season record to 5-3. "We should have won the game," repeated Schmitz as he headed for the lockerroom.

Itasca Is 31-3 MJCAA Winner Over Northland

Northland community college football team saw its record slip to 1-4-1 Saturday with a 31-3 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division loss to Itasca.

It was a frustrating night for the Northmen who lost five fumbles and four times failed to put points on the board after driving inside the Itasca five-yard line.

"I was rather disappointed," admitted Northland coach John Helley. "We just couldn't get it over the goal line. Our offensive blocking broke down."

It was a stunning first quarter touchdown that set the tone for the game, a 7:30 p.m. contest at Coleraine instead of the originally announced 1:30 kickoff at Grand Rapids. The Vikings, after receiving the opening kickoff, lost yardage on their first two snaps before breaking off a 79-yard third down touchdown run.

"That first touchdown really broke our spirits," noted Helley. "We thought we could hold them on defense and get the ball in good position for our offense."

It stayed 7-0 until Itasca scored 10 points in the final 30 seconds of the first half when a touchdown was followed by a Northland fumble and a half-ending 42-yard field goal.

"Our fumbles set up their points," explained Helley.

Northland's only points came on a 28-yard Jeff Gobell field goals in the third quarter. The Thief River Falls sophomore is now 4-for-8 in the field goal department this fall, and 5-for-5 on his conversion kicks for a team-leading 17 points.

It was the fourth straight week the Northland offense failed to score a touchdown.

Jeff Steuck and Howard Belto alternated at quarterback for the Northmen, with Steuck setting up several scoring opportunities by completing 11 of 26 passes for 180 yards. Belto ran the Northland wishbone that by Helley's own admission, "did not gain much yardage."

In fact, Northland's leading ball carrier was Duane Kjono, who went 58 yards with a fake punt. He also punted eight times for a 39-yard average, including a 49-yarder.

Linebacker Paul Klecker led the Northland defense with eight unassisted tackles, helping out on seven other stops, coming up with a fumble recovery and an interception. Defensive back Paul Wilcox matched Klecker's eight unassisted tackles, and also had an interception.

The Northmen will host Brainerd Saturday at 1:30 p.m. on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Doe Permits Mailed By State DNR

Deer hunters who were successful in obtaining a permit to take antlerless deer (doe and fawn) through a computerized drawing conducted by the Department of Natural Resources will be notified of their good fortune during the next few days.

DNR license officials said notices started going out in the mail on Wednesday, Oct. 8, to winners in the drawing.

Approximately 185,000 hunters applied for the 56,250 permits to be issued.

Pirates Begin Playoffs Vs. Hermantown

Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston will host Iron Range Seaway Conference titlist Hermantown Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in a first round Minnesota State High School League Class A state football playoff game.

The Pirates wrapped up their second straight NWAC title Friday by combining a 34-14 victory over Bemidji with a 7-6 Thief River Falls loss to East Grand Forks.

Crookston, unbeaten in eight starts, will close out its 1980 regular season Thursday by hosting Thief River Falls. Hermantown, 6-2, will finish at Bemidji that night. Ironically, a Bemidji victory over Crookston Friday would have given the Lumberjacks the NWAC pennant, meaning Bemidji and Hermantown would have been paired in a Thursday night regular season finale, then meet again in the playoffs just five days later.

Winner of the Crookston-Hermantown game will face the Mid-State Conference champion — either Aitkin or Park Rapids — in the Class A quarterfinals later next week. Currently co-leaders in the Mid-State, the Gobblers (6-2 overall) and Panthers (5-3) meet in a season-ending title-deciding showdown this week at Park Rapids.

Others already assured of Class A state playoff berths include West Central Conference champion Montevideo, a 30-6 winner over Fergus Falls of the NWAC Friday; and St. James of the South Central Conference.

In addition to Thief River Falls at Crookston and Hermantown at Bemidji, the final week NWAC slate will have East Grand Forks at Fergus Falls.

Joel Carlson Bowls 300 Game At Family Bowl

Joel Carlson is a good bowler. Tuesday night he was perfect. Carlson, one of the most familiar names in Thief River Falls bowling circles, put his name into the record books with a 300 game while bowling for Northland Pro Shop in the Business League.

It's only the second sanctioned 300 game in the 22-year history of the Thief River Falls Family Bowl. The first came less than one year ago when Jarvis Olson accomplished the feat Nov. 27, 1979.

A PERFECT 300 game was bowled by Joel Carlson Tuesday in the Business League at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls. Carlson, who carries a 206 league average, rolled a 208-300-191 for a 699 series. It was only the second 300 sanctioned game in the history of the Family Bowl.

"It's kind of unbelievable — they all fell down!" exclaimed Carlson. "I've had several games before where I've thrown the ball well and could have gotten 12 strikes, but I've always left one standing here and there."

Carlson's 300 was no flash-in-the-pan performance. He carries an enviable 206 average while bowling in four different leagues. Joel, who by his own count bowls 35-to-40 games per week during the 30-or-so weeks of the bowling season, is a member of Carlson's TV Sales & Service in the Monday Mixed League; Northland Pro Shop in the Tuesday Business League; Simplot Soil-Builders in the Tuesday Late Shift; and Northland Pro Shop again in the Thursday Commercial League. He'll also get in as many as 20 practice games per week.

"I enjoy it," says Carlson of his busy bowling schedule. He began bowling in 1970 with a 145 average. That climbed to 173 the following year and hovered around that mark until he zoomed above the 190 plateau the past three years. He finished with a 194 average in 1978-79, his best figure ever.

Carlson began Tuesday's Business League competition with a 208, followed by his 300 and then a 191 to narrowly miss the coveted 700 series with a 699. "My level of concentration wasn't quite as sharp in the third game," he admitted as he missed a spare in the tenth game that would have put him in the 700 club for the second time — he hit a 715 during 1979-80 post-season tournament competition. His previous best single game mark was a 279.

In all, Carlson came up with 22 strikes in his three Business League games Tuesday.

The 300, he said, started coming into focus in the seventh game.

"I had a hit in the seventh that was a little high, but they all went down anyway," reported Carlson. "That's when I started to think about it (300). I guess I got nervous in the ninth frame. The other bowlers were stopping to watch. In the tenth it was really quiet — everybody stopped bowling."

"All I was thinking about — other than what foot to move first — was to give it a chance; get it close to the head pin."

Nervous or not, Carlson said he made his best hits of the night on the first two balls in the tenth frame, and when he polished off his final strike there was a round of applause from the crowd to greet him.

Carlson, who has managed to string together 12 consecutive strikes a couple of times but not in one game, says his next goal would be the record 728 three-game series for the men at the Family Bowl, a mark set by Wally DuChamp.

His 300 game will earn Carlson an American Bowling Congress (ABC) ring and patch, and a league patch for bowling 100 pins over his average.

DNR Presents Plans For Thief Lake WMA

Ten-year management plans for the Thief Lake and Hubbel Pond wildlife management areas will be the subject of public meetings scheduled next month in northwestern Minnesota.

Following preplanning public meetings held locally in September, 1979, the Department of Natural Resources' section of wildlife prepared management plans for the two areas.

The 33,255-acre Thief Lake WMA in eastern Marshall county is an outstanding waterfowl area and is also popular for deer and moose hunting. The Hubbel Pond WMA in Becker county, just northeast of Detroit Lakes, is a 2,284-acre unit managed for waterfowl, deer and upland small game.

Hubbel Pond WMA meeting will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the south half of the multi-purpose room of the Detroit Lakes vocational-technical institute located on Highway 34 East.

Meeting for the Thief Lake WMA will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the community center at Middle River.

Copies of the proposed Hubbel Pond WMA plan are available at the DNR section of wildlife in St. Paul, Hubbel Pond WMA headquarters and the DNR wildlife office and the public library in Detroit Lakes.

Thief Lake WMA plans are available at the Thief Lake headquarters, DNR forestry offices in Grygla and Wannaska, the Middle River public school library and the Thief River Falls public library.

Both plans are available at the DNR regional headquarters in Bemidji. Limited copies are available, said officials, so interested persons are asked to review the plans at one of the above locations or check out and return a copy.

Public comments will be accepted at the meetings.

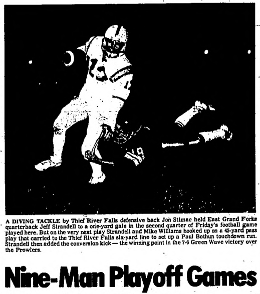
DEFENSIVE TACKLE Wade Hruby of Thief River Falls (66) got an arm on East Grand Forks runningback Robbie Sorenson to slow him up and the Prowlers held him to a short first quarter gain during the Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played on the snowy, rainy, windy Thief River Falls athletic field Friday night. The Green Wave took the Prowlers out of NWAC title contention with a 7-6 victory.



A DIVING TACKLE by Thief River Falls defensive back Jon Stimac held East Grand Forks quarterback Jeff Strandell to a one-yard gain in the second quarter of Friday's football game played here. But on the very next play Strandell and Mike Williams hooked up on a 45-yard pass play that carried to the Thief River Falls six-yard line to set up a Paul Bothun touchdown run. Strandell then added the conversion kick — the winning point in the 7-6 Green Wave victory over the Prowlers.

Tues., Oct. 21 — Oklee at Middle River; Plummer at Grygla; Erskine at Goodridge; Gonvick at Mentor; McIntosh-Winger at Clearbrook.

Final regular season games will be played Tuesday and post-season competition will get underway this weekend for four area nine-man high school football teams.

Already scheduled to appear in post-season play are McIntosh-Winger, assured of at least a title tie in the North Tri County Conference; Kennedy, the Northern Lights Conference champion; and Mount St. Benedict, Agassiz Valley North Conference winner.

The fourth Minnesota State High School League state nine-man playoff berth will go to the Top of the State Conference champion, where a winner will be decided Tuesday when Hallock (6-1) visits Argyle (6-1) and Marshall County Central (6-1) hosts winless Tri-County.

An Argyle win over Hallock will give the Eagles the playoff spot. But a Marshall County Central victory over Tri-County, combined with a Hallock decision over Argyle, would extend the Nordics' season because they beat the Bears 20-13 in conference play earlier this month. At the same time, wins by Argyle and Marshall County Central would produce a title tie, too, but the Eagles would get the playoff berth because of a 26-8 victory over the Nordics. Hallock needs a win over Argyle and a Tri-County upset of Marshall County Central to advance into the playoffs.

Nine-man state playoff games this weekend will be played at Kennedy and Crookston. The Rockets will host the Scots Friday at 7:30 p.m., while the Blue Wave of Mount St. Benedict entertain the Top of the State survivor Saturday at 2 p.m.

Those two winners will meet in the nine-man quarterfinals, a game that must be played by November 1.

A WARNING issued by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) urges Minnesota waterfowl hunters to note the distinct differences between the larger all-white swan (top) — which is a protected bird — and the smaller black wing-tipped snow goose (bottom) — which is a legal target in season. The two birds share the same migration route during the fall waterfowl hunting season and hunters who mistake the swan for a snow goose face a $250 fine.

Minnesota DNR Warns Hunters To Be On The Watch For Swans

Minnesota waterfowl hunters have been reminded by the Department of Natural Resources that as November approaches they should expect to see protected whistling swans. Sportsmen should be aware of how to distinguish whistling swans, a nongame species, from snow geese, a game species, so the wild swans will not be accidentally killed said wildlife officials.

Whistling swans are all-white birds with extremely long necks and a body length of over four feet from bill to tail. They weigh an average of 16 pounds and have loud deep resonant calls.

Snow geese are white with black wing tips, relatively short necks and body lengths less than two and a half feet from bill to tail. They weigh from five to six pounds each. Snow goose calls are short high-pitched yelps which have given rise to the nickname, "the barking dogs of the North".

Whistling swans migrate late in the fall and usually pass through Minnesota in November on their way from nesting grounds in the Arctic and Alaska to wintering grounds along the east coast.

Populations of whistling swans have risen substantially in recent years.

Fine for killing a whistling swan can be as much as $250, officials noted.

Pamida Revises Proposal For Owner Change

Pamida, Inc., Omaha-based operator of Pamida Discount centers, announced that a revised proposal will be made concerning the previously announced plan for the sale of substantially all of the company's assets and operations.

The new proposal includes a provision for an increase of $1 per share, from $5 to $6, in the amount which would be offered to shareholders of the company who tender their shares to the company after the asset sale is completed.

The revised proposal reflects discussions between the principals involved in the proposed transaction and a special committee of the company's outside directors who were appointed by the company's board of directors to review the transaction.

Other new terms of the revised proposal will include appraisal rights for dissenting shareholders and opportunities for shareholders who do not tender their shares to have their shares redeemed by the company for cash at later dates.

The proposed transaction is subject, among other things, to approval of the board of directors of the company, the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the company's unaffiliated shareholders who vote on the transaction, preparation and submission of definitive documents and proxy statement, completion of financing arrangements, and certain regulatory and other approvals or consents.

Pamida's present schedule for the proposed transaction calls for completion of the sale in January of 1981 and commencement of the tender offer shortly thereafter.

The purchaser in the proposed transaction will be a newly organized corporation whose shares will be owned by an employees' stock ownership trust to be established for the exclusive benefit of such new corporation's employees. In addition to the payment of the cash portion of the purchase price for the company's assets, such new corporation will assume substantially all of the company's liabilities and other obligations existing at the time of the closing of the proposed transaction.

The proposal contemplates that, after the sale of its present operating assets to the new corporation, Pamida will register and thereafter conduct its affairs as a registered investment company under the Investment Company act of 1940 and ultimately will invest substantially all of its available funds exclusively in interest-yielding securities which will produce income which is exempt from federal income tax.

The proposal also contemplates that the company's present senior management group generally will occupy similar positions with the new corporation which will acquire Pamida's operating assets. However, D. J. Witherspoon, presently chairman of the board of Pamida, and L. E. Wegener, presently vice chairman of the board, have indicated their intentions not to become associated with the new corporation.

Assuming the proposed transaction actually is consummated, Pamida's discount store business thereafter will be continued under the "Pamida" name by the new corporation substantially in the manner in which such business is now being conducted.

Composting Leaves Forms Soil Enricher

The brilliant fall-color show is almost over, and much of Minnesota's autumn splendor is heaped on the ground, waiting to be raked. Since open burning is only allowed under special circumstances in Minnesota, most people give their leaves to trash collectors for disposal in landfills.

But many Minnesotans have discovered composting — a way to use dead leaves as a resource rather than burning or burying them in the state's brimming landfills. Composting is a process by which bacteria break down yard and food wastes, turning them into a rich, organic soil-conditioner.

If you are a beginning composter, start collecting leaves, grass clippings and vegetable wastes (peelings, etc.) in an area of your backyard protected from children and pets. Keep the pile moist and turn it about twice a week through the fall.

Start turning the pile again when it thaws in the spring. Additional material should be added through the summer to ensure a continuous supply of compost for your garden. Since temperatures at the center of the compost pile reach 140 degrees to 160 degrees F., the wastes will be sterilized and any insects will be killed. If tended properly, compost heaps will not smell or attract pests.

To find out more about composting, check the organic gardening section at your local library. Communities interested in starting a leaf composting center may obtain a guide book from the Minnesota pollution control agency, 1935 West County Road B2, Roseville 55113, (612) 297-2710.

Most Think Nursing Home Care Is Good

Minnesota residents think that the quality of care in nursing homes is "good to excellent", according to the results of a survey conducted by the Minnesota association of health care facilities (MAHCF).

A total of 4,233 persons were interviewed at the Minnesota State Fair and were asked "What is your impression of the quality of care in Minnesota nursing homes?" Of that number, 93 per cent responded that the quality of care was fair to excellent, and of those, 63 per cent of the responses were in the "good" and "excellent" category.

Each person was asked whether their opinion was based on what he or she has 'read,' 'heard', or 'experienced.' Majority responded that their impressions were based on experience. Visiting a nursing home resident was listed as the most common experience, followed by working in a nursing home and volunteering in a nursing home.

Study shows that experience was consistently the most significant factor influencing the public's opinions, regardless of how they rated nursing homes. (Experience outnumbered what was heard by three to one, and what was read by twelve to one.)

Those individuals who rated nursing homes the highest tended to have the most experience with them. The 51-60 age group had the highest percentage of individuals rating nursing homes excellent and had the greatest percentage of overall experience in nursing homes. The under 20 age group also rated nursing homes extremely high and was the group with the highest percentage of individuals volunteering in them. Study showed that those rating nursing homes good or excellent tended to feel that nursing homes needed fewer regulations imposed on them.

Of the total sample, only six per cent of the individuals rated nursing homes poor. Greatest percentage of those individuals were in the 21-30 age group.

Sharon Klefsaas, director of public information for the Minnesota Association of Health Care Facilities, stressed the point that most of the positive opinions of nursing homes were based on personal experience.

"People who visit nursing homes are beginning to realize that they are a place of hope, rather than despair; that facilities offer caring staff and quality patient care. Often a person is admitted to a nursing home for a period convalescing and then is discharged back to his or her home," she added.

Klefsaas urges those who are interested in knowing more about the services provided in nursing homes and health care facilities to make a point of visiting a facility in their area. "Administrators and their staff members are always willing to give interested persons a tour of the facility and will gladly answer any questions related to long term care," she said.

A pamphlet titled "Thinking about a Nursing Home" is available free of charge from the MAHCF office. To request a pamphlet write or call MAHCF, 2850 Metro Drive, Suite 429, Bloomington, Minnesota, 55420, (612) 854-2844.

SEVERAL EXAMPLES of the pipe carver's art are shown above in about two-thirds actual size. The Indianhead and bear pipes include inlay work for additional decoration with Canadian pipestone of a dark green color used for accent. The eagle talons clutching the pipe bowl are carved individually to add to realism and to reduce weight. On the Indianhead pipe, the hole for tobacco is drilled into the top of the head and the war bonnet is hollowed from the back to reduce weight. The discoloration on the bear's shoulder is a color variation in the stone, adding to the uniqueness of the pipe. All of these pipes were carved by Ed Needham of rural Goodridge.

Record Amount Of Scrap Iron, Steel Reached

Backlog of obsolete iron and steel scrap in the United States — abandoned automobiles, old refrigerators and other discards — has reached a record of more than 700 million tons, a new industrial economic study shows.

Of the total, 133.8 million tons of scrap — almost one-fifth of the national backlog — are located in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Minneosta.

Prepared by Robert R. Nathan associates for the Metal Scrap research and education foundation, the study documented an inventory of 700.3 million tons of scrap available for recycling at the end of 1979.

The amount is an increase of 28.1 million tons over the previous level of 672.2 million tons counted in 1977.

"Once more it has been determined that our nation is literally wasting vast amounts of metal that could be recovered and recycled," stated Barry Hunter, president of the foundation.

"With a backlog of over 700 million tons, we have enough obsolete scrap right now to meet the needs of steel mills and foundries both in the United States and abroad for decades, not counting the additional millions of tons of obsolete scrap being generated each year," he said. The record amount of scrap ever demanded in a single year was 60 million tons in 1974. The following year demand dropped to just 46 million tons.

In 1979, the scrap metal industry recovered 35 million tons of obsolete scrap plus some 23 million tons of industrial scrap from the metal fabricating industries.

Hunter said he is "seriously concerned" about the continuing rise in the scrap metal inventory, and urged that government energy policies be reexamined to allow greater scrap use. Not to do so, he said, is "unsound both economically and environmentally."

Study showed that, in addition to the new 28.1 million ton accumulation, another three million tons disappeared because of corrosion and other losses in 1978 and 1979.

The Nathan study was based on what Hunter said was "a conservative approach" using a concept of potential reserves. Using the "resource base" concept, he said, would place the scrap inventory at more than 933 million tons.

Fifteen major product categories were analyzed in the scrap study. Automobiles and automotive products continued to be the largest single source of scrap, accounting for about 39 per cent of total recoverable obsolete scrap in 1979.

Metal scrap research and education foundation is the research arm of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel. Inc.

Popularity Of Moped Climbs; Sales Up 230%

What can be expected in growth of moped popularity in the U.S. and Minnesota during the next few years?

A Minnesota answer to that was in part provided by the State department of public safety earlier this year when moped registration figures for 1979 showed a 230 per cent increase from 2,385 to 7,877.

An Ohio traffic safety education group has recently issued a general-interest report on history, legal status, popularity and moped safety.

The moped, according to the Ohio study, "is not just a passing fad; it is a transportation alternative that is here to stay, probably in significant numbers. Enactment of moped legislation in three states attests to widespread belief in this fact."

As of now 38 states and the District of Columbia have passed moped laws.

The study lists a number of possible factors in moped crashes including inexperience on the part of the driver, the vehicle's lack of power, low visibility and poorly designed brake controls. Other motorists lack of awareness of and "sometimes hostile attitude toward the moped's presence on the road" is also noted.

The study, which was reviewed at a conference in New Orleans three years ago, had these and other recommendations for adapting cars and trucks for potential collisions with mopeds;

—Redesign of car front ends, "A" pillars (posts between the windshield and the front passenger windows) and top frames to include a less angular profile and an energy-absorbing structure over the surface to soften the impact of a moped operator against the vehicle.

—Truck rejection barriers between the front and rear wheels to prevent a moped and operator from skidding underneath the truck.

—More rounded roof tops, weatherstripping, door hinges and other fixtures designed to avoid their protusion

Proposed Amendments to the Minnesota Constitution

Statement of Purpose and Effect of Amendments

TO: The Voters of Minnesota

The following proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota will be submitted to the voters for their approval or rejection at the November 4, 1980 general election. Each amendment requires a separate vote. If a majority of all who vote in the November 4 election vote "YES", an amendment is adopted. A voter at the election who does not vote on an amendment is in effect voting "NO". Printed here are the proposed amendments as they will appear on the ballot. Following each question is a statement, prepared pursuant to M.S. 3.21 by Attorney General Warren Spannaus, of the purpose and effect of the proposed amendment.

Sincerely,
Joan Anderson Growe
Secretary of State

AMENDMENT NO. 1 — REAPPORTIONMENT: TRANSFER TO A BIPARTISAN COMMISSION

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to transfer, from the legislature to a bipartisan commission the power to draw the boundaries of legislative and congressional districts?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 588 Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would transfer the power to draw the boundaries of congressional and legislative districts from the Minnesota Legislature to a bipartisan reapportionment commission.
2. A reapportionment commission would be appointed once a decade in each year ending in "1" and whenever else a court so required. Every commission would consist of nine members with no more than two selected by legislators of any one political party. The four legislative appointees would appoint the remaining five members by unanimous agreement.
3. The proposed amendment includes standards for reapportionment plans. Equality of population would be the controlling factor in drawing district boundaries. Contiguous and compact districts would be mandated. District boundaries would have to follow local government boundaries and, wherever practicable, natural and manmade physical boundaries. Personal or political favoritism in reapportionment plans would be prohibited.
4. Approval of a reapportionment plan would require the votes of at least six commission members. Deadlines would be imposed on the reapportionment process. The Minnesota Supreme Court could adopt a reapportionment plan if a commission failed to do so within applicable time limits.
5. The Legislature could enact laws to implement the reapportionment provisions of the Minnesota Constitution.

In Chapter 588 the Legislature also approved the 1980 Reapportionment Implementation Act, which will go into effect only if voters approve the reapportionment commission amendment to the Minnesota Constitution at the 1980 general election. The Act contains a definition of "political party," qualifications for commission members, deadlines and procedures for creation of commissions and commencement of duties, a provision for removal of commission members, deadlines for development of reapportionment plans, mechanical requirements for plans and other details of the reapportionment process. The Act provides that the Minnesota Supreme Court shall adopt a reapportionment plan if the Supreme Court or a federal court invalidates a reapportionment plan.

Article IV Section 2 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"The number of members who compose the senate and house of representatives shall be prescribed by law. The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state in proportion to the population thereof."

If the amendment is adopted, Article IV Section 2 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~ and additions by italics) as follows:

"The number of members who compose the senate and house of representatives shall be prescribed by law. ~~The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state in proportion to the population thereof.~~ A law changing the number of senators or representatives shall be effective on January 1 of the next year ending in the number one following enactment of the law and shall govern general elections held under an apportionment plan that becomes effective after that date."

Article IV Section 3 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"At its first session after each enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional and legislative districts. Senators shall be chosen by single districts of convenient contiguous territory. No representative district shall be divided in the formation of a senate district. The senate districts shall be numbered in a regular series."

If the amendment is adopted, Article IV Section 3 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~ and additions by italics):

"~~At its first session after each enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional and legislative districts. Senators shall be chosen by single districts of convenient contiguous territory. No representative district shall be divided in the formation of a senate district. The senate districts shall be numbered in a regular series.~~ The legislature shall not prescribe the boundaries for the districts of senators and representatives or for the districts of representatives in the congress of the United States."

If the amendment is adopted, the following Article XV will be added to the Minnesota Constitution:

ARTICLE XV
REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION

"Section 1. (REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION.) In each year ending in the number one, or when required by court order, a reapportionment commission shall be established to draw the boundaries of legislative and congressional districts.

The commission shall consist of nine members who are eligible voters of the state. One member shall be appointed by the speaker of the house and one by the members of the house representing political parties other than the party represented by the speaker. One member shall be appointed by the president of the senate and one by the members of the senate representing political parties other than the party represented by the president. Article IV, section 5 shall not apply to the appointment of these four members of the reapportionment commission. The term "political party" as used in this section shall have the meaning provided by law.

The remaining five members shall be appointed by unanimous agreement of the legislative appointees. The qualifications of these members shall be provided by law.

Members of the commission shall be appointed within the time provided by law but not later than March 15 when the commission is established in a year ending in the number one. The supreme court shall fill any vacancy caused by failure to appoint a member within the time required by law.

Sec. 2. (APPORTIONMENT STANDARDS.) The commission shall draw the boundaries of legislative and congressional districts in accordance with the requirements of this section. There shall be one district for each representative, senator and representative in congress. No state representative district shall be divided in the formation of a senate district.

All districts of the same kind shall be as equal in population as practicable. Population shall be the controlling factor in drawing the district boundaries.

The districts shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory. To the extent consistent with other standards, the boundaries of the districts shall follow the boundaries of local governmental units and, wherever practicable, natural and man-made physical boundaries. No apportionment plan shall be drawn for the purpose of favoring any person or political party.

Sec. 3. (APPORTIONMENT PLAN.) The commission shall adopt an apportionment plan within the time provided by law but not later than December 1 when the commission is established in a year ending in the number one. The plan shall set forth all of the new legislative and congressional districts. An apportionment plan is adopted by the commission when it is approved by a vote of at least six of its members.

Sec. 4. (EFFECTIVE DATE: ELECTIONS GOVERNED BY NEW DISTRICTS.) An apportionment plan is effective when it is adopted and any judicial proceedings under section 5 have been completed. The district set forth in an apportionment plan shall govern elections of state senators, state representatives and representatives in congress beginning with the first general election after the plan is effective.

Sec. 5. (JUDICIAL REVIEW: COURT DRAWN PLAN.) The supreme court shall exercise original jurisdiction in any matter relating to apportionment in the manner provided by law. If the commission fails to adopt an apportionment plan within the time provided by law the supreme court shall adopt its own plan in accordance with the requirements of section 2 of this article. If an apportionment plan for legislative districts is adopted by the supreme court later than April 1 of a general election year, the time for establishing residency for legislative candidates as set forth in article IV, section 6, is extended to either 45 days after the effective date of the plan or to the last day provided by law for filing for office at the general election, whichever is earlier.

Sec. 6. (IMPLEMENTATION) The legislature may enact the laws necessary to implement this article provided that reapportionment shall be governed by the law in effect on January 1 of the year in which a reapportionment commission is established."

AMENDMENT NO. 2 — CAMPAIGN SPENDING: LIMITS AND DISCLOSURE

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to require campaign spending limits for candidates for executive and legislative offices and public disclosure of campaign spending for all state candidates?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 587 Article III Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would require the Minnesota Legislature to limit by law the amount of campaign spending for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney General and the Legislature.
2. The amendment would require the Legislature to provide by law for public disclosure of contributions and expenditures to support or oppose candidates for state offices.

In Chapter 587 the Legislature also approved statutory provisions which will become effective only if voters ratify the campaign spending amendment. The statutory sections would permit existing statutory spending limits for state executive and legislative campaigns to rise or fall with the consumer price index, would increase to $2 from the present $1 the amount of taxes that an individual may designate to help finance the campaigns of candidates who comply with spending limits, would require space on the first page of tax forms for individuals to indicate whether or not they wish to designate taxes for campaigns and would mandate that some tax funds accumulated but not used in state campaigns be reallocated to other candidates instead of returned to the general fund in the state treasury as existing statute provides.

If voters do not ratify the constitutional amendment regarding campaign spending, existing statutory limits on campaign spending and an existing statutory prohibition against tax credits for contributions to state candidates who do not comply with spending limits will be automatically repealed effective December 31, 1981. Existing statutory campaign finance disclosure requirements will remain in effect.

If the amendment is adopted by voters, the following section will be added to Article VII of the Minnesota Constitution:

"Sec. 9. (CAMPAIGN SPENDING LIMITS.) The amount that may be spent by candidates for constitutional and legislative offices to campaign for nomination or election shall be limited by law. The legislature shall provide by law for disclosure of contributions and expenditures made to support or oppose candidates for state elective offices."

AMENDMENT NO. 3 — HIGHWAY BONDS: REMOVAL OF CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to remove restrictions on the interest rate for and the amount of trunk highway bonds?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 549 Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would remove the present $150 million par value limit on the amount of trunk highway bonds which are issued and unpaid at any time.
2. The amendment would remove the present 5 percent per annum ceiling on interest rates of trunk highway bonds.

Article XIV Section 11 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"The legislature may provide by law for the sale of bonds to carry out the provisions of section 2. Bonds issued and unpaid shall not at any time exceed $150,000,000 par value. The proceeds shall be paid into the trunk highway fund. Any bonds shall mature serially over a term not exceeding 20 years, and shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest and shall not bear interest at a greater rate than five percent per annum. If the trunk highway fund is not adequate to pay principal and interest of these bonds when due, the legislature may levy on all taxable property of the state in an amount sufficient to meet the deficiency or it may appropriate to the fund money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated."

If the amendment is adopted, Article XIV Section 11 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~ and additions by italics) as follows:

"The legislature may provide by law for the sale of bonds to carry out the provisions of section 2. ~~Bonds issued and unpaid shall not at any time exceed $150,000,000 par value.~~ The proceeds shall be paid into the trunk highway fund. Any bonds shall mature serially over a term not exceeding 20 years and shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest ~~and shall not bear interest at a greater rate than five percent per annum~~. If the trunk highway fund is not adequate to pay principal and interest of these bonds when due, the legislature may levy on all taxable property of the state in an amount sufficient to meet the deficiency or it may appropriate to the fund money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated."

AMENDMENT NO. 4 — INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM: ESTABLISHMENT

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to provide for initiative and referendum?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 587 Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would permit eligible voters to petition to initiate a law or to refer a law for repeal. If in each congressional district a number of eligible voters which is not less than 5 percent of the number of persons who voted at the last general election in the congressional district signed petitions for an initiative or referendum measure, the measure would be placed on the ballot at the next general election. A majority of those voting on an initiative or referendum measure could approve it at an election. Voters could not initiate or refer a constitutional amendment, an appropriation or a special law. The Governor could not approve or veto an initiative or referendum measure. An initiative or referendum adopted by the voters could not be overturned by the Legislature until another general election occurred.
2. The sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure could choose to withdraw the measure from the ballot if the Minnesota Legislature enacted a law with similar scope and purpose. If the initiative or referendum measure was not abandoned, the Legislature could submit its proposal to the voters at the same election and in the same manner as the measure submitted by petition.
3. The Legislature would be required to implement the amendment by law.
4. The initiative and referendum amendment to the Minnesota Constitution would expire January 1, 1985.

In Chapter 587 the Legislature also approved the 1980 Initiative and Referendum Act. It will become effective only if voters approve the initiative and referendum amendment to the Minnesota Constitution.

The Act would set deadlines for the initiative and referendum process. At least 50 eligible voters would be required as sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure. The sponsors would be required to file a declaration of the intent or purpose of the measure not later than March 1 of the odd-numbered year before the general election at which the measure was to be on the ballot. The initiative or referendum measure itself and a copy of the petition to be circulated for signatures would be required to be filed within 63 days after the filing of the declaration. Petitions could be circulated from eight days after the form of the petition was approved by the Secretary of State until October 1 of the year before the election.

The Act would require the Minnesota Revisor of Statutes to provide drafting assistance and legal advice to the sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure if they desired it and would mandate the Revisor to prepare a summary of the measure for placement on the petitions. The Act would provide the form of petitions, would require the Secretary of State to determine whether a sufficient number of valid signatures had been obtained, would permit the Secretary of State to use a 5 percent random sample for signature verification if the Secretary wished to do so, would require the Secretary of State to write the initiative or referendum question for placement on the general election ballot with the advice of the Minnesota Executive Council, would permit four-fifths of the sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure to withdraw it from the ballot if the Minnesota Legislature enacted a law with similar scope and purpose, would provide that the initiative or referendum measure receiving the most votes at the general election would go into effect if voters adopted two or more measures which substantially conflicted with each other, would extend the campaign finance and disclosure requirements of the 1974 Minnesota Ethics in Government Act to initiative and referendum campaigns, would prohibit tax deductions or credits for contributions by corporations to initiative and referendum campaigns and would make initiative and referendum measures adopted by voters effective on December 31 of the year of adoption.

The Act also would provide other details of the initiative and referendum process.

If the amendment is adopted, the following section will be added to Article IV of the Minnesota Constitution:

"Sec. 27. (INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.) A law may be initiated or referred for repeal upon petition by eligible voters. An initiative or referendum measure shall be placed on the ballot at a general election if petitions for the measure are signed by eligible voters in each congressional district of the state in a number not less than five percent of the number of persons who voted at the last general election in that congressional district. An initiative or referendum measure shall be adopted upon the affirmative vote of a majority of those voting on the question. The voters may not initiate or refer for repeal a constitutional amendment, an appropriation or a special law.

The governor shall have no power to approve or veto an initiative or referendum measure adopted by the voters.

No law adopted by initiative shall be amended or repealed and no law repealed by referendum shall be reenacted by the legislature until another general election has intervened.

The sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure, if the legislature enacts a law with a similar scope and purpose, may elect to place the measure on the ballot or to abandon the measure. If the measure is not abandoned, the legislature may submit the law which it has enacted to a vote of the people in the same manner as an initiative or referendum measure at the election at which the initiative or referendum measure is submitted. If a law enacted by the legislature is submitted to the people at the same election as an initiative or referendum measure, it shall not be subject to veto by the governor and it shall not be effective unless approved by a majority of those voting on the question.

The legislature shall implement the provisions of this section by law.

This section expires January 1, 1985."

AMENDMENT NO. 5 — NOTARIES PUBLIC: REMOVAL OF SENATE APPROVAL

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to remove the requirement that notaries public be approved by the senate?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 592 Section 1 is:

The amendment would eliminate the present constitutional requirement that appointments of notaries public by the Governor must be approved by the Minnesota Senate before they become effective.

Article V Section 3 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"The governor shall communicate by message to each session of the legislature information touching the state and country. He is commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces and may call them out to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion. He may require the opinion in writing of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to his duties. With the advice and consent of the senate he may appoint notaries public and other officers provided by law. He may appoint commissioners to take the acknowledgment of deeds or other instruments in writing to be used in the state. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. He shall fill any vacancy that may occur in the offices of secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, attorney general and the other state and district offices hereafter created by law until the end of the term for which the person who had vacated the office was elected or the first Monday in January following the next general election, whichever is sooner, and until a successor is chosen and qualified."

If the amendment is adopted, Article V Section 3 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~) as follows:

"The governor shall communicate by message to each session of the legislature information touching the state and country. He is commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces and may call them out to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion. He may require the opinion in writing of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to his duties. With the advice and consent of the senate he may appoint ~~notaries public and other~~ officers provided by law. He may appoint commissioners to take the acknowledgement of deeds or other instruments in writing to be used in the state. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. He shall fill any vacancy that may occur in the offices of secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, attorney general and the other state and district offices hereafter created by law until the end of the term for which the person who had vacated the office was elected or the first Monday in January following the next general election, whichever is sooner, and until a successor is chosen and qualified."

Card of Thanks

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the Jaycees in cooperation with the Inter-Community council of Oklee and area lumber yard for the construction of a wheelchair ramp. Material for my ramp was donated by Home Lumber, Peterson Lumber Co., Lampert Lumber of Thief River Falls, and Oklee Lumber & Supply.

A special thank you must go out to Mary Lou and Rodney, who have worked so hard to make this possible. And to the Nazareth ladies aid for bringing that delicious potluck dinner and lunches and everyone who worked so hard. It is hard to find words of thanks, as no one knows how very much all this means to me, and I pray God will richly bless every one of you that did so much for me.

Mrs. Elmer Engstrom 1t82c

The foregoing Resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

The board then held a lengthy discussion of problems relating to State and Federal mandates that the Courthouse must be barrier free so that handicapped persons may have equal access to all of the services provided in the Courthouse. The implication is that an elevator must be added and it was determined that the various offices that are having space problems should be surveyed with the thought that space could be made available for some offices and some storage at the same time the elevator was added. The Board took the matter under advisement.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Koop that the Road Committee and Bridges and Culvert Committee inspect roads, bridges and culverts at 9:00 A.M., October 28, 1980. Motion carried.

Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That Pennington County enter into an agreement with the State of Minnesota, Department of Welfare, Chemical Dependency Program Division, to provide for a Grant to assist in development of a two year pilot program for Chemical Dependency Court Counseling, along with Marshall County. Said Grant to be on the basis of a 50 per cent match up to $33,000.00 per year of satisfactory operation, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Chairman and Auditor of Pennington County be authorized and instructed to execute such agreements as are necessary to implement said Alcohol Counseling Program as of January 1, 1981 with Offices in Thief River Falls and under the supervision of the County Court of Pennington and Marshall County. The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Grabanski and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Tips Offered To Make A Safe Halloween

Halloween, which should be a happy time, is often turned to tragedy by accidents, said Minnesota public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

This year Halloween falls on a Friday night which will increase the hazards. Sopsic asked parents to remind children of the dangers of darkness and motor vehicles before sending them on their rounds.

Sopsic also suggests taking the following precautions:

—Have children wear light colored costumes or costumes accented by reflectorized tape. —A— battery-powered flashlight or lantern can also make the difference between being seen and not being seen.

—Remind children to cross streets only at corners, to stay away from stray animals and strangers and stay within their immediate neighborhood.

—Have youngsters try on their costumes before Halloween night. Avoid loose, flowing costumes that might tangle and cause a child to fall while crossing a street. Make certain masks do not interfere with vision.

—Before buying a costume, beard, wig or mask, check to make sure they are fire resistant. If the costume is homemade and you wish to make it flameproof, soak the garment in a solution of seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid and two quarts of warm water.

—Caution children against eating their treats until they return home so parents have a chance to inspect everything.

The motorists are urged to drive with special caution Halloween night.

Motorists Told To Be On The Lookout For Deer

Motorists on Minnesota highways were told to be on the lookout for deer in order to avoid serious accidents and wasteful loss of valuable wildlife.

Department of Natural Resources noted that the fall months are usually the time when the number of deer-vehicle collisions reach their peak.

LeRoy Rutske, big game specialist, said buck deer become more active during the fall with the onset of the mating season and are more apt to wander into the path of a motor vehicle.

The animals are particularly active during the hours of darkness and because of their coloration are difficult to see as they dart into the road from a ditch or adjacent forested area.

Last year, said Rutske, a total of 6,423 deer were killed on Minnesota roads and highways. He said the figure has been running between six and seven thousand deer annually for the past several years.

"Many thousands of dollars in property damage have resulted from these deer-vehicle collisions," he said, "as well as serious personal injury."

He added that many of the accidents could be avoided if motorists would be conscious of the danger and keep a sharp eye out on the roadside.

He noted that deer-vehicle collisions are not confined to forested areas. In fact the seven county metro areas has among the highest of such accidents.

George Nettelands Revive Meaning Of Marriage Bond

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

This New Year's Eve, Elizabeth Netteland will be 93 years old. Her husband, George, turned 96 June 13. August 22 of this year they celebrated their wedding anniversary. They have been married for 72 years.

"We're kind of old-fashioned," Elizabeth said on the telephone before our visit — the very words which stirred an interest in the interview.

Elizabeth hesitated to repeat much concerning her past. The couple was married August 22, 1908 by Rev. Olaf Wangenstein in a Lutheran church in St. Hilaire. "That's all you need to know," she added.

But much was learned from the couple by the afternoon visit, by the hot coffee served ("Is it all right if you make your own?" she inquired. "I have Instant. Or would you like me to make it for you?") and by the variety of homemade cookies neatly arranged in vertical rows on the small platter and placed on the table ("I'm getting low in my baking," she apologized).

Water in the teapot whistled steadily over the old wood burning stove in the kitchen — to which Elizabeth had added logs during the visit. Also in the kitchen were cabinets containing dishes from two eras; and a shelf of reading material.

"This is one of our hobbies," she said, picking up one of the books lying on the shelf. The books, most of them received as gifts, were prepared in large type for easier reading.

The Nettelands have lived in their home at 207 S. Kendall in Thief River Falls since 1946. They have three children, Mrs. Angeline Burkle of New York Mills, Loyal of Halland, NY, and Mrs. Alvin (Eleanor) Dicken of Thief River Falls. A fourth child, Robert, died at 32. The couple also has 10 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

It was just the family that attended Elizabeth's and George's wedding that Saturday in 1908, she said. A reception was hosted for the couple the following day. At that time, Elizabeth was 20. George was 24.

Turning her attention again to the present, Elizabeth pointed out the two large containers of carrots which she had received and which she would can. In the sink were carrots soaking for that very reason.

"I got those out of my garden," she said, pointing to the kitchen sink. There was quite a large garden in the backyard, vacant now, for the winter ahead. The thought of gardening forced her to recall the day this fall when she had dug up all of the potatoes from their garden — carefully digging beyond each plant so she wouldn't damage any of the potatoes under the ground.

ELIZABETH AND GEORGE Netteland have been married for 72 years. "People were more 'Christian' then," Elizabeth stated, referring to the couple's marriage in 1908 and her reason for their healthy, happy life together. They have placed their wedding picture, taken 72 years ago, above their bed.

TRF Scouts Participate In Fall Camporee

Over 50 Boy scouts, Webelos scouts and adults from Thief River Falls joined over 150 other scouters from the Voyageur Trails district and Winnipeg in the fall camporee conducted recently at Lake Bronson state park.

Chairmen for the camp were Jim Bowen of Hallock and Don Votava of Warren. Bonnie VanSchiack of Thief River Falls served as first aid consultant for the camp.

Some of the events which the Boy scouts and Webelos were able to partake in were log lashing, blind-fold tent pitch, fire building with matches, and orienteering. Camporee had some international flavor to it with two scout units from Winnipeg also participating.

At the conclusion of the events, a church service was conducted for all the Scouts which was followed by a campfire where ribbons were given to the Scouts for first, second, and third place finishes for the events. An Archery demonstration was given by Steve Geatz of Thief River Falls and Steve Arnold of Warren.

Voyageur Trails district is a part of the Northern Lights council, Boy Scouts of America and a participating member of United Way and sustaining membership campaigns throughout eight counties in northwestern Minnesota, including Pennington, Mahnomen, Red Lake, Polk, Norman, Roseau, Kittson and Marshall.

Sen. Hanson Reflects On Experience In Legislature

(Editor's Note: In an effort to most fairly permit political candidates to use our newspaper to inform the voting public about their candidacy, we have invited the state senate candidates to express their views in personal articles. We invite you to read the following article and the one by his opponent in this issue.)

by Marv Hanson

As the incumbent state senator running for re-election from District 1 — which includes the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and parts of Polk and Beltrami — I was first elected in 1976 and quickly recognized for work on restructuring Minnesota taxes. In 1979 I was chosen by my colleagues to be assistant majority leader.

Reflecting on the past four years, I soon realized that being a state legislator led to many more facets of government than I had recognized before I was elected. The past four years have been a challenge. Like many other positions, there are days of frustration and then many days that are very satisfying. Those are the kind of days when you are able to get some extra state aid to the Warroad school to help re-establish the Northwest Angle school on Lake of the Woods when new families moved in.

It was very satisfying to work for legislative funding for the new Thief River Falls area vocational technical school. That facility was long overdue, and I am happy to see that we were able to consolidate the AVTI in a new structure. I enjoy that kind of work. I have tried to see that the concerns that come in from the district are given legislative consideration — things like changing state law to permit PVC plastic well casings. This was brought to me by well drillers in northwestern Minnesota. Now, PVC plastic can be used and will reduce the cost con-

Skogerboe Views Election From Conservative Stance

(Editor's Note: In an effort to most fairly permit political candidates to use our newspaper to inform the voting public about their candidacy, we have invited the state senate candidates to express their views in personal articles. We encourage you to read the following article and the one by his opponent in this issue.)

by Mark Skogerboe

I was born in Duluth 35 years ago. My family moved to Karlstad when I was 2½. My father, Dr. R. B. Skogerboe, served that community until after I graduated from Karlstad high school in 1963. Because of my father's keen interest in politics, my conservative views were born and nurtured during those years.

Long talks with my grandfather, the late Rev. A. N. Skogerboe of Erskine, further blended the idea of moral and spiritual responsibility in dealing with all problems that confront us. My other grandfather, the late Art Olsted of Erskine, was less philosophical but equally, as interesting. He spent countless hours telling me stories about his childhood in northern Minnesota.

From the time I was 13 I worked on farms around Karlstad and got experience on dairy, grain and potato farms. I used to enjoy the tranquility of the open tractors and the invigoration of hard work handling potato sacks and hay bales.

I attended college at Concordia college in Moorhead, then transferred to Texas Lutheran college in Sequin, Texas, when it was suggested that a different climate could improve a skin allergy. I volunteered for the service during the Vietnam conflict, but again my history of skin allergy caused my rejection.

In 1966, I married the former Judy Iverson, Pearl Iverson's daughter, from Thief River Falls. We returned to Texas to continue my education. We have since had three precious children, Scot 10, Christy 7 and Ben-

Oakland Park Dedicated Here Tuesday

DEDICATION PROGRAM for Oakland Park picnic grounds was held Tuesday afternoon by the park entrance with a small crowd braving cool temperatures to attend the event. Participants in the program included, left to right, Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director, who did much of the fund application work on the project; Tom Jorgens, director of the Northwest Regional commission at Crookston, through which the grant applications for state and federal funds were routed; Glenn Tasa, veteran member of the Pennington county board of commissioners which sponsored the park project; and Mayor Bob Carlson of Thief River Falls who expressed the city's appreciation to the county for providing the park and encouraged all attending the program to invite their friends and neighbors to use the new park. Tasa announced that the park was being dedicated in honor of Art Christianson, former city councilman and member of the county board of commissioners. The 10-acre park is located near Oakland Park home and includes picnic shelters, ball diamond, playground equipment and other features.

Weets Charged With Assault

Charges of second degree assault were filed against John Weets of rural Thief River Falls in Pennington county court following an incident involving Weets, Pennington county law enforcement officers and firearms Saturday about 9:30 p.m. at the Weets farm yard in Smiley township.

Sheriff's department deputies were summoned to the Weets farm by Mrs. Weets as a result of a domestic dispute involving weapons, according to the sheriff's department report. Weets reportedly confronted two deputies with a handgun outside the house and was ordered to drop the weapon. When the order was repeated he dropped the gun and attempted to leave the area, but was taken into custody by the officers, the report states.

After being held at the Pennington county law enforcement center, he appeared in county court Monday where the charge was filed. The case was referred to district court at 10:30 a.m. next Monday and Weets was released on his own recognizance.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Achenbach And Richter Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Laurie Achenbach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herb Achenbach of Thief River Falls, and David Richter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Richter, also of Thief River Falls, exchanged marriage vows recently at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city. Rev. James Bernauer officiated at the 10:00 a.m., ceremony.

Miss Marcis Knuttila was the pianist and Mrs. Jean Harger, the organist. They played "Bridal March," by Wagner for the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," for the recessional. Craig Molstad played an original guitar composition. Kathy Achenbach, accompanied by Miss Knuttila, sang "Wedding Song," Jane Achenbach-Ng, sister of the bride, read the Scripture and Billy Achenbach, a brother, was server.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her parents, wore a gown fashioned of white lace and pleated chiffon. Seed pearls enhanced the bodice and lace cuffed the long chiffon sleeves and edged the train-length veil held by a headpiece edged with seed pearls. Her bouquet was of daisies and white roses.

The groom wore a sandalwood tuxedo and a white shirt with ruffling edged in brown. His boutonniere was a white rose.

Kathy Achenbach, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Heidi Fredeen and Tracy Brown, friends of the bride, and Peggy Achenbach, a sister of the bride. Their gowns, in mid-calf length of pastel blue, yellow, green and pink, were fashioned by Kathy Achenbach and Heidi Fredeen. Bouquets of matching pastel-tinted daisies were carried by the bride's attendants.

Craig Molstad, a friend of the groom was best man. The groomsmen were Tim Wiskow, Milton (Buzz) Johnson and Doug Pfeifer, all friends of the groom. They wore sandy-beige tuxedos and white shirts with brown trim, complemented by boutonnieres of pastel tinted carnations.

The ushers, Jay Achenbach and Dan Richter, brothers of the bride and groom, wore silver-blue tuxedos.

The mother of the bride was attired in a floral ankle-length gown in a pastel yellow, and the mother of the groom wore a peach ankle-length gown. Their corsages were of tinted daisies. Spice colored tuxedos and white shirts were worn by the fathers.

Special guests were Mrs. Dorothy Peterson, maternal grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Francis Richter, paternal grandmother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ng, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were the host couple at the indoor-outdoor reception held at the bride's parental home. Danica Bergland, a friend of the couple, was at the guest book; and Mrs. Don Holmes, an aunt of the bride, served the punch. Presiding at the reception was Mrs. Kathryn Kinsman, a friend of both families, Mrs. Web Maves, Mrs. John Peterson and Mrs. Bernice Nelson, friends of the bride's family, assisted in the preparation. The waitresses were Sue Rosetta, Cindy Anderson, Katey Kinsman and Patty Kinsman, friends of the bride's family. All wore daisy corsages.

The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with daisies, was baked by the bride's maternal grandmother. It was cut and served by Mrs. Duane Peterson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Merlyn O'Malley, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Jim Ronningen, an aunt of the groom, served the coffee.

The bride and groom are now at home at K.I. Sawyer Air Force base, Michigan, where the groom is stationed. Photo, Neal Fox Studio, Thief River Falls

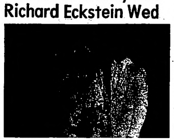
Brenda O. Srnsky And Richard Eckstein Wed



Marriage vows were exchanged recently at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city by Brenda Orinne Srnsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Srnsky of St. Hilaire, and Richard Oliver Eckstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Eckstein of Red Lake Falls.

Rev. Don Knudson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Ruthie Mosbeck, a friend of the couple, was organist, playing Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus," for the processional, and the Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," from "Midsummer Nights' Dream," for the recessional. Mrs. Val Kelly, a friend of the bride, sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Wedding Song," with guitar accompaniment by Mrs. Nancy Ricci; and "Evergreen."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in gown of white silk featuring a chiffon overlay trimmed in lace. The bodice was styled with a high collar and a ruffled edged sheer yoke with lace appliques. Matching lace complemented her shepherdess sleeves and marked the tiered chapel-length train. Her veil of double-tiered bridal illusion, edged with scalloped lace, fell from a matching headpiece. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white daisies and babies' breath with baby blue and white ribbon streamers.

Deb Solberg a friend of the bride and Denise Opdahl a cousin, served as the bride's personal attendants.

Maid of honor was Jill Park, a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Nancy Eckstein, sister of the groom, and Pam Srnsky, a sister of the bride. They wore identical baby blue gowns with V-necklines and cap sleeves. To complete their attire, they wore wide brimmed baby blue hats and carried bouquets of yellow, white, pink and blue daisies with baby blue streamers. Their pearl pendants were gifts from the bride.

Wearing a gown similar to the bride's was the flower girl, Shannon Bugge, St. Hilaire, a cousin of the bride. She carried a basket of pastel colored miniature roses and daisies. Her locket was a gift from the bride. The rings were carried by Stephen Staveness, Red Lake Falls, a friend of the couple. Like the groom he wore a light blue tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt trimmed in light blue. His boutonniere was a yellow carnation.

Nick Eckstein, Red Lake Falls, attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Greg Srnsky, brother of the bride, and Mark Eckstein, brother of the groom. Ushers were Wesley Srnsky, brother of the bride, and Jerry Merk, a friend of the groom. Their light blue tuxedos were accented by deep blue trousers, vest and bow tie.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Srnsky wore a princess seamed, floor-length gown of mint green polyester complemented by a corsage of pink roses, and mint green ribbon. The groom's mother wore a pink polyester floor-length gown with an attached capelet. Her corsage of pink roses was accented with white ribbon. All the flowers at the wedding were of silk.

A reception in the church fellowship hall followed. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. James Gaven, godparents of the groom. Paulette Wegge, a cousin of the bride, registered the guests. Louri Walker and Mrs. Stephanie Anderson, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively, ladled the punch. Gift carriers were Rodney Srnsky and Steven Eckstein, brothers of the couple.

The four-tiered Lady Windermere wedding cake, baked and decorated with yellow roses by Mrs. Izzy Melin and Mrs. Ruthie Mosbeck, was cut and were served by Mrs. Pat Srnsky, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Marion Anderson, aunt of the groom. Mrs. LaVonne Wegge, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Sue Kiesow, cousin of the groom, poured the coffee.

At the gift table was Deb Rooker, a cousin of the bride. Waitresses were Deb Opdahl, Kim and Kris Bugge, cousins of the bride, and Tami Eckstein, cousin of the groom.

The groom's supper for about 20 guests was hosted at Grand Forks at Bonanza by the groom's parents.

Following a brief wedding trip to Bemidji and Itasca State park, the couple is now at home in rural St. Hilaire. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school. The bride is currently employed at the A&W in Thief River Falls. Prior to her marriage, she was honored at showers given by Deb Solberg and Denise Opdahl; Arlene Jagol, Jan Osborn, Joyce Kalmess and Lorraine Mosbeck; and Nancy Eckstein and Tami Eckstein. Candidates Speak At Business Women's Meet

Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's club (BPW club) observed National Business Women's week at a meeting of the club held Monday evening at the Elks club.

Guest speakers were LeRoy Stumpf and Clyde Christensen, candidates for State Representatives from District 1B. Both gave their views on today's problems, such as the escalating real estate taxes, the workmen's compensation laws, the welfare program with the generation of free-loaders, receiving welfare and equalization of education in all districts, government regulations that don't apply in individual situations, the Initiative and Referendum amendment that will be appearing on the November ballot, and the Equal Rights Amendment.

A lengthy question and answer period followed the presentations. Bonnie Folkedahl, program chairman introduced the candidates.

President Vicky Erickson presided at the meeting and welcomed Jeanne Woods, the new owner of Noper's Motel, as a new member. She stated that three seminars have been scheduled this Friday in Minnesota in observance of National Business Women's week. They are "Politics at Normandale" at Normandale, "Women in the 80's" at Milaca, and "Women Helping Women," at Willmar.

Miss Erickson also stated that Business and Professional Women have been applauding working women for over 50 years.

During early celebrations of National Business women's week, nearly all the honorees were in occupations typically held by females, such as teachers, nurses and secretaries. In the last decade women have expanded into the fields of mechanics, telephone repairing, scientists for NASA, district judges, ministers, jet pilots, and executive positions. The women in the labor forces number 42 million, two-fifths of all workers. Since World War II the number of working mothers has increased more than tenfold. The number of all working women has more than tripled.

She concluded by saying, that as the doors of opportunity have been opened, the changes have been made in working conditions, the struggle for equal opportunity in becoming full partners in the economic life of the nation is still one of the leading interests of the club.

During the business session the program for the year was reviewed, discussed and revised.

A dinner preceded the meeting.

Hanson Reflects On Experience In Legislature

siderably on new wells.

And then there are matters that affect the entire state that I am pleased to have been able to enact. In 1979 we indexed the Minnesota income tax brackets. I had spoken about this during my first campaign for office and now with the new law the income tax brackets adjust with inflation. There won't be any more automatic tax increases of the Minnesota income tax.

I have spoken for some time on changing the inheritance tax laws, and we now have a new law in Minnesota. It is an estate tax patterned somewhat after the federal law. In addition to reducing inheritance taxes we repealed the Minnesota gift tax. As a part of these changes an alternative valuation can be used for determining farm land and business values. These alternative valuations will significantly reduce the size of estates. Families in Minnesota will now be able to better plan for the future, and these changes will enable families to transfer their estates, farms and businesses to their family.

Then there are the days of frustration, like when a proposal of your's which would revise the school aid formula to increase school aids to our local schools does not meet acceptance by the House of Representatives. This provision of mine had passed in the State Senate and would have established a more equitable way to determine what the local share of taxes for school budgets should be. For me it just makes me more determined to work harder to see that those changes are made.

For the upcoming legislative session I see three main areas of focus for Northwestern Minnesota. The first would be to see that all of our state trunk highways are brought up to 10-ton all season roads. This may be the main economic concern of Northwestern Minnesota right now. We have to have a good road system. This is especially important for farmers and small businesses so that our crops and grains get out to market and the products manufactured here can be transported at a reasonable cost.

I am disappointed in the road construction cutbacks made by the Minnesota department of transportation in our area. In another term of office I would seek to revise the road priority rating system so that our bulk shipments of grains and manufactured goods are on a more equal basis with the vehicle miles basis that is used now.

Secondly, we have to focus very clearly on funding for education. The cost of educating a child in our area is escalating rapidly from year to year, and our schools are finding it increasingly difficult to make adjustments in their budgets to meet these increased costs. Many of them can't reduce staff, even though enrollments have declined, because you just can't have less than one teacher per class. Many of our schools are in that situation.

And costs keep increasing. Fuel oil goes up, cost of supplies goes up and gasoline for the busses goes up. So the schools are caught from two sides. Now they have had their state aids cut back, placing an even further strain on their budgets.

I've proposed that the state school aid formula recognize these factors which are found in not just our local schools but in rural schools across Minnesota. I would again seek to implement my proposal of 1979 which would have increased the state aids to our local schools and reduced the local share of taxes that had to be paid by local taxpayers.

The third area of attention is real estate taxes. The burden of local real estate taxes has shifted in our area to the farms and small businesses. The homestead credit was increased which in most instances has held homeowner real estate taxes even or provided for a reduction. This is countered very well by increases in home valuations coming from increased prices for houses.

But the farms and small businesses haven't seen this same degree of tax relief. That's why I'm proposing that farm lands be valued according to a productivity index, and I would use average market rentals as a basis for determining the productive value of farm lands. I think this will go a long way to putting farm real estate taxes on a more fair and equitable basis.

Likewise, I would like to see a new real estate classification for small businesses to counter the increases taxes they are facing. I believe these changes would even out the real estate tax burden locally.

Also, in this tax area, I would like to see our local cities and towns be given the authority to provide tax-incentives to new or existing businesses that are expanding in our communities to foster increased economic activity that those communities believe could occur by providing those incentives. This kind of legislation would make our communities competitive for business expansion with our neighboring states.

I believe my background and the experience I gained in these past four years in the Minnesota State Senate enable me to work effectively for the needs of District 1 and be responsive to the concerns of Northwestern Minnesota."

School Board Has Meeting Monday

Discussion of the Thief River Falls school district's situation following defeat of the proposed $15 million bond issue took place at the regular meeting of the local board of education Monday but no plan of action evolved from the discussion.

The board took action on several matters at the meeting, approving employment for Carol Ihle as speech therapist at St. Hilaire for three half-days per week at a rate of $40.38 per half day and Rebecca Lynn Johnson as receptionist at the AVTI effective October 27 at a rate of $4.84 per hour.

Authorization was given for the administration to develop specifications and advertise for bids on two 84-90 passenger diesel buses. State and federal funding was accepted in the amount of $11,223 to complete maxi audits on Lincoln, Knox and Washington schools and 70 per cent state funding totaling $11,911 on Franklin, Mark Twain, AVTI and AVTI airport. The district will accept the local 30 per cent cost of the latter audit at $5,105.

Annual tuition for the adult small business management program was increased from $230 to $250 effective Jan. 1, 1981.

The board also accepted the local planning evaluation and reporting committee report for 1979-80 in compliance with state law and the report is now available to the public.

The board also adopted a proposed policy for AVTI student participation in Northland community college athletic programs. The policy requires a grade point average of 2.0 (C) on a 4.0 scale for participants and provides that students participating must pay for their own community college fees, physicals and accident and health insurance.

The AVTI will furnish full-time student status proof and will count AVTI class time missed due to participation in inter-collegiate athletics and activities as an excused absence. Students will be required to arrange with their instructors for make-up of work missed and make-up of hours missed if this is required for licensing.

ELEPHANT STEW

1—Medium Sized Elephant
2—Rabbits (optional)

Cut elephant into bite-sized pieces. This should take about 2 months. Salt and pepper to taste. Add enough water to make a rich brown gravy. Cook over a kerosene fire for about 4 weeks at 465 degrees. This serves 3,812 people. If more people are expected add the rabbits, but only if necessary, because people don't like hares in their stew.

Nettelands Know Value Of Marriage Bond

"You have to work hard," she said, referring to the many hours of work labored in one day. "Many people don't today."

Elizabeth does all of her own baking, prepares all of the couple's meals, washes clothes and dishes. The aroma of stew parpared for the afternoon meal still lingered in the air in the tiny but comfortable kitchen as she spoke.

"I do all of my own baking," she said, "but I give most of it away. That's the most fun," she smiled. "Doing things for people is one of my hobbies."

Traces of another hobby — collecting — added finishing touches to the home. There was a box of carefully cut newspaper clippings of Elizabeth and her husband, a collection of books, and other relics, many of which had meaning and value only to their collector.

"People were more Christian then," she said, referring to her reason for the couple's "togetherness" for so many years, and in answer to our question, 'Why do you think there are so many people who don't stay together after they're married today?'

"I think a couple makes their marriage vows in the presence of God. If they are true Christians, they wouldn't want a divorce — they'd know it was forbidden."

Elizabeth and George attended church regularly throughout their lives — for as long as they could, she said. She remembers the days when their hearing began to fail. "We'd go to church and then hurry home and listen to the service on the radio an hour later," she said.

"That is one thing I miss now (going to church)," she said. "I could walk there but I know George couldn't and I wouldn't want to leave him here alone."

George taught school for 37 years, and was a graduate of the Moorhead state university teacher's college when they were first married. He began teaching when he was 17 — when the average salary was $30 a month and when it cost $8 for a room and board.

What is the secret for living such a long and healthy life? What has kept a couple happily together for so many years — especially in a world of changing morals, and one carrying a new outlook on the concept of marriage?

Elizabeth's statement, "I'd rather have my mental health than my physical health," seemed to summarize the entire visit at the Netteland home that afternoon.

When it came time for the photo to accompany our visit, Elizabeth wasted no time in calling to her husband who was apparently asleep in the bedroom: "Come on, George, you can shave later."

George entered, smiling, searching earnestly for his glasses for the photo. "I've got to comb my hair," he joked, to which Elizabeth replied, "You don't have any!" and they both smiled.

They selected the spot beneath their wedding picture which had been placed above their bed in their bedroom — the photo taken 72 years ago. "Put your arm around me, George," she suggested, and he did. And with the picture taken, she added, "Now you can shave," and shortly, the sound of the razor buzzed throughout the kitchen.

"You know why he's sleeping so long?" she inquired. "He's going to watch the World Series on TV tonight!"

"We're two old-fashioned people," Elizabeth repeated when she returned to the kitchen. "I get so lonely sometimes," she added, gazing solemnly at the floor. "But I get a lot of company. And I'm grandma to a lot of people. I want you to think of me as your grandma, too. We're not living alone here," she concluded. "God is living here with us."

The couple, through few words, had illustrated the reassuring fact that even in the 1980s, the traditional aspect of marriage is not, or at least does not have to be, lost.

Searching for a few statistics on the subject of divorce, such startling titles as "No-Fault Divorce," "The World of the Formerly Married," and "Creative Divorce: A new Opportunity for Personal Growth," were discovered.

It was also indicated in the "Information Please Almanac" for 1980 that in Minnesota alone there were 14,127 divorces in 1978 as compared to 14,020 in 1977. In 1900 nationally there were 709,000 marriages and 55,751 divorces, as compared to 2,243,000 marriages in 1978 and 1,122,000 divorces.

It was stated in a story by Nena O'Neill in a November 1979 issue of "Reader's Digest" that "Such a bond, and, especially such mutual dependence are regarded negatively today."

Both positive and negative aspects of marriage and divorce were found in another source, by Claire Safran in a January 1979 issue of "Redbook." One maybe frightening fact stated was that "marriage contracts will be a sign of the new times. Some will be written, some will be oral agreements and many will be 'limited contracts', agreements to stay together only as long as a relationship is 'meaningful'."

Yet, it was positively noted that many counselors see the return to the basics, a new reaching out for the traditional forms and meaning of marriage.

After Daylight Hours Boost Traffic Hazard

The end of daylight savings time at 2 a.m., October 26 means the beginning of increased hazards to pedestrians and motorists.

According to the Minnesota safety council, most fatal motor vehicle accidents and fatal pedestrian crashes in Minnesota occur after daylight hours when visibility is greatly reduced.

Drivers are reminded that state law requires headlights to be used from sunset to sunrise. Those headlights not only increase a driver's visibility but increase the opportunity for approaching traffic to see them. According to the safety council, the average headlights illuminate the roadway ahead for about 350 feet. That means obeying the 55 mph speed limit is critical to visibility at night under ideal conditions. If visibility is reduced due to weather, drivers should travel at under posted speed limits for safety's sake. And. . : for maximum illumination, be sure headlights are clean and in working order.

The safety council urges pedestrians to be especially alert to motor vehicle traffic; to use sidewalks when available and to cross only at corners or at marked crosswalks if possible. Parents should be aware that it may be darker when the little ones walk to school or wait for buses — it's a good idea to reflectorize the children's outer garments so they can be seen by passing motorists. Pedestrians walking after dark should also carry a flashlight to increase their chances of being seen by oncoming traffic.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

We have been listening and reading of the plight that the Thief River Falls school district is going through, that they have too many students and they have to build. They don't have any room to put their students so they will have to remodel.

Now the businesses of Thief River Falls have always enjoyed the financial business from surrounding communities. Now we would like to propose a plan to help them again.

This includes surrounding communities such as Plummer, Oklee, Goodridge, Newfolden, Warren and Red Lake Falls. We would each take one or more bus-loads of students that parallel each district.

How about it, fellow communities, how do you feel about this?

Council Offers Halloween Safety Tips

There's really no trick to being safe on Halloween and safety precautions result in a real treat when youngsters arrive home well and happy after an evening of fun, says the Minnesota safety council (MSC). The council offers the following tips for Halloween safety for young ghosts and goblins.

Costumes should be short enough to prevent the person wearing them from tripping and falling, but loose enough to allow the child to wear a sweater or jacket underneath if the weather is cold. Costumes should be made of a fabric which is not highly flammable.

Cotton costume fabrics, which burn quickly, can be made fire-retardant by dipping in a solution of two quarts of warm water, seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid. This flameproofing will last until the fabric is washed or gets wet, and is only effective for cotton.

If a costume includes props such as swords, knives or broomsticks, make them of cardboard. Safety council recommends that trick or treaters use make-up instead of masks, which obscure vision. Little folks should wear shoes that fit, not Mom's high heels, so the children won't fall on the sidewalk or in the street. If a pumpkin is carried, it should be lit with a flashlight instead of a candle.

The best and safest Halloween idea, according to the safety council, is to substitute trick-or-treating with neighborhood parties. But if your children do plan a house-to-house haunt, it's a good idea to reflectorize their costumes or treat bags so that kids can be seen by passing motorists. Goblin reflectorization kits can be obtained from the safety council for $1.98. Each kit will fully reflectorize one person. Write 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, or call 612-291-9150 for kits.

Included in the schedule are many snowshoeing, winter camping, dog sledding, and cross-country skiing trips out of several base camps in northern Minnesota, a winter guide training program, and log building courses in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Persons interested in securing a winter activities brochure may write Minnesota Trailbound, 3544½ Grand Avenue, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55408 or phone (612) 822-5955.

Initiative And Referendum Begins Sat.

Initiative and referendum week will be kicked off Saturday (October 25) at 11 a.m. by Gov. Al Quie, initiative and referendum chairman Elmer L. Andersen, treasurer Stella Lundquist, executive secretary Rita Shemeah, John O'Neil, adjutant, Minnesota VFW, Roy Schulz of the Minnesota real estate taxpayers assn., endorsing organization representatives, and the 30 member initiative and referendum steering committee at a reception in the Governors reception room.

Activities that day will include live entertainment, a press conference, and the kick-off of several promotional programs that will help assure passage of the initiative and referendum amendment. Event is open to the public.

Minnesota citizens for initiative and referendum volunteers will be participating in numerous statewide literature drops, phone banks, letters to the editor, and the "Tell Ten People" program. Local supporters will be contacting 10 people and reminding them to vote for initiative and referendum. They will then be asked to contact an additional 10 people, and so on.

It is important that initiative and referendum be explained to every citizen, as it takes a majority of the people voting on the amendment to secure passage of initiative and referendum. If a vote is not cast in support of initiative and referendum, it is automatically counted as a no vote.

Gov. Quie and Gov. Andersen will be touring the state spreading the initiative and referendum story beginning today. They will be making appearances in Austin, Duluth, St. Cloud, Moorhead, Mankato, Bemidji, and Worthington.

Enrollment At UMC Reaches All-Time High

Enrollment on the Crookston campus of the University of Minnesota (UMC) has reached an all-time high, according to figures released by UM central administration. Reflecting record enrollments throughout most of the University of Minnesota system, student population at UMC has jumped 6.3 per cent over a year ago.

UMC fall quarter enrollment stands at 1,179, an increase of 70 students compared to the fall of 1979. Current enrollment is the largest for any quarter in the history of the institution.

Record-setting enrollments are also prevalent on other campuses. There are 47,386 students attending classes in the Twin Cities, an all-time high. Previous record was established in the fall of 1976 when 45,800 students were officially enrolled on Twin Cities campuses. This year's total represents a 3.4 per cent increase over the preceding fall quarter.

Currently, 58,705 students are enrolled throughout the UMC system, which is 2,416 more than in any previous quarter in University annals.

Commenting on the soaring enrollment this fall, University officials theorize that the nation's sagging economy is apparently prompting more students to choose to remain in college rather than seek employment in a tight job market.

MN Land Use Planning Fund Is Available

Minnesota state planning agency has announced its final funding cycle for land use planning grants under the current legislative appropriation. Preliminary applications are due in the Northwest regional development commission clearinghouse for review and comment by November 15. They are to be submitted to the state planning agency by Jan. 1, 1981.

Municipalities, townships and county governments are eligible to apply for these funds to aid them in planning activities that will increase management where land use problems have been created by rapid growth or economic growth or decline; potential development in environmentally sensitive areas; or the addition or elimination of a major state or federal facility.

Examples of previously funded land use planning are: (1) Crookston township for comprehensive planning and new township ordinances; (2) the city of Crookston for comprehensive land use planning; and (3) the city of Grygla for a comprehensive land use plan, capital improvements plan and new city ordinances.

State will fund up to 75 per cent of the total cost of the plan. Application forms are available from the Northwest regional development commission, 425 Woodland avenue, Crookston, MN 56716, phone 281-1396. Assistance is available from commission staff in preparing the pre-applications. Call Pat Scharmer or Helen Jurchen if more information is desired. (Information is not available on whether or not there will be a land use planning program funded in 1981.)

Fire Chief Duane Noel (pictured at right in the above photo) said he received a number of compliments on the new fire hall and the way the equipment and building are maintained. Among the visitors was a group of 35 mentally retarded people who attend the Falls day activity center, Noel said. Coffee and cookies were served during the open house from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The open house was part of the observance of local government day in Thief River Falls.

Panel To Review State Aid Hwy. Needs Oct. 29

Statewide county engineers screening committee will hold its annual fall meeting to review county state-aid highway needs and to make funding apportionment recommendations on October 29-30 at the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) district maintenance office in St. Cloud.

Meeting will begin at 1 p.m. Wednesday and conclude about noon on Thursday, according to William Strand, planning division, Mn-DOT.

A county engineer from each of the nine Mn-DOT districts serves on the committee which compiles data as a basis for recommending county state-aid highway (CSAH) apportioning.

The committee will make recommendations to the commissioner of transportation for the 1981 CSAH apportionment which will be made in January.

Total apportionment to the CSAH system is 29 per cent of the highway user tax distribution fund which accrues from the state motor vehicle, fuel tax and auto license fees. Currently, the Minnesota county state-aid highway system covers 30,035 miles which includes over 700 miles of trunk highways turned back to the counties.

Committee members are Robert Sandeen, Hastings, Dakota county, chairman; Jack Dolan, Rochester, Olmsted county, vice chairman; Verne V. Skallman, Grand Rapids, Itasca county; Roger Diesen, Warren, Marshall county; Robert V. Elleraas, Long Prairie, Todd county; Ervie W. Prenevost, Shakopee, Scott county; Dennis Berend, Fergus Falls, Otter Tail county; Mike Wagner, Worthington, Nobles county; and Marlyn Hanson, Madison, Lac qui Parle county. Dennis Carlson, Foley, Benton county, serves as committee secretary.

Twin Splits Pancreas With Diabetic Sister

Surgeons at the University of Minnesota have transplanted half a pancreas from a woman to her diabetic twin sister. It is the first such surgery in the world involving identical twins.

Dr. John Najarian, chief of surgery at university hospitals, said Thursday that the 26-year-old woman who received the pancreas graft "is doing fine" and may be cured of her diabetes as a result of the operation.

The pancreas produces insulin, which is essential in maintaining normal blood sugar levels. In diabetics, however, the organ produces an inadequate amount of insulin and the patient must take daily insulin injections to survive.

The transplant surgery involved taking half of the pancreas from Joan McDonald of Pueblo, CO, and transplanting it into her twin sister, Judith Dent, also of Pueblo, who has been diabetic since she was four years old. The body needs only half a pancreas to produce the necessary amount of insulin.

The operation was performed by Najarian and Dr. David Sutherland. It was only the fourth pancreas transplant involving a living donor. The transplanted pancreas is functioning normally.

Doctors say the recipient does not face the problem of organ rejection with part of the normal pancreas from a genetically identical sibling. Rejection is the body's natural reaction to invading organisms and is triggered in transplant operations by the introduction of the alien organ.

Dent said the transplant meant she would be "free" of the daily regimen of insulin injections. The insulin routine, she said, "is something you can't quite comprehend unless you're a diabetic."

I knew the surgery would be successful all along," she said. "I had a lot of faith in the doctors."

Najarian said chances that McDonald will become diabetic are practically nil.

Studies have shown that if the normal twin does not become diabetic within five years of the diabetic sibling, there is a 95 per cent chance that she never will. If she doesn't become diabetic within 10 years, there is a 98 per cent chance that she will never suffer from the disease.

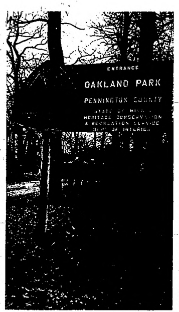
Najarian said that Dent was suffering from early signs of retinopathy, a degenerative disease of the retina common in diabetics that sometimes leads to blindness. The transplant should reverse this trend completely. "We hope to have cured her diabetes," Najarian said.

Pancreas transplants are even less common than heart transplants. Only about 120 pancreas transplants have been performed in the world, compared to more than 400 heart transplants.

University of Minnesota surgeons performed 14 whole pancreas transplants between 1966 and 1973, then began a program of transplanting only the pancreatic islet cells, which produce insulin.

A new series of segmental pancreas grafts began in 1978. This recent surgery was the 16th transplant in this series.

More than a million Americans, including 80,000 Minnesotans, suffer from diabetes. The incidence of the disease is increasing six per cent a year, according to the American diabetes association.



ENTRANCE SIGN for the newly-dedicated Oakland Park picnic grounds was put in place last week by Pennington county crews in preparation for the dedication program Tuesday. Part of the group which participated in the dedication is shown in the background along the roadway which leads to the park's surfaced parking area. The park was dedicated in honor of Art Christianson, a former member of the city council and later of the county board of commissioners.

Mn/DOT Cuts 206 Employees Off Workforce

Because of the declining value of highway user tax revenues and rising construction costs which resulted in previously announced cutbacks in highway improvement projects, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) is reducing its workforce by 206 positions, according to commissioner Richard P. Braun.

"Only 41 full-time employees, however," he said, "will be laid off at the end of the current construction season in November. Minimal number of layoffs was made possible by not filling vacated construction-related positions, by instituting a hiring freeze last April and by reducing the use of part-time and seasonal employees."

These efforts combined with the present layoff will allow Mn-DOT to reduce its workforce by the equivalent of 206 positions. Workforce reduction will be as follows: 139 positions at Mn-DOT district offices and 67 at the central offices in St. Paul.

"Although this is the first major statewide layoff the department has ever experienced," Braun said, "we had already reduced our workforce by 1,300 from its peak of 5,900 in June 1969. We were able to do this entirely through attrition."

He emphasized that the present reduction will affect only highway construction-related activities and that aeronautics, public transportation and highway maintenance will not be affected.

Braun explained that highway user revenues have not kept pace with inflation. "Historically," he said, "these revenues have grown at the rate of about five per cent a year. During the last two years, however, inflation has added more than 42 per cent to the cost of highway construction."

As a result, a total of 121 projects planned for construction letting in fiscal years 1980-81 were cut from Mn-DOT's highway improvement programs in August 1979 and May 1980. Project cutbacks meant Mn-DOT needed a smaller workforce and 350 fewer seasonal laborers, he said.

Braun also ordered a hiring freeze in April 1980 to reduce the number of layoffs that would be needed at the end of the present construction season.

Annual Report Given On Senior Meals Program

Senior meals and activity program of Region I served 131,296 meals to older Americans for the fiscal year 1979-1980. There are 18 meal sites throughout Region I, located at Ada, McIntosh, Warren, Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Karlstad, Hallock, Kennedy, Lake Bronson, Thief River Falls, Twin Valley, Roseau, Greenbush, Badger, Lancaster, East Grand Forks, Newfolden and Oklee.

Over 2,300 different participants took part in the meals program in region I. Bus service by the Tri-Valley transportation program has allowed seniors from other towns to take part in the program.

Volunteer recognitions were held at 18 of the sites. Volunteers were recognized by teas, special dinners, at open houses and were given a certificate of recognition. More than 300 volunteers have helped at the meal sites. Volunteers set tables, take the site manager's place when he or she is gone, make decorations for the tables and do many other tasks. The volunteers provide in-kind services for the senior meal program which makes up part of the local match.

Administration of the senior meals program has been directly under the state but now the area agency on aging at the Northwest Regional Development commission will administrate and monitor the program.

More than 200 seniors attended the senior olympics July 18 at Crookston. Five senior bonds from Minnesota and North Dakota supplied entertainment to those seniors who could not participate in the olympics. Crookston placed first, Grand Forks second and Plummer third.

Home delivered meals will be a new program started in Region I. All of the towns in Region I will be contacted at their sites as to the need in their area and support they can provide.

Tri-Valley had made application to administer the program for interested volunteers. Inquiries can be directed to Tri-Valley.

Senior meals and activity program is sponsored in part by the Northwest Regional Development commission area agency on aging, the state of Minnesota and the federal older American's act through a grant from the Minnesota board of aging. Tri-Valley opportunity council of Crookston is the applicant agency that sponsors the senior meals locally.

Goal of the program is to provide daily, low cost, nutritionally sound and satisfying meals to low income older Americans. Socialization, education and recreation are also important parts of the program.

Anyone 60 years or older is eligible for the program. If a person is a spouse of someone over 60, both are allowed to attend.

Questions about the senior meals and activity program could be answered by calling 1-281-6572 or write Tri-Valley Opportunity Council, 114 South Main Street, Crookston, Minnesota 56716.

Crime Index Shows Rise Of 10 Per Cent

The FBI's crime index showed a 10 per cent rise in crime during the first half of 1980, compared with the first half of 1979, Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti announced today. Like the index, both the violent and property crime categories registered 10 per cent increases.

According to figures released today by William H. Webster, director of the FBI, all crimes comprising the crime index rose in volume. Among the violent crimes, murder was up three per cent; forcible rape rose 12 per cent; robbery increased 13 per cent; and aggravated assault rose seven per cent.

In the property crime category, burglary jumped 12 per cent; larceny-theft increased nine per cent; and motor vehicle theft was up four per cent. Sufficient 1979 data was not available to establish reasonable trends regarding arson, the eighth index offense.

Cities of all sizes, as well as the suburban and rural areas, reported surges in the volume of crime in the first six months of 1980 as compared to the same period of 1979. The largest jump was recorded in the rural area, which registered a 14 per cent rise in the index, with a four per cent increase in violent crime and a 15 per cent upswing in property crime.

Cities with populations over 50,000 and the suburban areas each registered nine per cent rises, while cities outside metropolitan areas reported an 11 per cent increase.

Geographically, the reported upturns showed little variation. The northeastern, north central and southern regions each recorded 10 per cent rises, while in the western states the increase was nine per cent.

A comparison of figures for the first two quarters of 1980 with the same time periods in 1979 showed a nine per cent increase in reported crime for January through March of this year and an 11 per cent increase for April through June.

Financial Vice President At 'U' of M Named

When Frederick M. Bohen takes over as the new financial vice president at the University of Minnesota, he'll be on familiar ground.

The University is trying to trim more than $14 million from its budget for the current fiscal year because of a projected $195 million deficit in the state's budget. As assistant secretary for management and budget for the federal department of health and human services (HHS), Bohen last March was forced to cut the department's budget by more than a billion dollars by presidential order.

"I have lived with fiscal crisis. It is never pleasant, but in times like these it doesn't surprise me," Bohen said from his office in Washington, D.C.

University president C. Peter Magrath announced Bohen's appointment to the top finance position at the university recently, but the appointment must still be approved by the board of regents, which will act on Magrath's recommendation when it meets October 16 and 17.

"His Washington experience and his impressive management background make his appointment especially exciting," Magrath said. "Mr. Bohen's acceptance is a good sign for the university."

As vice president for finance and operations, Bohen will be responsible for all of the business and operating functions of the University, including preparation of the annual budget and the operating and capital requests for funds from the legislature.

He will also oversee construction and design of university buildings, purchasing, data processing and all other auxiliary services.

Bohen will succeed C.T. Johnson, who has been acting vice president since Donald P. Brown resigned last March to return to private industry.

Bohen has been assistant secretary for management and budget for what used to be called the department of health, education and welfare (HEW) since November 1978. He joined HEW in 1977 as chief of staff to secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. after a year and a half at the Carnegie council on policy studies in higher education. At Carnegie, Bohen was staff director for studies on Federal organization for higher education and on federal-state relations on higher education.

As a member of the White House staff from 1966 to 1968, Bohen was executive director of President Lyndon B. Johnson's task force on government organization and later staff assistant to Johnson.

Bohen was director of news and public affairs for WNET-TV in New York from 1973 to 1974, assistant to the president of the public broadcast laboratory of national educational television from 1968 to 1969.

"There's no question that our loss will be a great gain to the University of Minnesota," said HHS secretary Patricia Harris.

If Bohen's appointment is approved, he will start soon after the first of the year.

"This is a very big decision for me," said the 43-year-old Bohen, who has never lived in the Midwest. "What really attracted me was the knowledge that I would be working with an institution that is absolutely first-class both in the state and in the nation."

Bohen lives in Chevy Chase, MD, is married and has three children.

Unbeaten Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston will be expected to finish its 1980 regular season 9-0 Thursday by beating Thief River Falls in a 7:30 p.m. high school football game at Lincoln Field in Crookston. In fact, the Pirates, ranked No. 2 in the Associated Press Class AA power poll may be looking for an easy victory over the Prowlers, who have dropped two of their three NWAC starts.

However, Thief River Falls could cause Crookston problems if the Prowlers can match the level of play they showed earlier this season in beating Moorhead 33-21. It's Thief River Falls' inability to duplicate their strong play they showed against the Spuds that has been the most frustrating aspect of the 1980 season.

After finishing their nonconference schedule with a 4-1 record and coming off that big win over the Spuds, the Prowlers were expected to be a serious NWAC challenger. But they fell flat the following week in a 26-12 loss to Bemidji, then after a weather-aided 21-6 victory over Fergus Falls, dropped out of contention with a 7-6 defeat at the hands of East Grand Forks Friday.

"How can a team beat Moorhead, then lose to Bemidji and East Grand Forks?" That question was on the mind of Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz, and was probably repeated over and over by most Prowler fans.

A victory over Crookston Thursday would help erase the memories of those losses to Bemidji and East Grand Forks and would provide Thief River Falls with a memorable finish to a fine 6-3 season. A loss to the Pirates would add to the disappointment of a 5-4 ending.

Loss to TRF Hurt Spuds

That 33-21 Thief River Falls victory over Moorhead back on Sept. 27 probably kept the Spuds out of the 1980 Class AA state football playoffs.

After the Prowlers' first football win over the Spuds since 1940, the fans' initial response was, "What's the matter with Moorhead this year?"

The answer is nothing. The Spuds came off that loss to the Prowlers to beat Fergus Falls 28-12, then posted back-to-back wins over the top two teams in the Northern Lakes Conference — Hibbing and Grand Rapids. Reid Christopherson, who impressed Thief River Falls fans with his pin-point passing, scored all the points as the Spuds blanked the Blue Jackets 3-0 and edged the previously unbeaten No. 2-ranked Indians 9-6.

Moorhead out-played Grand Rapids to the tune of 240 yards to just 75 on a muddy Moorhead State University field last Thursday. "The field was so muddy it was virtually impossible to identify the players by number after the first period," wrote the Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

But Moorhead marched 83 yards on their first possession of the game to set up a four-yard touchdown run by Christopherson. A Moorhead fumble at the Spuds' 27 in the second quarter led to a two-yard Brian Crippa touchdown run by the Indians and a 6-6 halftime time. Christopherson's 31-yard field goal with 24 seconds left in the third quarter broke the deadlock.

The defeat ruined Grand Rapids' dream of continuing a ten-year unbeaten cycle for the Indians, who were undefeated in 1960 and 1970. A 30-6 defeat at the hands of Grand Rapids was the only nonconference loss suffered by the Prowlers this fall.

Moorhead is now 5-3 going into a 1980 season-ending game against Wisconsin foe Eau Claire North. A 7-2 finish might have landed the Spuds a playoff berth. Moorhead, as an independent, qualifies for a Class AA playoff spot only if its losses does not exceed one, or if its losses do not exceed the number of losses suffered by the Class AA conference champion with the most number of losses in all games. There are ten Class AA conference champions who will participate in the state playoffs and if any of them lost two games Moorhead would have been in position to gain a post-season position — if the Spuds would have beaten the Prowlers.

Miscellaneous

+University of Minnesota hockey coach Brad Beutow said the Gophers' Roseau line of Neal Broten, Aaron Broten and Butsy Erickson, is "the easiest line I ever put together. When these three play so well together at Roseau then all come here to play I'd be crazy not to try them together. It's a very potent line." Saturday night that line dominated both ends of the ice in a 6-4 Minnesota victory over Michigan Tech, the annual U.S. Hockey Hall of Fame game played at the Eveleth Hippodrome. They produced all six Minnesota goals — two on power plays — as Aaron scored three times and picked up one assist, Erickson scored two goals and Neal scored once and set up two goals. It was a ragged game, though, with Tech spending a great deal of time trying to intimidate Neal Broten because of his Olympic reputation. The Gophers are in Grand Forks Friday and Saturday to face the University of North Dakota. Tickets are nearly impossible to come by for that series, but KXJB-TV will televise Saturday's 7:30 p.m. game.

LHS Volleyball Team Beaten By Crookston

A 2-0 loser at Crookston Tuesday, the Lincoln high school volleyball team will close out its 1980 regular season schedule with a pair of home matches before entering post-season play. The Prowlers will host East Grand Forks Thursday and will entertain Red Lake Falls Tuesday. Both varsity matches start at 7:30 p.m.

Crookston was an easy 18-11, 18-4 winner over Thief River Falls last night, dropping the Prowlers' overall record to 6-8.

"They (Crookston) couldn't do anything wrong and we couldn't do anything right," explained Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "I don't think the kids were mentally ready to play the game, and it showed."

FIFTEEN YEARS of service to the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league was recognized Thursday when Dick Bjerken (left) was presented with a distinguished service award and a personalized jacket. Neil Carlson, representing the league, made the presentation. Bjerken, whose official title is that of league commissioner, has been invaluable to the press as the league's scorekeeper, supplying in-depth game reports to both the print and electronic media — who contributed financially toward the award.

Northmen Play Brainerd On TRF Athletic Field

First place in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division will be at stake Saturday when undefeated Fergus Falls hosts unbeaten but once-tied Golden Valley Lutheran.

Elsewhere, Brainerd will be in Thief River Falls to play Northland, Crookston travels to Hibbing and Mesabi tangles with Vermilion in an Iron Range rivalry at Virginia. Itasca has a nonconference affair with the Bemidji State University junior varsity.

Fergus Falls had a bye in last week's Northern Division competition while Golden Valley Lutheran shut out Hibbing 20-0, Crookston edged Vermilion 10-7, Brainerd blanked Mesabi 14-0 and Itasca handled Northland 31-3.

Division-leading Fergus Falls, rebounding from an 0-8 finish in 1979 to 5-0 thus far this year, still has a long way to go before laying claim to the title the earning a post-season state championship playoff game against the Southern Division winner. After playing the defending champion Royals this week, the Spartans take on title contender Crookston the following Saturday, then finish against Mesabi at Virginia. Crookston and Golden Valley Lutheran played to a 7-7 tie earlier this year.

The Brainerd game, scheduled for a 1:30 p.m. kickoff on the Thief River Falls athletic field, will be the final Northern Division home game for the Northmen who close out their 1980 home schedule the following week with a nonconference start against Bismarck. The season ends Nov. 8 at Golden Valley Lutheran.

Once again Northland's offense will be under scrutiny Saturday. The Northmen have produced just 12 points over the past four weeks — four Jeff Gobell field goals.

But first-year coach John Helley feels the dormant Northland offense has shown signs of coming to life, with freshman quarterback Jeff Steuck (Fargo Oak Grove) passing for 180 yards against Itasca.

"I'm looking for a good day out of Mr. Steuck," said Helley. "We're going to put the ball in the air. Our pass blocking has been pretty good, and we hope to refine the shotgun this week."

Brainerd, despite a mediocre 3-3 record, will present problems. The Red Raiders lost by a mere 10-8 to Fergus Falls and came within 21-16 of Crookston this year. Their other loss came at the hands of Golden Valley Lutheran 25-6. They've beaten Hibbing 6-0, Itasca 30-22 and Mesabi 14-0.

"I'm sure Brainerd will be a tough opponent," warned Helley, who is once again working without a scouting report. "We just haven't had the staff to go out and scout," he explained. "I think you should scout, but you really have to go out of your way to scout in this league."

Lack of a scouting report, he said, was one reason the Northmen have had trouble offensively. "You definitely start out slower," noted Helley. "You just try to make adjustments as you go along. The lack of a scouting report is one reason why we use two types of offense. Scouting report or not, Northland has gained the reputation of a hard-hitting strong defensive team. "Our defense is pretty solid against anything," confirmed Helley.

Boosters Meet Thursday Noon, Monday Night

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club will stage a noon luncheon meeting Thursday at the Rex Cafe, with Lincoln high school head football coach John Schmitz serving as guest speaker.

The Sports Boosters' regularly scheduled Monday meeting Oct. 27 will serve as a Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) open forum for proposed changes in lengths of seasons and number of games played by Minnesota high school athletes.

The MSHSL has asked each school district throughout the state to stage the forums, open to the public, to get an input on the possible changes.

Lincoln principal Frank Hamerlinck and athletic director Russ Smith will conduct the Monday meeting, scheduled to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln cafeteria.

Sophomores Beaten By Bemidji 48-14

Combination Lincoln high school sophomore and junior varsity football season ended Monday with a 48-14 loss to Bemidji on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Jim Hallamek and Jeff Milander scored Thief River Falls touchdowns against Bemidji, with Kerry Wollin passing to Darren Wiskow for a two-point conversion.

Thief River Falls sophomore and junior varsity teams managed to win just one of nine games this fall.

The sophomores were 0-6 with losses to Grand Forks Red River 18-0 and 34-20, East Grand Forks 22-6, Crookston 26-6, Grand Forks Central 27-6 and Bemidji 48-14. The junior varsity team was 1-2, beating Grand Forks Central 26-0 but losing to Moorhead 12-6 in overtime and Crookston 27-0.

Freshmen Rip Bemidji 39-0 For 5-2 Mark

Scott Jorstad scored three touchdowns and Tim Bottem scored twice Tuesday to lead the Lincoln high school freshman football team to a 39-0 season-ending win over Bemidji on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Bottem scored on runs of 13 and 15 yards as Thief River Falls opened a 14-0 first quarter lead. Jorstad made it 26-0 at halftime on runs of 3 and 25 yards, then caught a 26-yard touchdown pass from Dave Stimac in the third quarter.

Rick Spong added a 65-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter. Gary Cornell was 3-for-6 kicking conversion points.

Thief River Falls finished 5-2, beating Crookston 22-8 and 26-6, Grand Forks Schroeder 18-12, Grand Forks Valley 46-0 and Bemidji 39-0. Losses came at the hands of East Grand Forks 6-2 and Grand Forks South 32-0.

Racquet sports — tennis, squash and racquetball — cause thousands of eye injuries each year. If you play, use safety glasses or eyeguards.

8AA Cross Country Meet Is Saturday

Lincoln high school runners will compete Saturday in the 1980 Region 8AA cross country meet at Fergus Falls. The girls race will start at 1 p.m., with the boys taking the course at 1:40.

Top two teams and top five Region 8AA individuals will earn berths in the Class AA state meet, scheduled to be held Saturday, Nov. 1, on the University of Minnesota golf course.

Northwest Athletic Conference champion Bemidji is expected to be a Region 8AA challenger in the boys competition, with perennial cross country powers St. Cloud Tech and St. Cloud Apollo expected to provide the Lumberjacks with their stiffest opposition.

St. Cloud Tech is a big favorite to win the girls race.

Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer is hoping for a finish in the middle of the pack for both the Lincoln boys and girls. "Out of the ten teams, I would hope to be in the top four in the boys and the top five or six for the girls," he said. "I think that's a realistic goal. Actually, if we get anything lower than fourth in boys I think we'll have had a pretty rotten day."

Running for the Prowlers Saturday will be seniors Karen Kloety, and Todd Bergland; juniors Kristi Forsberg, Margaret White, Susie Hanna, Bruce Johnson, Steve Hvidsten and Matt Grabanski; sophomores Lon Aune, and Steve Kruta; Freshmen Sherry Sabo and Kevin Kezar; and eighth graders Tricia Armstrong and Jackie Thune. Sophomore Tim Bergland will be an alternate for the Lincoln boys team.

Area's Top Team, Best Runningback . . .

Johnson, Pirates Await Prowlers Thursday Night

Steve Johnson. Chances are you'll be hearing that name often Thursday when the Lincoln high school football team closes out its 1980 season with a 7:30 p.m. Northwest Athletic Conference game at Crookston.

Steve Johnson. The 5-11, 185-pound senior has rushed for 1,044 yards and has scored 104 points in eight games. And with a possible five more games remaining for the Class A state playoff-bound Pirates, Johnson has a chance to score a lot more points and gain a lot more yards.

Steve Johnson. A year ago he rushed for 141 yards on just 10 carries as the Pirates ran over the Prowlers 28-8 en route to an NWAC pennant. He had his best day ever two weeks ago when he gained 228 yards in a 30-0 Crookston win over St. Peter. Last week he was "held" to 92 yards in a conference title-clinching 34-14 victory over Bemidji.

Steve Johnson. Will Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz concentrate on defending the speedster? "No, they're too good a football team — just too balanced to play one player," answered Schmitz. "And besides, I'm no so sure he's their best back."

Brent Weiss, warns Schmitz, is Johnson's equal in the Crookston backfield. He's smaller (5-10, 165-pounds) and not as fast, but he's a hard runner who has rushed for 665 yards — almost 200 yards more than any Thief River Falls ball carrier.

"They're both good backs," pointed out Schmitz. "You can put a guy on Johnson — if you can catch him — but then the other one will break loose."

With Johnson and Weiss doing most of the leg work, Crookston averages 326 yards worth of offense each week, with nearly all of it — 279 yards — coming on the ground where the Pirates average 5.5 yards per carry. Johnson averages 7.6 yards per carry and Weiss averages six yards a shot.

Quarterback Brian Bachmeier spends most of his time handing off to Johnson and Weiss. He's thrown just 22 passes all year. But four of his eight completions have gone for touchdowns. Johnson has caught two passes for 89 yards.

It's Crookston's line, working in anonymity, that accounts for a good part of the success of the Pirates' ground-gobbling straight-T offense. "They have a good quick line. They get off the ball and block well," noted Schmitz. "They're disciplined and they're quick."

Crookston has out-scored opponents 218-60 in eight games. The Pirates have never been behind this fall, out-scoring the opposition by a remarkable 91-0 margin in the first quarter. Their 4-4 defense (the same set used by the Prowlers) is giving up just 182 yards per game — just 99.8 of that on the ground.

Can the 5-3 Prowlers, who have struggled in NWAC play since beating Moorhead 33-21 to wrap up a 4-1 nonconference season schedule a month ago, beat the favored Pirates?

"They're going to be tough to beat," admitted Schmitz. "But we can compete with them with a Moorhead-type effort — no mistakes."

Elsewhere in the NWAC this week, Bemidji hosts Hermantown in a Thursday night nonconference affair, while East Grand Forks drives to Fergus Falls Friday. Sea-Range Conference champion Hermantown will be in Crookston Tuesday to begin post-season Class A playoff activity, with the winner meeting either Park Rapids or Aitkin of the Mid-State Conference in the quarterfinals later the same week. The Panthers and Gobblers play Friday to decide the Mid-State race.

+Pat Erhart of Bemidji is the NWAC scoring leader with 30 points. Johnson and Troy Hendricks of Bemidji each have 24. Johnson's 104 points is 50 more than runner-up Scott Wiebolt of Thief River Falls in the overall scoring figures.

+Erhart also leads Johnson 285-283 in the NWAC rushing charts, with Johnson and Weiss ranking 1-2 overall, ahead of Erhart who has 611 yards.

+ John Herath of Bemidji leads the NWAC in passing yardage, completing 18 of 35 passes for 22 yards. Jeff Strandell of East Grand Forks if 12-for-37 for 215 yards. Overall, Strandell is 34-for-88 for 705 yards and Dan Snustad of Fergus Falls is 43-for-108 for 488 yards.

+Scott Mesker of Fergus Falls continues to lead the NWAC with nine pass receptions for 110 yards. Hendricks has caught eight for 79 yards. Mesker is the overall leader, too, with 16 catches for 210 yards. Hendricks has caught 14 passes for 171 yards.

+Bachmeier leads the NWAC in punting with a 38.5-yard average on 11 punts. The overall leader continues to be Dean Dokkin of Thief River Falls with a 37.5-yard average on 24 punts.

+Tom Lundeen of Fergus Falls leads the NWAC in punt return yardage, returning three for 21 yards and a 7.0 average. In all games Mike Williams of East Grand Forks has returned seven punts for 103 yards and a 14.7-yard average.

+Erhart leads the kickoff return figures with six returns for 103 yards and a 17.2-yard average. In all games Lundeen has returned eight kicks for 148 yards and an 18.5-yard average.

+Crookston's 326.0-yard offensive average per game for all games is followed by Thief River Falls at 260.3; Bemidji 258.6; East Grand Forks 246.6; and Fergus Falls 169.5.

+Defensively, Crookston's 182.1-yard average is followed by East Grand Forks at 208.6; Bemidji 212.7; Fergus Falls 232.4; and Thief River Falls 246.4.

Girls State Tennis Meet Starts Today

Four-day seventh annual Minnesota State High School League-sponsored state Class AA and Class A girls tennis tournament will begin today (Wednesday) at the three Rain Tennis Clubs in St. Paul.

Team portion kicks off the event with action scheduled for the first two days. Singles and doubles play will take place on Friday and Saturday.

Today's team competition starts at 1 p.m. at Lilydale, Como and Phalen facilities. Following Wednesday's quarterfinals, winning teams will take part in Thursday's semifinals and championship action. The title match in Class A will begin at 1 p.m., with the Class AA championship match slated for 3. Both matches will be held at Lilydale Tennis Club.

Pairings for the team competition are set as a result of the completion of region tournament competition in the eight various regions in each class.

In Class AA the pairings are as follows: upper bracket — defending champion Edina East will oppose Region 8AA champion Detroit Lakes at 1 p.m. at Como, while Litchfield will meet White Bear Lake at the same time at Lilydale. Lower bracket pairings find Hastings facing Osseo at 3 at Lilydale and Rochester Mayo will go against Virginia at the same time at Phalen. Upper bracket semifinals play starts at 8:30 a.m. at Lilydale on Thursday, with the lower bracket winners set to face one another at 10:30 a.m. at Lilydale. Edina East is favored to repeat as state champion.

Class A field is scheduled this way: upper bracket — Blue Earth meets Greenway of Coleraine at Como at 3 p.m. and defending champion St. Paul Academy will dual Blake School of Minneapolis at 5, also at Como. The lower bracket will see Montevideo taking on Staples at 1 p.m. at Phalen, with Rochester Lourdes scheduled to meet Mahnomen at 5 at Lilydale. Winners will start semifinal play at 8:30 a.m. Thursday. The upper bracket victors will play at Como with the lower bracket winners set to play at Phalen. St. Paul Academy is the favorite.

Singles and doubles play in both Class AA and Class A classifications will be conducted on Friday and Saturday. Activity starts at 8:30 a.m. and will run through 4:30 p.m. at all three clubs. Saturday's semifinal play begins at 9:30 a.m. Singles championship matches are scheduled for 1 p.m. in Class A and 2:30 in Class AA. Doubles title matches begin at 1 p.m. in Class A and 2:30 in Class AA. All finals matches will take place at Lilydale.

Defending singles champions will be returning in both classes. Senior Anne Lemieux of Edina East returns in Class AA and junior Lisa Martin of St. Paul Academy is back in Class A.

LEGGING OUT YARDAGE on what appeared to be a busted play, Thief River Falls quarterback Scott Wiebolt picked up 18 yards and a first down at the East Grand Forks 25-yard line in the second quarter of Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played in Thief River Falls. Wiebolt, with the rest of his teammates headed to the right, took off around the left side until Pete Flaa (23) of the Green Wave ran him down. Four plays later Tom Ose scored on a 12-yard run for the Prowlers, putting them within 7-6 of the Green Wave with 37 seconds remaining in the first half. But Thief River Falls failed to produce the conversion points and wound up losing by that one-point margin.

Schedule

Fri., Oct. 24 — McIntosh-Winger at Kennedy, 7:30 p.m.

Marshall County Central had one of those good news-bad news type nights Tuesday to close out its 1980 high school football season. The good news was that the Nordics overwhelmed Tri-County 70-6 to finish in a first place tie in the Top of the State Conference. The bad news was that Argyle edged Hallock 15-6 to share the title with the Nordics.

Thus, Argyle, based on its 26-8 victory over Marshall County Central earlier this year, will be the Top of the State Conference representative in the 1980 Minnesota State High School League nine-man state football playoffs. The Eagles will be in Crookston Saturday for a 2 p.m. game against Agassiz Valley North champion Mount St. Benedict.

A Hallock win over Argyle last night would have sent Marshall County Central into the playoffs since the Nordics beat the Bears in conference play this fall. Hallock needed a win over Argyle and an unlikely Marshall County Central loss to winless Tri-County to gain a playoff berth.

Stephen defeated Greenbush 24-8 Tuesday to complete the Top of the State Conference schedule.

In North Tri County Conference play Tuesday, Middle River routed Oklee 47-18, Grygla handled Plummer 40-8, Goodridge beat Erskine 20-12, Gonvick outlasted Mentor 24-22 in two overtimes and McIntosh-Winger wrapped up a perfect 9-0 title-winning regular season with a 26-6 triumph over Clearbrook.

The Scots will enter the state nine-man playoffs Friday with a 7:30 p.m. game at Kennedy, the Northern Lights Conference champion.

Winners of the Argyle vs. Mount St. Benedict and Kennedy vs. McIntosh-Winger games will meet in the state nine-man quarterfinals next week.

Tri-County 6

Gordy Collin scored four touchdowns and Dave Kragness was a perfect 8-for-8 in conversion kicks as Marshall County Central clobbered winless Tri-County 70-6 in a Top of the State Conference game played at Newfolden.

Collin scored on runs of 5, 22 and 11 yards and caught a 12-yard touchdown pass from Kragness in the Nordics' offensive assault that produced a 35-0 halftime lead. Todd Stokke and Allen Lindemoen both scored twice for the winners who ran up 387 yards worth of offense — 289 on the ground.

"Things were going good for us," confirmed Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "Our offense was really moving."

The victory capped a fine 7-2 season for the Nordics, who won four straight season-ending games after dropping that title-deciding game to Argyle.

"It was really a great season," stressed Gebhart, who still admitted to feeling disappointed over the failure to land a playoff berth. "It takes away from our conference championship," he said of the playoff opportunity that slipped away. "But we had our chance to beat Argyle, and we just didn't do it."

Grygla 40
Plummer 8

In a match-up of winless North Tri County Conference cellar-dwellers, Grygla defeated Plummer 40-8.

Plummer scored first on a 35-yard first quarter touchdown run by Dean Sletten and a Brad Rosten conversion pass to Karl Sorenson. But Grygla then proceded to score six unanswered touchdowns before capping the day with a fourth quarter safety.

John Nordby threw four touchdown passes for the host Eagles, two apiece to Rodney Hagen and Daryl Anderson.

"We had a super game," mentioned Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "Our line really dominated their line from the very start. We were able to run the ball whenever we wanted."

Middle River finished with 253 yards on the ground, with Steve Bengston rushing for 103 yards on 17 carries and Mike

Nordics Win, Eagles Advance

Peterson getting 94 yards on just nine tries, scoring twice.

The host Skippers ran up a 33-0 halftime lead. Middle River was playing without standout Scott McKeever, who suffered a severe ligament pull on the inside of his knee in a 34-6 loss to McIntosh-Winger two weeks ago that eliminated the Skippers from the North Tri County Conference pennant race. McKeever is expected to be ready to play basketball this winter.

"It was a pretty good year," said Sparby about the 7-2 finish, but he still wasn't completely satisfied after eyeing the conference title for most of the fall.

Oklee, unbeaten for seven weeks, lost its last two starts.

"They (Middle River) played well," said Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "I'm not real happy with the way we played. They beat us in everything. It was poor."

Oklee produced little yardage on the ground, relying mostly on the passing of Bronken, who was 12-for-31 for 103 yards.

Erskine 12

Goodridge quarterback Mike Drangstveit threw two touchdown passes to Carroll Bishop and scored once himself as the Huskies extended their season-ending North Tri County Conference winning streak to three games with a 20-12 victory over Erskine.

The two teams matched touchdowns in the first two quarters, but Goodridge took a 14-12 lead into intermission on the strength of two Ken Machida conversion kicks.

Drangstveit, who hit Bishop with a 29-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and found him again for a 26-yard scoring play in the second period, added a one-yard insurance touchdown early in the fourth quarter.

Goodridge finished 4-5. "The whole team played well," said Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "We were really pleased with our offensive line. They came off the ball well when we needed it."

Rory Haugen led the Goodridge ground game with 79 yards on 11 carries. Bishop added 58 yards on 14 tries.

DNR Checks Water Level In 95 Lakes

Department of Natural Resources reported that changes in water level were monitored at 95 Minnesota lakes this summer.

Employees of the DNR's division of waters, with the assistance of voluntary observers, take readings at lake gauges.

Gauges are spotted throughout the state so as to provide the Department with information needed for planning and managing water, fish and wildlife resources.

Officials said anyone desiring information of the lake level monitoring program may contact DNR hydrologists, located at area and regional headquarters, or the division of waters hydrographics unit in St. Paul. Phone 612-296-4806.

Trappers Are Reminded Of New Regulation

Minnesota trappers were reminded that a new regulation of the Department of Natural Resources prohibits placing traps within 20 feet of any open bait which can be seen by soaring birds.

Reason for the regulation is to protect hawks, owls, eagles and other nongame species which are attracted by the sight of carrion. Birds of prey can become caught and mortally injured in traps set near carrion baits.

Skogerboe Has Conservative Political View

jamin Franklin 4.

While I was in college I was appalled by the arrogant attitude of many liberal professors. They seemed to believe that they knew better how people should run their lives than the people themselves. They had contempt for time-honored ideas. One professor told me the first thing I should do was forget my confirmation vows. Every year the feeling that, "Average people can't do anything right without government help" seems to grow.

Ralph Nader once commented that a good background for a politician would be restaurant work. I was trained by the Steak N'Ale corporation and filled every job function from dishwasher to waiter to manager during my 4½ years with them. I learned that the best possible work situation is one in which the managers and employees all care about one another's success and the success of the business.

I appreciated it every time a bus boy or waitress would ask, "how did WE do tonight?" I am very opposed to the liberal idea that puts management and labor into opposite camps; a divisive atmosphere hurts productivity which means less profit, which means fewer jobs.

I left restaurant work to pursue a career as a professional musician, which was finally ended by two operations on my vocal cords. Music enabled me to get to know people of every walk of life and get a real feeling for their concerns. While I was having voice troubles, I got my real estate license, selling real estate part time and I later sold and trucked pottery all over the southwest.

We returned home yearly to visit both our families, but employment commitments of either my wife, an RN, or myself kept us in the South. While I lived there I never had a real feeling of home so I was glad when circumstances allowed us to move back to northern Minnesota.

I was working on a farm by Donaldson when I was asked to attend the screening of potential Independent Republican candidates. I told them that I truly believed Jefferson when he said, "Government governs best that governs least," and that I wanted my children to be able to freely choose their paths in life. They must have agreed because I was unopposed for the endorsement.

I have enjoyed meeting and learning from the people in this district. I was happy to find how conservative the vast majority of you really are, and how much you detest waste and abuse of power by government.

I would like to close this article with several things I wrote over three years ago:

First: "I am convinced there is a right and wrong way to approach all the problems that confront us. The solution must not cause greater problems. The cure must not cause freedom to erode. The changes must benefit the majority without serious individual burden."

Second: "America is freedom's last lamp.

Let her shine forever;
If there exists true bravery in any man's heart,
It must be expressed now;
For we who listen can hear the wind of slavery blowing ever closer to the shores of our children's souls."

Third: "Listen to me when I speak of truth, for I cherish it like my own son, even though I, being man, have betrayed her many times, but my conscience lives and my ears are open."

Freedom is the right to make choices. It must never be abused or it will be destroyed by its own indulgence. Freedom is the absence of fear, the presence of hope, the dream come true of all the oppressed masses and the responsible path toward real civilization.

Farmers May Nominate For ASC Elections

Only a few days remain to nominate farmers as candidates in the upcoming agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) community committee elections, according to chairmen of the Marshall and Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committees.

First duty of the newly elected community committee members will be to serve as delegates to elect members of the county ASC committee. The chairmen reminded producers that this is an important occasion for the responsible, farmer-chosen team of ASC community committee members who will help administer government programs.

The ASC community committee elections will be conducted by mail from November 14 to December 1. By turning in a total of six or more petitions, farmers in each ASC community have the opportunity to prepare the slate of nominees themselves.

Shortly after October 27, all petitions will be reviewed. If six or more valid petitions have been received for an ASC community, the county ASCS office will prepare a slate containing the names of all eligible nominees. If less than six valid petitions are received for any ASC community, the incumbent community committee will add nominees needed to complete the slate.

To submit a valid petition, three or more ASC farm voters must sign a statement endorsing an eligible candidate. The statement must include certification that the nominee will serve if elected. Petitions must be dated and mailed or hand-delivered to the county ASC office no later than October 27.

Horn of Plenty

This great land of ours has been blessed with the riches of the earth and with the freedoms and rights to enjoy them. But does the mere ownership of these goods guarantee our happiness?

All of us have experienced a disappointment at finally possessing some much-desired article. After weeks and sometimes years of looking forward to it, we find that the actual ownership brings little pleasure.

Could the fault lie with the gift itself? No, apparently it is within ourselves. Our own attitudes, our own relationships, our own understanding have certainly much more to do with our final satisfaction.

How then are we to derive the greatest blessings from the goods which have been put at our disposal? The best place to begin is at your place of worship. Here, in a personal search for God and our own understanding of Him, we may achieve a spiritual harmony, which will bless our lives and those of our fellow men.

Huge Deposits of Domestic Energy Await Discovery

There is still domestic oil and gas to be found. According to the U.S. Geological Survey, waters surrounding Alaska alone could contain up to 18 billion barrels of oil and as much as 60 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

These potential additions amount to 55 percent of currently proven oil reserves and 30 percent of proven gas reserves in the U.S.

Although there may well be huge deposits of domestic oil and gas waiting to be discovered, declines in production from existing fields are expected to more than offset production from new fields.

These are finite resources that must be supplemented by other available energy sources such as coal and nuclear, which have yet to be fully developed.

As long as environmental and regulatory roadblocks remain in place, even finding new deposits of fossil fuel—which can be located in high-risk, remote, and even environmentally hostile places—will remain a slow and costly endeavor. Indeed, the political climate characterized by onerous taxes on domestic production, and which nurtures name-calling and obstruction, does little to make the good news better.

Encouragingly, experts at Mobil Oil Corporation believe that industry can provide the oil and gas (and coal and nuclear power) our country will need in the energy-short years ahead.

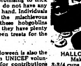
TREAT UNICEF VOLUNTEERS ON HALLOWEEN

Halloween. The name conjures up an image of ghosts, goblins and witches on the prowl demanding treats or promising to trick those who do not have any goodies on hand. Individuals wise to the mischievous ways of these hobgoblins make sure they have plenty of Halloween treats for the big night.

But Halloween is also the night when UNICEF volunteers ask for contributions to help children in other lands. These hard working people donate their time and energy to help others and they deserve a reward. So why not invite your neighborhood UNICEF volunteers in for a special "treat" after they have finished for the evening?

You can serve Halloween Pops made with a new and exclusive flavor from Royal Desserts. New Royal Apple Gelatin, when combined with light corn syrup, red cinnamon candies and water, frozen and then whipped, will make a light, refreshing snack that is just right after an evening of going door to door.

And when prepared according to package directions, apple gelatin brings a fresh apple taste to any meal and is the base for many flavorful dishes.



HALLOWEEN POPS
Makes 7 pops
3-3/4 cups water
1/4 cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon red cinnamon candies
1 package (3 oz.) Royal Apple Gelatin

Combine 1 1/4 cups water, corn syrup and cinnamon candies in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring until candies are melted. Remove from heat. Stir in Royal Apple Gelatin until dissolved. Mix in remaining water. Pour into a 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Freeze 2 1/2 to 3 hours, or until mixture is almost frozen.

Transfer nearly frozen mixture to a chilled mixing bowl and beat on high speed of electric mixer until light and fluffy. Spoon into 5 oz. paper cups. Return to freezer. After about 1 hour place a plastic spoon or wooden stick upright in the center of each cup. Continue freezing until firm.

Peel off paper cup to serve.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland reports on Inflation
—The Cruelest Tax

No one is able to escape the grasp of this unfortunate economic disease. We feel its impact in the grocery store, when buying clothes for the kids and every time we drive up to the gas pump. It strikes most cruelly the elderly on fixed incomes. The prime villian is excessive government spending and deficit budgets. We cannot afford to spend, year after year, more than is collected in tax revenues.

For fiscal year 1981, federal spending is expected to top $633.8 billion with $75 billion going just to pay the interest on our national debt.

In order to hold down inflation, I have introduced two constitutional amendments: (1) House Joint Resolution 14, would provide that appropriations made by the United States government shall not exceed its revenues, except in time of war or national emergency, and to provide repayment of the national debt; (2) House Joint Resolution 395, limits the spending of the federal government to not more than 21% of our gross national product.

I support a sensible, immediate 10% tax reduction plan. We must reduce income taxes on personal and business income so as to allow for increased spending, investment and savings by the individual and the private sector, not government.

Re-elect Congressman Arlan
STANGELAND
He's One Of Us Working For All Of Us.

Aiding Non-Game Wildlife

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Congress has given final approval to a new non-game fish and wildlife conservation act which will provide funding for comprehensive programs to benefit non-game fish and wildlife.

Waterfowl hunters will help pay for programs. So will anyone who hunts deer, ruffed grouse or any other game species. Anglers will pay their share.

The act authorizes the Fish and Wildlife Service to apportion 20 million dollars over four years to the state fish and wildlife agencies for non-game purposes. States may use the funds for planning comprehensive wildlife management programs and for implementing these plans. They may also use the money for special projects that benefit non-game until their overall plans are completed and approved by the Service.

Fortunately, the bill also directs the Fish and Wildlife Service to conduct a study of alternative funding sources to support the national non-game effort and to report the findings to Congress within 30 months.

Originally, the bill called for an 11 per cent manufacturers' excise tax on wild bird feeders, feed, baths and houses to pay for project and plan implementation. That seems entirely reasonable. Hunters and anglers contribute substantially — and willingly — through excise taxes. But there was strong opposition to the excise tax proposal from wild bird seed packagers.

Minnesota has been involved in a non-game program for several years, with funding mainly from hunting, trapping and fishing license revenues.

A bill passed by the state legislature during the last session will allow residents to designate a portion of their state income tax refund for 1980 for non-game wildlife conservation. It's often called the "Chickadee checkoff." Colorado has been receiving more than $500,000 annually from this system for a number of years, and Oregon started a similar program this year. It will be interesting to see how cooperative Minnesotans are in providing funds for the non-game programs.

Conservationists and wildlife experts have urged for years that greater attention be given to the needs of species which are not hunted for sport or food. Unless there is a concerted effort on the part of organizations and individuals particularly interested in non-game species, however, it appears that the major portion of the cost will be carried by hunters and fishermen.

It is ironic that the sportsman, who is under constant attack by many well-heeled groups, should be the principal source of revenue for non-game programs. The study to develop alternative funding sources will be important.

Differing Viewpoints

Editor Jerry Doggett of the Bemidji Pioneer takes exception to the tone of an editorial recently published in the Moorhead state university newspaper. Two differing viewpoints are expressed by Chuck Dewey, editor of the student paper, and Doggett. Both have some merit. Here is what Doggett wrote:

"Don't bother me with democracy, I'm too busy pursuing my freedoms!" seems the message from Moorhead State University Student Editor Chuck Dewey in an editorial published last week in "The Advocate," the student newspaper.

We have repeatedly bemoaned the lack of participation from our young, especially in the political processes. To find this from a future American journalist was almost too much.

But read Mr. Dewey's editorial for yourself:

"Once again the do-gooders of democracy are on their holy crusade to get as many bodies as possible registered to vote in the November elections.

"They will accost you in the halls; they will seek you out in your dorm room. They will gasp with disbelief if you tell them you do not plan to vote. These people equate not going to the polls with spitting on Abe Lincoln's grave, pleading that it is 'your constitutional obligation and your patriotic duty'.

"Wrong. It is not an obligation or a duty. It is a right. And with the right to vote come the equally important right not to vote.

"Registration types are obsessed with driving potential voters to the ballot box by making them feel guilty. Guilt is not a very good reason to vote; it motivates voters who don't know the difference between the United States Congress and the Minnesota House of Representatives, or who think Wendell Anderson is still the governor of Minnesota. That type of voter should not be prevented from voting but they shouldn't be encouraged, either.

"Information should be available for all. Those interested in government will have no trouble finding that information and putting it to use. Those who have no real interest have a right not to be harassed for a month every election year by well-meaning political zealots.

"Contrary to what most people believe, massive voter registration is not necessarily the right road to take for political change in America; it preserves the status quo. These voters who trudge off to the polls because they are told it is 'the right thing to do' are the ones who are likely to conform to America's perverted belief that the two-party system is the only system. If candidates like Libertarian Ed Clarke and Socialist David McReynolds are to get a fair hearing, it won't be duty-bound, biennial patriots; it will be by people who care enough to take the time to think.

"My message to voter registration fantics is simple: don't ram your beliefs down people's throats. You can't force feed political awareness. Remember that voting is not an obligation or duty, it's a right."

Mr. Dewey used the terms "obligation" and "duty" with an oppressive hand. But no where in his editorial did he use the more appropriate term, "responsibility," and that, in the contest of voting, is a two-fold thing having to do not only with voting but in becoming knowledgeable enough to cast an intelligent ballot as well.

Is that an unreasonable expectation, especially among the student body of a state university? (Is there actually someone on campus there who believes Anderson is still governor?)

We should also note that third and fourth and fifth party candidates are on the ballot and are actively seeking votes. Beyond this process, which a large part of the world envies, what road to political change is warranted?

Mr. Dewey's position becomes even more disturbing when we consider that it likely reflects the beliefs of many of his peers, a reality present at every election.

Where did we go wrong?

More importantly, how can we correct such disdain of that which is fundamental to our democratic existence?

Caving In On Pensions

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

The U.S. House of Representatives caved in to the arm of federal workers and pensioners just before adjournment when it dropped a proposal to end the twice-yearly inflation adjustments in federal pensions.

The proposal was to have just one, rather than two, cost-of-living adjustments in federal pensions every year. It would have cost federal pensioners about $756 million a year. It would have saved all the taxpayers an equal amount. But the House voted 309 to 72 to drop the idea.

Connecticut's Robert Giaimo, House budget committee chairman, called the present twice-a-year federal pension adjustments the "least justifiable federal program." His colleagues ignored him, but he was exactly right.

A civil servant who retired from a $25,000-a-year federal job in 1970 now draws a pension of about $35,000. In the private sector, pension income has increased much less dramatically, if at all.

There's a reason for this. Private pension programs, in most cases, simply can't afford automatic cost-of-living increases. The federal government doesn't have to worry about affording anything, according to the Democratically-controlled Congress. It establishes benefits and then declares they are "uncontrollable costs that can't be cut." It finances them with inflation-causing deficits.

This particular "uncontrollable cost" can't be cut because the House is peopled with only 72 representatives who were looking out for their constituents and 309 who were looking out more for themselves and the government's employees than for the rest of the citizens.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A football fan is a guy who berates a quarterback for not being able to pinpoint a receiver 49 yards down field, then can't find his own car in the parking lot after the game.

There are bigger things in life than money. Bills, for instance.

Gov. Quie's Column

Commitment to Education

Last week speaking to teachers at the Minnesota Education Association (MEA) I restated my firm commitment to increased education funding in the next biennium.

As I said, first to the Minnesota Association of School Administrators (Superintendents) in September and again to the MEA teachers, the $89 million reduction in state aids to elementary and secondary education is a one-time occurrence. I will recommend to the 1981 Legislature that the $1.082 billion level of state aid, which was the level of aid before the recent budget cutback, be used as the base for the 1982-83 biennium. From that base I will recommend an additional 9.1 per cent increase for the school year beginning September 1981 and 8.6 per cent for the school year beginning September 1982. In per pupil unit aid, I will be seeking an increase from $1,265 to $1,354 for the 1982-83 school year and $1,449 per pupil unit for the 1983-84 school year. In total, this will amount to a $298.5 million increase in education funding for the next biennium.

In regard to the 1982-83 budget, education stands as my first priority. No matter what happens to state revenues I will seek this additional funding for education.

In making this statement, I am providing local school districts with assurance that they will have the funding to keep up with inflation. While districts may have to tighten their belts, use their cash reserves or borrow funds during this school year, they can look ahead with confidence, knowing that I am committed to increased educational funding for the next biennium.

In speaking about my commitment to education funding, I believe it is important to explain again how we arrived at our current budget situation which made these cuts necessary.

There are two reasons why Minnesota no longer has a budget surplus, and one reason why we face a deficit.

The first reason is one that I'm sure most citizens are very happy about. In 1979 and 1980, the Legislature, at my insistence, passed laws resulting in $777 million in tax relief. This amounts to nearly $200 in tax cuts for every man, woman and child in the state. The second reason is simply that the Legislature overspent. In 1979 and 1980 I repeatedly asked the Legislature to leave a sensible cushion of state revenues for unexpected turns in the economy such as the one we are now experiencing. However, legislators refused to believe the Department of Finance revenue projections and in 1980 actually overspent. To achieve a balanced budget I vetoed line item appropriations. My vetoes left, according to the Department of Finance estimate, a $3.7 million reserve.

These two reasons explain why there is no surplus. However, there is only one reason why the state faces a projected deficit: A faltering national economy. Federal economic policy, including uncontrolled inflation and strict federal credit controls, curbed Minnesotans' buying and resulted in decreased revenues in sales and corporation taxes.

It may be alarming to learn that our national economy could have such a devastating effect upon the state. But looking at neighboring states, we can see the same situation in Wisconsin, Iowa, South Dakota and many other states. All have had to cut budgets.

Yet, to be certain the cuts were necessary, I called in economists from the Federal Reserve Bank, the University of Minnesota and Northwestern National Bank. They confirmed the finance department figures and predictions. All agreed that Minnesota's expenditures would exceed our projected revenues and that a deficit would occur if spending wasn't cut.

After consulting with these experts and faced with my constitutional obligation to balance the budget, I implemented the most fair and equitable plan to reduce state spending. All state spending, beyond essential human services, would be cut by 8.3 per cent. To include in this cut, state aids to local governments and schools was one of the most difficult decisions of my administration.

As always in dealing with economic trends, it is next to impossible to predict accurately future revenues. However, because of my strong, personal conviction to quality education for our young people, I am committed to increased education funding in the 1982-83 biennium, no matter what state revenues are. No other agency or department has received such a commitment.

How Motormedics Help Us

Motormedics: they can make the crucial difference in a life-and-death race over crowded highways.

On the highways and busy streets of Paris, on West Germany's Autobahnen, and along the fast-moving and sometimes clogged highways of Chicago, the sight of motorcycles racing by has taken on a new meaning:

These cycles are manned by members of a growing trend in emergency medical care. It's called Motormedics—paramedical personnel two-wheeling their way to the scene of an accident or other medical emergency.

Although the program has been in operation for a number of years in Europe, it's just catching on in the U.S. It got off to a good start earlier this year in Chicago and is being considered by several major cities.

Paramedics on motorcycles can get to a crash scene with minimum delay. Once there, they can stabilize casualties until mobile intensive care units (MICUs) get there.

The MICUs must be used to remove casualties from the scene of an accident, but evacuation time isn't critical because the patients have been stabilized quickly, sometimes long before the ambulances can work their way through heavy traffic.

The Northfield (Ill.) Rescue Squad has initiated a training program for paramedics which includes motorcycle safety, approach procedures and traffic control. Northeastern Illinois University offers Motormedics an initial 20-hour program—12 hours of practice on a motorcycle and eight hours of class time.

Dr. Willis Wingert, a member of the American Medical Assn.'s Committee on Emergency Medical Service, recommends that the "Northfield system be developed and documented as a national demonstration program."

The Motorcycle Industry Council sees the Motormedic program as a creative use for motorcycles to save time and lives in traffic-congested environments.

NEWS OF AUTOMOBILES

The 1981 Aries offers higher fuel efficiency and lower maintenance costs.

New and improved small cars from an old established American company may mean big things for this country.

This year, drivers can expect American-made cars that get many more miles to the tankful than ever before.

U.S. cars today are technologically advanced and comfortable as well as fuel-efficient.

For example, one youthful-looking new automobile can seat six people in its two-door, four-door or station wagon models, yet it's nearly two feet shorter than the models it replaces and about 800 pounds lighter than cars of just a few years ago.

The experts at Chrysler Corporation who created this aerodynamically-styled Dodge Aries expect it to achieve 25 miles per gallon in the city and 41 miles per gallon on the highway; that's about 25 percent better fuel economy than its predecessors.

This front wheel drive car, called "the right car for the right time," has also been designed to reduce maintenance costs.

Extensive use of galvanized steel and anti-corrosion material helps insure long corrosion-free car life. Soft molded sponge rubber seals between the doors and trim panels help cut down air and water leaks. The seals make the car quieter, too. The car comes with a number of self-adjusting features that reduce the amount of maintenance needed. Its engine parts are easy to find, reach, and work with, making maintenance easier and saving its owners time and money.

That little car's "older brother," the Dodge Omni, is Chrysler's first domestically-produced front wheel drive passenger car. This year it has a new, sportier look and an optional 2.2 liter engine. Dodge's 024 has a new, sportier look, too.

A new addition to the diplomat line is a low-priced, two-door sports car that comes with automatic transmission, power steering and glass belted white sidewall tires as standard equipment.

The 1981 Mirada's CMX package includes an optional "convertible roof" as well as redesigned seats for more comfort.

Some models of the 1981 Colts have a "TwinStick" transmission that offers economy or power modes.

This year's Challenger of*fers more head and leg room* for rear seat passengers and a remote release for the fuel filler door lock.

THE BUTLER STORE-N-DRY SYSTEMS
With Butler perforated plank floors, grain drying in bins, 15' through 60' in diameter, is made even easier. The erection job is simplified with special steel columns that snap directly to the plank eliminating the need for additional beams. Each 13" column has holes strategically placed to assure even air flow in the plenum area. Fast, clean-out of the bin is a cinch. The flat floor design allows a sweep auger to pick up the grain quickly and thoroughly.

FLAKY FOLDOVERS USE AMERICA'S FAVORITE FRUIT

"An apple a day" has been popular advice for more than 300 years, and this crisp, delicious fruit is still America's favorite.

Flaky Apple Foldovers are an excellent way to savor the tart, tangy goodness of the season's fresh apples. The flaky turnovers are good warm or cool, so you can serve them for dessert, then enjoy any leftovers as snacks. Using refrigerated biscuit dough for the crust makes them especially easy to make.

Calorie counters will also be delighted to learn that this apple treat has only 167 calories, less than half the number for a piece of regular apple pie.

FLAKY APPLE FOLDOVERS

10-oz. can Hungry Jack refrigerated flaky biscuits
2/3 cup sugar
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 1/4 cups finely chopped, peeled apples
1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted

Heat oven to 375°F. Separate dough into 10 biscuits. Press or roll each to a 4-inch circle. In small bowl, combine sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Spoon about 2 tablespoons apples onto center of each flattened biscuit. Spoon 1 teaspoon sugar mixture over apples.

Fold dough in half over filling; press edges with fork to seal. Dip both sides of each in margarine, then in remaining sugar mixture. Place in ungreased 15x10-inch jelly roll pan or 13x9-inch pan.

Bake at 375°F. for 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pan to cool. Serve warm or cool. 10 turnovers.

The Vanishing Prairie — Is It Gone Forever?

Part I

The pings and twangs of steel plowshears slashing through the wiry matted roots sounded a requiem for the American tallgrass prairie.

Once it was that "vast something," as Walt Whitman called it; an inland sea of six-foot tall grasses peppered with sparkling purple and yellow wildflowers.

It carpeted a third of the continental United States just a century ago, stretching from Saskatchewan to San Antonio, from the Ohio River Valley to the Nebraska Sandhills.

Only swatches of it remain today.

"And now even that's being threatened," says Dr. Richard Pemble, a professor of biology at Moorhead state university and a specialist in plant and prairie ecology.

"If you look at the prairie as a kind of genetic insurance, maybe its loss would seem more dramatic," Pemble explained. "These grasslands are home for a variety of very specialized species of plants that aren't found anywhere else in nature. Some day we might need one of those plants — to cure cancer, maybe, or to feed the world. And what if its's not there?"

The tearing and ripping of the prairie began in earnest soon after 1837 when John Deere, an Illinois blacksmith, introduced a plow made from polished sawblade steel. It was a slick, razor's edge compared to the old cast iron plows that suited the eastern sandy soils, but bogged down in the sticky loam of the prairie.

Tough prairie grasses that hadn't been disturbed for 10,000 years went belly up against the sharp, shiny steel while the immigrant sodbusters kneaded the ancient, organic soilbed into what's become the breadbasket of the world.

The corn belt and golden waves of grain now cover the windswept landscape that used to feed 60 million buffalo, Pemble said. Chicago, Minneapolis, Omaha and thousands of other cities and suburbs threw a blanket of concrete over much of the rest.

Most of what's left, Pemble said, sits on marginal soil, too sandy or rocky to farm or too out-of-the-way for freeways and fast-food franchises.

But irrigation technology has made the sandy soils tempting to plow. New rock picking machines can sweep a virgin prairie as clean as a backyard garden. And a growing demand for gravel in the construction industry is casting profit-seeking eyes in the prairie's direction.

In the next 50 years, Pemble said, the only prairie left might huddle behind public fences.

Less than one per cent of the original 450 million square miles of American tallgrass prairie has escaped the maw of civilization. A third of Minnesota used to be prairie, Pemble said. Now only 20 square miles are left in their original, unbroken condition.

In a 1973 survey for the Minnesota Academy of Science, Pemble found that less than five per cent of the original prairie landscape remained in three western Minnesota counties: Clay, Wilkin and Norman.

"Since then I've seen much of what's left there disappear. I saw it disappearing in 1974, 1975 and I'm still watching it go," said Pemble, who's currently writing a chapter for a Red River Valley Historical Society book on preserving the native prairie landscape.

The Nature Conservency, a non-profit national land conservation organization is one group trying to preserve remnants of the prairie. It owns 39,000 acres of virgin prairie in the United States, including 160 acres in Clay County, just outside of Felton, MN, called the Blazing Star Prairie. Pemble often advises the conservancy on identifying native plants there.

Moorhead State's backyard, Clay County, has its share of preserved prairie land. Besides the Blazing Star, there's 1,200 acres on the Bluestem Prairie 12 miles east of Moorhead, where Pemble heads a management committee; 240 acres on the Audubon Prairie, eight miles southwest of Hawley; and 160 acres in the Clay County Bicentennial Prairie, also just outside of Felton.

All of them sit on or near the sandy beaches of ancient Lake Agassiz and have been evolving since the last glacial ice sheet retreated from the valley 10,000 years ago.

Pemble estimates that Clay County holds another 2,000 or so acres of virgin prairie, kept in private ownership. "Much of that's being hayed or grazed lightly," Pemble said. "And that really doesn't harm the land anymore than a herd of native buffalo would."

There are a few bright spots in the future of the prairie.

The Minnesota Legislature this spring passed a law giving tax breaks to owners of native prairie tracts — similar to the long-standing revenue incentives for preserved wetlands. In effect, owners of 10 acres or more of virgin prairie are exempted from paying real estate taxes on the land if they agree to preserve it in its natural state.

The North Dakota Blue Cross and Blue Shield building of West Fargo is surrounded by seven acres of newly planted prairie grasses and wildflowers. It looks scruffy now, an official there says, but in 10 years there will be grasses here seven to eight feet tall. "Besides," he said, "one of the main reasons we planted it is to keep down maintenance costs. It doesn't have to be mowed, watered, fertilized or weeded, except for a controlled burn every few years."

A recent article in Organic Gardening magazine outlined how homeowners could replace a pampered, energy-intensive lawn with virtually maintenance-free prairie grasses and wildflowers. It's catching on, the magazine says.

But it all may be too little and too late, Pemble said. Prairie land keeps fading away. And once it's gone, it's gone forever.

The likeness of a prairie can be grown in five or 10 years, Pemble said. But to restore a true prairie ecosystem with all its subtleties and complexities could take 200, maybe 500 years. Some biologists say it can't be done.

Certain prairie wildflowers, for example, are nearly impossible to reseed because they require for growth special soil microbes that vanished with the original soil.

At first glance, the prairie doesn't give off a fragile air. Its vast stretches of buff and brown grasses seem as tenacious and indestructible as a mountain range.

The immigrants called it a "sea of grass" because the entire landscape shimmered and rolled in the wind like ocean waves.

Some pioneers were driven mad by the flat, monotonous vistas that never seemed to end or vary.

To find the origins of the prairie, look back 35 million years when the earth coughed up the Rocky Mountains. It changed the climate and reduced the amount of rainfall on the center of the continent.

The North American prairie — the largest continguous area of grasses in the world — developed in the pattern of the other large grasslands of the world — the Asian steppes, the velds of South Africa and the pampas of eastern South America. Almost constant winds, swooping ups and downs of temperature and reluctant rains created a climate suited for the grasses.

Where rainfall averaged less than 10 inches a year, Pemble said, short and mixed grass prairies developed, mostly on the western third of the continent, including most of North Dakota. The tallgrass prairie, often called the true prairie, evolved in the center of the country where rainfall averaged 20 to 35 inches. Sometimes these grasses towered eight feet tall, higher than a horse's ears.

You won't find any trees on a virgin prairie, unless they run along a riverbed or stream, Pemble said. Woody plants require more rain than the prairie offers. Only on the eastern or far western margins, where moisture increases, do trees try to nudge their way onto the prairie.

To survive on the dry, windy flatlands, Pemble said, prairie grasses and flowers pushed their roots deep into the earth for moisture and stability. Big bluestem and Indiangrass, common prairie grasses, sink their roots seven to eight feet down. Other prairie plants have root systems extending 20 feet into the soil.

About two-thirds of the vegetation of prairie grasses and flowers grow below the surface of the ground, Pemble said. What you see is only about a third of what there is.

That partly explains why the grasslands are weedless. Unwelcome plants just can't compete in the deeply rooted, heavily compacted prairie community.

"Yes, I suppose trudging through miles and miles of prairie may have seemed tiring and monotonous to the early settlers," Pemble said. "But they had their heads up, looking for a destination, a home. Keep your eyes on the ground and you'll see one of the most complex ecosystems in the world."

NEWS OF SPORTS

A tennis ball may seem to be a relatively soft, safe object. Hurtling through the air at 100 miles per hour or more, it becomes a hard missile that can cause serious injury if it strikes you in the eye.

Thousands of players suffer eye damage from racquet sports each year; they are the leading cause of sports-related eye injuries among adults.

Unprotected eyes are open to injury and possible vision impairment, most of which could be prevented, says the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

Safety eyewear can absorb the impact of the ball or racquet, and can help players overcome the fear of being hit in the eye.

Racquetball, tennis and other sports enthusiasts should wear either safety eyeguards or industrial-quality safety glasses. Eye protection is available for everyone—for those who don't normally wear glasses as well as those who wear prescription glasses or contact lenses.

STOCKING OF SHELVES has been progressing rapidly during the past several days as Falls Red Owl prepares for its opening Tuesday morning. The all new store located east of highway 59 near Kmart in Thief River Falls will observe its grand opening Tuesday through Friday with free registration, special prices, free coffee and doughnut holes, ice cream cones, pop and pizza during special times of the day. Owners Earl Benson and Dave Bergman and manager Cornell Rygh invite the public to participate in the open house.

Local Scouts Supported By United Way Funding

A major portion of Thief River Falls area United Way contributions are allocated to area youth groups (30 per cent), primarily to the Northern Lights Council of the Boys Scouts of America (BSA) and to the Pine to Prairie council of the Girl Scouts, according to Mrs. Ihla Anderson, United Way board member.

United Way contribution support this year for each of the groups is $7,000. Money allocations to other groups include health, 33 per cent; handicapped, 21 per cent; family, 11 per cent; elderly, 3 per cent; and administration, 2 per cent.

Funds to support the BSA organization provide for overall leadership, and organization and training for the local Scout programs. They also provide for professional staff supervision, the organization of new Scouting units and service for existing units, the training of volunteer leaders, and the maintenance of council camps.

Assisted by their parents, boys in Cub Scouting and Boy Scouting and the young men and women in Exploring pay their share from personal savings and participation in money-earning projects. Members buy their own uniforms, handbooks and personal equipment and pay their own camp fees.

Membership dues and funds from special money-earning projects meet expenses for supplies and activities in the Cub Scout pack, Boy Scout troop, and Explorer post. These monies pay for camping equipment, registration fees, "Boy's Life" magazine, uniform insignia, special activities, and program materials.

Each chartered organization using the Scouting program provides a meeting place and adult volunteer leadership for its BSA unit or units, according to a recent release on the BSA.

Funds to support the national organization of the BSA come from registration fees, "Scouting," "Exploring," and Boy's Life magazines; sale of uniforms and equipment; contributions from individuals, and foundation grants.

These monies help to deliver the program of the BSA (through six regional service centers, 29 area offices, and more than 400 local councils) to chartered organizations that use the Scouting program to meet the needs of their youth.

The national office provides local councils with program development and evaluation as well as camp and office planning, financial counseling and professional personnel support, and coordinates a communications network through magazines and literature (handbooks, merit badge pamphlets, brochures, and training materials).

Stumpf Lists Issues In Quest Of State Office

(Editor's Note: In an effort to most fairly permit political candidates to use our newspaper to inform the voting public about their candidacy, we have invited the state legislative candidates to express their views in personal articles. We invite you to read the following article and the one by his opponent in this issue.)

by LeRoy Stumpf

I am running for the House of Representatives in District 1-B which includes Pennington and Red Lake counties and parts of Marshall and Polk counties. Having never run for political office before, many people have asked what prompted me to throw my hat into the political ring nearly a year ago.

The reasons are many, but basically I was prompted by a growing concern for the immediate needs of this area as well as the need to establish some long range goals for this area and its people. I feel I have a great deal of experience to offer as well as a common sense approach to problem solving.

One of the areas that needs attention in the 1981 legislative session is to deal with the funding problems for our educational system. The 89 million dollars lost to our elementary and secondary schools should not be a permanent cut that would have to be made up with increased real estate taxes or end up with a lower quality educational system. Our schools need these dollars restored in order to allow our children to continue obtaining a top quality education.

Real estate taxes are among the important concerns of many of us also. The rapidly increasing land values have moved more and more out of tune with the land's productive capacity. I would work for a more equitable real estate tax reflecting the land's productive value.

The quality of our roads, highways and railroads is going to be among other problems addressed in the upcoming session. All of us realize that poor roads and highways are costly in delays, smaller loads and will restrict future development in our area. Any future improvements and maintenance will require additional revenues. I think future funding should come from several areas including general fund revenues, highway users and bonding.

The long range problems are equally important but demand more time to bring about changes. Of major importance is attracting new industry to our area to expand our economy and to generate new jobs. We also need to promote family farms and family owned and operated businesses which are the heart of our rural economy. Some of this can be accomplished with tax incentives to make it profitable for a retiring family farmer or business owner to sell to a young or new person. This direction would help preserve our communities.

Presently our state is extremely dependent on out-of-state energy sources. Projections indicate that Minnesota could become much less energy dependent through the production of alternative energy sources such as alcohol, solar and wind along with some good energy conservation prac-

Board To Meet At Goodridge

Board of education for School District 561 at Goodridge will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school home economics room to take action on bids for insurance.

HIGHWAY FUNDING is a prime concern for Bob Wolfe, district engineer from the Minnesota department of transportation office in Bemidji, who finds the need for work far in excess of the money available to get it done in the 14 counties of northwest Minnesota. He looks to increased bonding as one way to help alleviate the problem.

by Marvin Lundin

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to remove restriction on the interest rate for and the amount of trunk highway bonds?"

That brief statement will confront voters at the Minnesota general election next Tuesday as one of five constitutional amendments set before the voters by the Minnesota legislature. If Bob Wolfe had his way, the amendment would be approved unanimously.

Wolfe, district engineer for the Minnesota department of transportation at the Bemidji office, supervises state transportation activities in the 14-county northwestern Minnesota area. He has 2,000 miles of roadway to look after and some of it is getting in pretty bad shape.

"Changing the bonding limits won't be a total answer to our problems," Wolfe said in a Times interview Thursday, "but it could help. It would still take legislative action to permit bonding to take place, and the legislature has a good track record in being responsible in highway bonding it allows. But if we don't put some money into some of these roads soon, we're going to be faced with some major rebuilding costs in the not too distant future."

What would the constitutional amendment do? It would permit the department of transportation — with legislative authorization — to issue bonds to raise funds for highway use. It would accomplish this by raising the interest rate ceiling of five per cent established in 1920 and increasing the allowable amount of unpaid bonds outstanding.

At present interest rates it is impossible for the department to sell bonds at five per cent. In fact, Wolfe said, the department has been unable to sell $19 million in bridge bonds authorized by the legislature in 1977 because of the interest rate ceiling. At the present time the state's general obligation bonds have been selling at an interest rate of about seven per cent.

"I think our department has been a responsible one," Wolfe said. "Since 1970 we have cut 1,300 positions throughout the state and we're scheduled to cut another 206 in November. Our district has the lowest engineering cost in the state although we have the most miles of road of any district. And our northwest district runs 15 per cent below established formula figures for snow and ice removal."

The department of transportation was hard hit by fund cut-backs last year when one of its primary sources of income — the state motor fuel tax — was reduced by decreases in gasoline use. That trend is expected to be continued and is even being encouraged by the department of transportation as responsible conservation.

Right now there is virtually no highway construction in this 14-county district. Funds were secured to put an overlay on a badly deteriorated roadway near Oklee, but everything else is maintenance patchwork.

"Over at Bemidji there are

Experience And Concern In Christensen Campaign

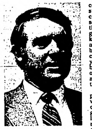
(Editor's Note: In an effort to most fairly permit political candidates to use our newspaper to inform the voting public about their candidacy, we have invited the state legislative candidates to express their views in personal articles. We invite you to read the following article and the one by his opponent in this issue.)

by Clyde Christensen

Thank you for this opportunity to express my views and tell you a little about myself as we come to the end of this campaign.

I was born and raised here in District 1B. My father, Waldie Christensen, was active in the community. He owned the City Dairy and as a youngster I spent time on the farm or delivering milk in Thief River Falls. I attended school in a one-room country school and later graduated from high school in Thief River Falls.

At the age of 17, I started farming on my own and have continued until the present time, with the exception of two years in 1950-51 when I was in the army. In 1952 I married Verna Sollom of Newfolden.



We have a daughter and three married sons who are involved in the farming operation with me. This family help will give me time to serve you in the state legislature.

My service to the community has been extensive. I have served on the Northwestern hospital board, school board, Valley Home board and township board as well as many other boards and committees in this part of the state. I have served as chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer of these organizations, which gives me a real working knowledge of the problems and the needs in many areas. I believe this is an important consideration as you select your representative. I have become so very much aware of the need for change in many areas as I have worked with these boards.

One of the concerns of many people in the district with whom I have visited is the continued attempt by government to regulate our lives and business. We all recognize the needs for rules and regulations but the last years we have seen such a great increase that it causes frustration for individuals and a great added expense on the part of small business. I do not believe the government can nor should be all things to all people.

Farming without a doubt is the most important business in district 1B. We must be willing to allow our farmers a profit that they can use to

Julie Ann Hanson And Jeffrey Scott Olson Wed

Julie Ann Hanson and Jeffrey Scott Olson exchanged marriage vows recently at a four o'clock, double wedding ring ceremony at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city. Rev. Keith Prekker officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eunice Hanson of this city and the late Goodwin Hanson. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Erling Olson.

Organist was Kristy Gerardy. She played "Wedding Processional," and Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the processional, "Wedding march," for the recessional, and accompanied Theresa Blazewski as she sang, "Evergreen." Gerg Herling sang "If," and 'Longer," with piano accompaniment and Roger Kolden playing the guitar. Piano music was provided as the couple repeated the wedding vows, which they had written. During the lighting of the unity candle Theresa Blazewski and Steven Zachar sang "Wedding Song." The ceremony concluded with the couple presenting roses to their mothers.

Forming the chancel setting were arrangements of burgundy carnations and a pair of 10-globed hurricane candelabra with greenery, white doves and pink ribbon. Candelabra with starburst mums and pink ribbon marked the pews. On the piano was an arrangement of gladioli, grown and arranged by Robert Kloubec of Fargo, N.D.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brothers: Don and Dale Hanson. She wore a white poly-sheer gown with chantilly lace trim. The fitted bodice, with pick up lace front featuring rows of Chantilly lace, was styled with a Queen Anne neckline and lace bishop sleeves. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and babies' breath, accented with a large lavender cattleya orchid and three lavender tipped cymbidium orchids. The wedding chocolate and white cake featuring three-tiered cakes, joined by stairways with a miniature wedding party on the steps, was iced in white and decorated with burgundy and pink flowers. Between the tall Roman columns that supported the middle cake was a flowing fountain. A miniature bride and groom graced the second tier and a white satin bell topped the cake. The cake, made by Margaret Rupprecht, was cut and served by Fritzi and Sharon Olson, aunts of the groom. The bride's aunts Kitty and Ann Hanson, were at the coffee service.

DID YOU KNOW?

THE "DISEASE" CALLED ALCOHOLISM

If alcoholism is a disease, it's the only disease that is bottled and sold in a bottle.

It is the only disease that requires a license to keep it going.

It is the only disease contacted by the will of man.

It is the only disease that produces revenue for the government.

It is the only disease that provokes crime.

It is the only disease that is habit-forming.

It is the only disease that causes violent death on the highways.

It is the only disease spread by advertising. (Ed.—What about smoking-related diseases?)

And the only disease not caused by a germ or virus.

Can it be that it is not a disease at all?

Women's Club History Shows Community Work

In an effort to revitalize the Thief River Falls Federated Women's club and to stimulate interest in membership, the Federated Women's club council is hosting an open house membership team on Friday from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m., at the Walter J. Forney home.

Thief River Falls Women's club history shows community involvement. It was organized, incorporated, and joined the Minnesota Federation in 1914 with 60 charter members. Affiliation with the General Federation of Women's clubs followed in 1915. The club grew in membership and divided into separate interest groups based on art, current events, business law, child guidance, homemaking, music, gardening, cooking, decorating, literature, reading and recreation. In 1951, there were 12 clubs. At the present there are only three groups, the DeCor, Laurel and the Zehlians. Representatives from each of these clubs make up the Federated Women's club council.

The purpose of the organization is for the civic betterment, or as early records show, "To make a cleaner, and better city in which to live." With that goal in mind, the club helped in removing ash piles in front of the homes; removed hitching posts from the streets, secured a restroom for the convenience of shoppers and visitors; placed refuse cans around the city, and distributed flower seed packets to school children for planting in the yards to correspond with the beautification contests held annually to encourage the project.

The Federation Women also helped furnish playground equipment at Tourist park and Tindolph park, donated funds for a skating rink, and in 1929 gave about $1,000 to the city park board for a swimming pool at Tindolph park.

For several years, the club sponsored a community Christmas tree, including the distribution of candy and apples. Records show that in 1916, the cost of giving apples and candy to about 700 children was $23.56.

Orthopedic clinics were begun in 1916 and became an annual project of the club. Eventually clinics expanded to include crippled children, heart and hearing. These continue as the Health Service Clinics.

The early members contributed to the welfare of needy families by furnishing garments and bedding. During World War I, the clubs made clothing and knitted garments for the servicemen. They assisted in organizing the Pennington County Red Cross, made annual contributions to the Oakland Park sanitorium library, gave funds to furnish a ward in the local hospital and sent CARE packages to Korea.

They supported the city library with books and later purchased a desk and chair for the library. They instigated a fund for housing facilities for the women's division at the county fair; purchased a piano, folding chairs and other furnishings for the club meeting room that was available to other organizations at a minimal fee; sponsored a girl Scout troop; and at one time aided young girls coming to this city to find employment and suitable places to live.

The club helped form the local Historical Society; started a student loan fund in 1952 which provided students with loans of $100 to $500; donated ellipsoidal spotlights for Northland Community college theatre, and arranged for lyceum course which later was supplanted by a University Extension course.

Through the years, the various clubs have had special projects. For many years, the Laurel club sponsored the annual Mitten Tree at Christmas for collecting mittens for needy Indian children; the DeCor club annually hosts meetings of The Friendship club, a group of former residents of the Fergus Falls State hospital; and the Zehlians annually host a Halloween party at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

The members of Thief River Falls Federated Women's clubs are united for a common cause and are continuing their involvement for community betterment.

Friday's tea is open to all past, present and prospective members.

Local Group Opposes Brewery Sponsoring Games

At the October meeting of Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union the group went on record opposing the sponsorship of the 1984 Olympics in United States by the Annhauser Busch Beer company. To correspond with their decision, members sent cards to Paul Ziffren, suite 630 Los Angeles Olympic organization committee, 10100 Santa Monica boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, asking that the brewery be denied sponsorship. The group felt that if enough people, who opposed the sponsorship of the Olympics games by a brewery, would voice their opinion, it would be denied. It was also noted that similar action had been taken at the State WCTU convention held September 22-24 at Worthington.

The local meeting was held in the community room at the Riverside Terrace. Mrs. Olga Larson gave the devotional based on the theme, "Treasures in Serving," II Cor. 3:1-6. She said that people are often divided into many classes, such as rich or poor, black or white, educated or uneducated; bond or free. However, those distinctions should be eliminated as Jesus divided humanity into just two classes, the unconverted and the converted. The converted are expected to serve, but first they must become servants, willing to serve at once. She concluded by saying, "It is presumptuous to say, 'we'll wait for tomorrow', as God says that the only time we can count on is right now."

Highlighting the meeting was the presentation of checks to Julie Wik and Kersten Anderson for winning first prize in the poster contest at the State Convention. The girls were informed that these posters will now be entered in the 1981 National convention to be held in August in Grand Rapids, Mich.

The report of the state convention was read. Also read were the resolutions adopted at the state meeting. It was noted that the resolutions recommended supporting Bills S. 1808 by Senator Paul Laxalt of Nevada, promoting virtues of family life through education, tax assistance and related measures; Bill S. 249 by Strom Thurmond and Bill H.R. 1362 by John Hammerschmidt, prohibiting nudity, obscenity, explicit sexual activity and physical violence on television; the H.J. Resolution 108 by John Gaydos, guaranteeing the right of life to the unborn, the ill, the aged or the incapacitated; Bill H.R. 167, George E. Brown Jr., of California to amend the Internal Revenue code of 1954, to provide that advertising of alcoholic beverages is not a deductible expense; and Bill H.R. 136 by Charles Bennett of Florida; prohibiting air carriers from dispensing alcoholic beverages and tobacco without charge to passengers.

The resolution committee also recommended that drinking age be raised to 21 years; that prayers be returned in public schools, that the ERA be repealed, that parental participation be allowed in case of a minor wanting an abortion; that Pari-mutual gambling be denied; and that all drugs and equipment, except for medical purposes, be outlawed.

It was noted that the convention keynote address was given by State President Mrs. Ray Saari. She urged the members to continue the fight against alcoholic beverages. She said that even though the number of alcoholics are increasing the swing towards total abstinence is also growing. She cited Sweden, Evanston, Ill., and Chautauqua, N.Y., as examples where efforts are being made toward total abstinence.

During the memorial service it was noted that over 40 WCTU members in Minnesota had died during the year. From District Seven North, which includes Thief River Falls, were Selma Ingebrigtson of Wannaska and Tessie Netteland and Mrs. Knute Yatesund of Thief River Falls.

The 103rd annual state convention concluded with the group writing a letter of protest to the governing body for passing a law permitting liquor companies to build a new stadium.

Guests attending the local meeting were Mrs. Mark Anderson, Nikole and Kersten, Julie Wik, Heidi Anderson, Mrs. Thea Conklin and Mrs. Bernice Swenson.

A potluck lunch concluded the local meeting.

The next meeting of the Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union will be held November 7.

R. Braun Will Chair National Rail Officials

Minnesota transportation commissioner Richard P. Braun has been named to chair the National conference of State railway officials (NCSRO), the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Braun was named to the rail conference post at the conference annual meeting in Albany, N.Y. The conference is part of the American association of state highway and transportation officials (AASHTO).

Before accepting his new position, Braun was vice chair of the AASHTO committee on public transportation.

As chair of the national rail conference, Braun will guide the state transportation departments' involvement in the development of rail programs and services nationwide.

"The time of the railroads has come," Braun said. "The 1980s will be exciting times in the railroad industry. If one reflects on the last several decades, it is obvious that most of the positive changes in rail transportation occurred in the second half of the 1970s and there is no sign of any return to dormancy in railroading."

In the next decade, he said, state transportation directors will be heavily involved in deregulation of the railroad industry, railroad company mergers, rail line bankruptcies, rail rehabilitation programs, emerging passenger corridors and helping decide the future of Amtrak.

"The conference will definitely increase in importance as rail issues gain greater recognition among the states. As the new chair I am committed to increasing the strength of the states' voice in rail matters," Braun said.

Fireplace Use Demands Care For Safety

Although there are still a few days of Indian Summer left, Minnesotans know that fireplace weather is upon us. Minnesota safety council says it's a good idea to give some attention to preparing the fireplace for the chilly days of fall and winter.

Chimney fires are a dangerous consequence of the energy crisis, with more families turning to alternate sources of heating to supplement oil and gas burning furnaces. Experts agree, however, that chimney fires can be almost eliminated with a few simple precautions taken before fireplaces begin to get heavy use.

Inspect the fireplace to see if it is clean. Check the chimney from inside the house and from the roof. Also check mortar joints to spot leaks and decay. Clean the chimney and repair loose fitting damper, loose bricks and decaying mortar joints. Be sure to clean the ashpit too.

Consider installing a mesh screen on top of your chimney to prevent burning materials from being sucked out of the chimney and small animals from getting in. Install a mesh screen in front of your fireplace and be sure that it's closed whenever a fire is burning. Glass doors will help keep sparks from landing on carpeting, will help distribute heat from the fire more evenly and will keep out drafts from the chimney when the fireplace is not in use.

Avoid burning soot-producing materials next time there's a chill in the air. Green wood, plastic-coated materials, quick starter resins, leaves, plywood and gift wrappings are on the list of "don't burn" substances that cause high soot buildup.

Northland CC To Host Speed Sewing Seminar

Nancy Olson of Minneapolis, one of the country's foremost authorities in speed sewing techniques, will conduct a "Super Sewing" seminar at Northland community college on Saturday, November 15 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the college theatre. Fee for this seminar is $6 per person (55 years and over, $4) with registration on the day of the seminar.

During this six hour lecture-workshop seminar (two three-hour sessions), Mrs. Olson will cover such topics as the newest speed sewing techniques, redesigning commercial patterns, making pattern fit adjustments and changing pattern size. She will use large screen visuals, workshop materials and sample garments to give the average home sewing enthusiast a good working knowledge on these topics. Participants are asked to bring scissors, scotch tape and a notebook. All other materials are furnished.

'U' Professor Handicapped Citizen Of Year

James Boen, professor of biometry at the University of Minnesota, has been named outstanding handicapped citizen of the year for Minnesota by the U.S. department of health and human services.

Boen, director of the biometry consulting laboratory in the school of public health, suffered a severe spinal cord injury while practicing gymnastics at age 19. He has been confined to a wheelchair ever since.

In selecting Boen for the award, the federal agency noted both his professional and community contributions.

Boen is director of graduate studies for public health, chairman of the health sciences policy and review council and a member of many other committees at the university.

He is active in Courage center, a rehabilitation program of the Minnesota society for crippled children and adults.

LOOK OF CONCERN was evident on the face of this youngster who was one of many attending a training workshop demonstration in the use of puppets, some of which were handicapped, at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute last week. The project was co-sponsored by the Northwest regional development commission's developmental disabilities advisory board, Northwest educational cooperative service unit and the Region 1 association for retarded citizens.

Power Plant Committee Has 30 Members

Arthur Sidner, chairman of the Minnesota environmental quality board (MEQB) and Allen Mulligan, vice chairman of the board, have announced the appointment of 30 members to the general 1980-81 power plant siting advisory committee.

According to Sidner, the committee will make recommendations to the MEQB on how to better coordinate the electric energy supply decisions made by the state and on issues related to the need for new electric energy facilities in Minnesota.

The board solicited nominations for the statewide committee from legislators, regional development commissions, county boards, interest groups and interested individuals. Almost 100 men and women from all parts of the state were nominated. The 30 members that were chosen represent environmental, labor, business, farming and consumer interests in all areas of the state.

Jeanne Crampton, a resident of St. Louis Park, was again named to chair the committee. Crampton also chaired last year's committee, is a member of the Minnesota board of the league of women voters, and has been actively involved in energy related issues through the league.

Director For NW Historical Center Named

Evelyn J. Swenson, a Moorhead state university librarian for the past 19 years and director of its media education program, has been appointed director of the Northwest Minnesota historical center.

The center is one of eight regional research branches of the Minnesota Historical society and serves as a central point for preserving historical and contemporary records of the 12-county northwest section of the state.

Swenson replaces Dr. Ken Smemo, professor of history and languages and director of the center since its inception eight years ago, who will return to teaching and research at MSU full time.

Swenson holds a master's degree from the University of Denver and a specialists certificate in librarianship from the University of Minnesota.

Located in the Moorhead state library, the northwest historical center has been operated and funded as a branch of the state historical society since 1972. It cooperates with local historical societies and community groups and its materials are available to the public. The center's archives contain hundreds of documents, manuscripts, letters, business papers and recorded oral histories preserved as part of the Red River valley heritage.

Swenson has also been appointed archivist for the university, a part-time position formerly held by Dr. Byron Murray, a retired MSU professor. She will also continue to hold the position as affirmative action and Title IX officer at the university.

Swenson says that anyone who would like to contribute historical records to the center should contact her at 236-2922.

Stumpf Lists Issues As He Seeks Office

tices. I support the use of tax credits to promote these alternative sources of energy and conservation efforts.

I also see the possibility of providing tax credit for woodlands as a means of encouraging the retaining of some woodlands in this area. As anyone who has lived in his area for some time can tell, the land is changing rapidly from wooded to all fields and erosion could be a problem in the future.

I feel it is important for the voters to know as much as possible about the candidates. My wife Carol and our children Jeny and Tom and I farm southeast of Thief River Falls where we raise registered Angus cattle. I am currently serving on the board of directors for the Inter-County Community council. I am also a member of Farmers Union, Sons of Norway, Pennington County Sportsmen club and other farm and community organizations. I have also served as president of the stockmen's association for three terms.

I graduated from the St. Paul seminary and was trained and worked as a drug and alcohol counselor for the United Way. Since moving to northwestern Minnesota nearly nine years ago I have also worked as a county extension agent for the University of Minnesota. I continue to be active in area 4-H programs.

In an effort to meet as many people as possible and learn as much as possible about our area, I started my campaign last fall and as a result have a very good feeling for the needs of the district. I am thankful for the opportunity to meet so many fine people. My family and I have enjoyed being a part of so many local activities. Looking forward, I hope to have the opportunity to serve you as your state representative.

Christensen Campaigns On Experience

generate the activity in our small town banks and businesses. This will create jobs and prosperity for rural Minnesota. Of great concern to me is the ability of farmers to pass their farms on to their children.

I believe we must also look at an expanded homestead credit which will give a tax break to those who are living on and farming their own farms. Any other proposal that has been suggested gives a tax break to farmers and speculators alike. I believe that the farmer who actually farms his land should have the biggest piece of any real estate tax relief.

Transportation and roads are very closely linked to the welfare of our rural area. I believe we need to work toward upgrading our roads to carry a 10-ton limit. This cannot be done overnight, but we need a long range plan to accomplish it. I am also in favor of continued work on keeping the Duluth port open 12 months a year. We need the kind of market stability that this would provide. We must also find ways to settle labor disputes at the Duluth port that will not close our outlet for grain during the harvest season and cost farmers thousands of dollars.

In the area of small business the complaints that have been most evident have been in the workmen's compensation law. Our legislature over the past years has continued to liberalize benefits until the premiums have become almost prohibitive. We are often compared with states around us and find our costs to be very much higher in all job classifications. The problem can be corrected by reform that would put a time limit of 8-10 years on claims and putting a limit on death benefits. Most states do have these limitations. Corporate taxes are too high in the lower brackets and I would support relief as soon as the state budget can stand such adjustments.

I have written about real estate taxes and corporate taxes. What about individual income tax? In the $12,500 to $50,000 brackets with a single wage earner we are No. 1. This is the income bracket in which many people in our area find themselves. Here, too, we need relief as soon as we can. I believe as we look at the tax situation you will agree we need to take a close look at our spending habits. I believe every program must be looked at on a regular basis to see if it is accomplishing what it was intended to accomplish, costing no more than it should for the benefits received and if it is really necessary to continue the program.

Many programs overlap and could very well be combined at a savings to the state.

Education must always be very high on our list of priorities. We have a very good educational system in Minnesota but it will not stay that way without special attention by the legislature. I do not believe we can continue to mandate programs without providing the funding. I believe in keeping the schools in our small towns as long as possible. The small school is not only an educational facility, but also the center of the town's social and recreational activity.

Our senior citizens have some very special needs. Inflation continues to take away their spending power. After a lifetime of hard work and paying taxes we cannot let them down during their retirement.

In closing let me make some personal comments. I see the office of state legislator being one of listening and responding to the needs of the district. We will not always see the problems or the solutions in the same light. We must be willing to sit down together and with a mature attitude work out solutions that will be the best for all of us. I do not promise to have all the answers to every question, but I do promise to listen and work toward solutions that will be beneficial to all.

I also believe we must do this with fiscal responsibility. I believe government must be run with the same concern as any business and in the process we must not lose our concern for individual needs. I want to keep Minnesota a place where your family and mine can enjoy a way of life that rewards them for initiative and the will to work. I want them to have the opportunities and freedoms that we have had.

If elected, I promise to work hard to achieve these goals. I believe my background and experience prepare me well for this job — and I ask for your support and vote on November 4.

FACES TELL the story of children's feelings toward the use of puppets, some of which were handicapped, during a training workshop conducted at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute Thursday. Concern and interest were illustrated by most of the children, especially when they were given the opportunity to "meet" the puppets and ask questions about them. Training for the workshop was offered for three days by the Parent Advocacy Coalition for Educational Rights (PACER, Inc.) a non-profit corporation funded by grants from the bureau of education for the handicapped. Pictured are, left to right, Tanis and David Taylor, children of Dr. and Mrs. Ross Taylor and Jamie Marvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buzz Marvin, all of Thief River Falls.

Local Scouts Supported By United Way

It also creates a climate of positive understanding and support, makes available uniforms, equipment and program supplies and administers national bases and national events such as jamborees, Explorer Presidents' Congress and Olympics, National Eagle Scout Association and Order of the Arrow conferences, and National Council meetings.

Finally, the national office maintains liaison with chartered organizations using the Scout program (religious institutions, PTA, civic organizations, labor unions, business, and industry); and also maintains a liaison with Scouting associations in other countries as a member of the World Scout Conference.

Today there are over 220 youths registered with the Boy Scouts in Thief River Falls in the Cub Scout, Boy Scout and Explorer programs, along with over 75 adults registered in the Boy Scout program. Presently, there are four Boy Scout troops, three Cub Scout packs, and two Explorer posts in Thief River Falls, according to Tom Przybylski, district executive of the Voyageur Trails District.

Voyageur Trails District is a part of the Northern Lights Council, BSA and a participating member of United Way and sustaining membership campaigns throughout eight counties in Northwest Minnesota including Pennington, Mahnomen, Red Lake, Polk, Norman, Roseau, Kittson, and Marshall.

This year, both Explorer posts in Thief River Falls participated in Winter Camp at Camp Wilderness as did three of the Boy Scout troops; and all of the Cub Scout packs participated in Cub Scout Caber Day conducted at the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

There was also participation by Thief River Falls Scouts in Spring Camporee at Devils Lake, long term summer camps; Dad N' Lad camp-out conducted at the Thief River Falls Sportsmen's club; fall camporee at Lake Bronson State Park; and Cub Scout day camp conducted in the conjunction with the Fall Camporee.

Thief River Falls Scouts also participated in various community service projects during the year, including the clean-up project at Pioneer Village, according to Przybylski.

Monthly roundtables (training sessions) are conducted for Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts. Boy Scouts of Thief River Falls, this year, have earned 36 rank advancements as well as 98 merit badges.

If anyone would like to see what happens in the Boys Scouts or Cub Scouts, the leaders for their respective Scout units are: Jim Fisher, scoutmaster, Troop 199, St. John's Lutheran church; Jim Hoks and Jerry Oakland, Troop 59, Zion Methodist church; Victor Bly, scoutmaster, Troop 57, St. Bernard's Catholic church; and Jeff Gobell, scoutmaster, Troop 63, Falls Day Activity center.

Cubmasters include Jim Giles, Pack 59, Zion Methodist church; Mark Bothum, Pack 57, St. Bernard's Catholic church; and Art Heinze, Pack 199, St. John's Lutheran church.

Dist. Engineer Shows Need For Amendment

nine miles of by-pass grade just sitting there, waiting for funds so the project can be completed," Wolfe said. "In your area highway 59 from Thief River Falls to Erskine has top priority for construction if money becomes available, and highway 32 is near the top of the priority list."

Wolfe pointed out that county commissioners in the district are highly supportive of road user taxes paying for roads rather than general obligation funds. Passage of Amendment No. 3 would continue the practice of repaying state highway bonds with road user funds, but would permit the state to "attack the problems in construction and maintenance" at an earlier date and probably at less cost.

The district engineer said that permitting emergency 10-ton routes is taking its toll on some roads, but that it is a calculated risk and gamble to permit haulers and farmers to get product to market competitively.

"In some cases we have been operating on a fine line between damage to the roads and need for moving product," he said. "But we are constantly testing and monitoring the emergency routes and we have a good handle on how much stress they can take."

He also said that overloading is being reduced by permitting the emergency 10-ton routes and because the state has adopted a bill of lading law which allows law enforcement officials to check elevator scale tickets.

"Overloading causes extreme stress to roads," he emphasized, "and it is only proper that we do what we can to help the law-abiding commercial hauler be competitive."

Illustrating the need for funds in this district, Wolfe said that 10 years ago there were 40 miles of state road that needed maintenance overlay work in the 14 northwest counties. Today the surfaces have deteriorated so that 430 miles of roadway need overlays.

"If we had $50 million we could have a minimum 10-ton road network in our district," he said. "Another $20 million would permit us to hold the existing 10-ton roadway we have. Highway 2 is the major 10-ton road in this part of the state and highway 75, which is in bad condition, is the only 10-ton north and south route in northern Minnesota."

Wolfe estimated that the money needed to bring roads in this district up to 10-ton capacity would be the equivalent of what is spent to build three miles of Interstate highway.

"The interstates are needed, too," Wolfe said, "and I wouldn't want to minimize their value. They are 90 per cent federally funded. But when I think of what we could do with some of that money . . ." He shook his head sadly.

Wolfe noted that 60 per cent of the state's highway funds come from motor fuel taxes and 40 per cent from license fees. Only four per cent of the state department of transportation budget currently goes for bond repayment.

"I'm going around the district trying to answer questions and to be sure people understand what Amendment No. 3 is all about," he said. "There are two points I want to make very clear. First, passage of the amendment would not give the transportation a blank check; it would put the fate of our highways in the hands of the legislature which would have to authorize all bonding. Second, not voting on the amendment is the same as voting against it, since a majority of people voting is needed for passage."

Dear friends,

A bereaved person normally feels guilt. Children are very aware of the times that they failed their parents. Parents remember their mistakes with the child. They will talk about arguments - neglect - failures - mistakes. They need to talk about their guilt feelings. Some purging follows confession. The listener need not practice psychiatry; just listen, and not argue with the confessor.

Time Of Essence In Reimplanting Teeth

Would you know what to do if one of your child's teeth was knocked out? Emergency dental treatment at the scene of an accident or soon after can save a child's teeth, say dentists on the medical staff at a St. Paul hospital.

"If a tooth is knocked out, try to get it back in the socket as quickly as possible," says David Lipschultz, D.D.S. The longer the wait, the less the chance of successfully reimplanting the tooth.

Studies have shown that mothers and ambulance attendants have the highest rate of success in tooth reimplantation, according to Lipschultz. That's because they are usually the ones who arrive at the accident scene first and have the best opportunity to reimplant the teeth in time to save them.

There is a 90 per cent chance of success if a tooth is reimplanted within 30 minutes after it's knocked out, Lipschultz says. If it's not reimplanted until 30 to 90 minutes afterwards, that rate drops to 43 per cent. Longer than 90 minutes after the accident, reimplantation will be successful in only seven per cent of the cases. Immediate dental evaluation by a professional is "especially critical for knocked-out teeth," Lipschultz says. "The sooner parents seek consultation, the better the chance of doing something positive for the teeth."

Chipped or displaced teeth are other common injuries. Yet, they often go unnoticed by parents. "Probably the highest incidence of these injuries is between the ages of two and one-half and four years," Lipschultz says. Toddlers fall down, or bump their mouths on toys or furniture.

"They bump their teeth and nobody ever knows about it until they come in for their first dental check-up," he says.

Sometimes parents realize a child has bumped the mouth, but they don't realize the extent of the injury. They might notice that the front of a tooth is slightly chipped without seeing that the back of the tooth is fractured, according to Lipschultz. "Sometimes the tooth isn't chipped but is loose, which might indicate a severe bump or root fracture."

Early diagnosis of root and tooth fractures, or nerve damage, can eliminate the need for extensive root canal or nerve treatment. Occasionally, the blow to the teeth may cause the teeth to go into "shock." Even though there are injuries that need to be treated, there may be no pain, he says.

But most injuries have symptoms, such as unusual soreness, sensitivity to hot or cold, or darkening of the tooth. Just because a tooth turns dark, doesn't necessarily mean the tooth is dead, he says. In fact, an injury is probably more serious when the tooth gets dark months after the bump than when it darkens right away.

If a tooth is displaced, either forward or backward, it should be moved back into place. "Place the thumb on one side of the tooth and a finger on the other side, and very gently ease the tooth back in line with the others," Lipschultz says. A tooth that has been pushed up into the gum should be left alone, however.

The dentist might decide to pull the tooth back into place, remove it completely, or wait to see if the tooth "re-erupts" on its own. Treatment depends on the age of the child and the extent of injury. If this happens to a baby tooth, it can injure the permanent tooth underneath.

Advances in dental treatment and materials have made possible the restoration of teeth that a few years ago would have been lost. But, the best alternative to treatment is prevention.

"About half of all injuries to teeth happen around the home — children fight, throw toys, toddlers fall off the bed," Lipschultz says. Most of the others occur during neighborhood activities such as football, stickball, basketball and hockey, "when children usually don't wear mouth guards and are hit in the mouth with a puck or stick, or trip on the ice," he says. Accidents while roller skating and bicycle mishaps also cause a number of mouth injuries.

"Schools and organized sport programs generally require children to wear mouth guards," Lipschultz says. "It's when they say, 'hey, let's go down and play basketball in the gym,' or 'let's go down to the park and play a game of football' " that the injuries occur.

Mouth guard kits are available in most sporting goods stores. Kits provide materials to form custom made mouth guards. Many dentists, also, can make mouth guards.

"You're not going to prevent all the injuries," Lipschultz says. "The child can't always wear a mouth guard and some children are more prone than others to hit their mouths."

Lipschultz offers the following recommendations for preserving the life of a knocked-out tooth:

Reimplant tooth immediately; firm pressure is needed to get the tooth back in place.

If tooth is dirty, rinse lightly in water or salt water solution, but don't scrub the tooth.

If necessary, hold the tooth in place while the child is transported to the dentist or emergency room.

If other injuries prevent the reimplantation of the tooth, have the child hold the tooth inside the mouth next to the cheek (unless there's a chance the child would swallow the tooth).

Otherwise, place the tooth in a cup of water, or salt water solution, a wet sponge or cloth.

ART OF BUNRAKU (hand and Rod) puppetry, was demonstrated last week before adults and children during a training workshop conducted at the area vocational-technical institute in Thief River Falls. Training was provided by the Parent Advocacy Coalition for Educational Rights (PACER, Inc.) a nonprofit corporation funded by grants from the bureau of education for the handicapped. Volunteers are needed to perform for schools and further information may be obtained from Sari Clark, 425 Woodland Ave., Crookston, MN, telephone 281-1396.

YOUNGSTERS from Knox elementary school in Thief River Falls were provided the opportunity to speak to and understand the use of puppets Thursday during a training workshop conducted at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Many of the puppets were handicapped, offering the children the opportunity to ask questions they wouldn't ask adults or handicapped children. Training for the three-day workshop was provided by the Parent Advocacy Coalition for Educational Rights (PACER, Inc.), a non-profit corporation funded by grants from the bureau of education for the handicapped. Pictured left to right are Rianne Leaf holding one of the puppets, who is deaf; Shane Skeim, Leslie Ammerman and Jenny Mack.

Handicapped Children Aided With 'U' Grant

A resources center that will promote the education of handicapped children has been established at the University of Minnesota with the help of a $1.3 million federal grant.

Upper Midwest regional resources center began operating through the university's college of education September 2. As one of 12 such facilities located across the United States, the center is intended to help meet the needs of handicapped students who until now have received inadequate schooling.

The grant from the U.S. department of education is part of the federal effort to aid compliance with the education for all handicapped children act of 1975. The law requires free, public education in a nonrestrictive environment for all disabled children.

Center's director if Prof. Richard Weatherman of the department of psycho-educational studies. Weatherman described the center as "almost a clearinghouse" for helping state and local educators in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan comply with the federal law.

"What we're getting down to now are the kind of problems that are not easily solved on the state or local level," he said. "Some new thinking and assistance are needed."

Weatherman explained that the center will help agencies within the region by providing program assistance, but will operate nationally in ensuring that disabled children in rural areas receive the protection of procedural safeguards.

"The rights of handicapped students were explicitly developed" in the legislation, Weatherman said, and are easy to enforce in metropolitan areas. But it is more difficult to establish whether they are being observed in rural areas, he said.

An example of such safeguards, he said, is the requirement that parents be notified when their children are about to be evaluated at school. He added that such policies give students a kind of "due process" in the educational system.

Weatherman said the center will be housed in the University Press building on University Ave. S.E. after December 1.

Signal Devices Give Drivers Warning Time

Experimental traffic control systems which provide motorists with additional warning time to anticipate traffic signal changes have been installed in Anoka county by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

The systems are intended to improve safety at three TH 65 intersections by using flashing yellow signs 1,000 feet before the intersection to warn motorists the traffic signal is about to turn from green to yellow and then red.

The systems are the first of their type installed in Minnesota, said William Crawford, Golden Valley district engineer. Although the systems are experimental, they require little additional equipment, he said.

The systems give motorists about 15 additional seconds' warning compared with a standard signal system. Crawford said Mn-DOT will monitor the systems to determine their effectiveness.

To the People of the Ninth Judicial District, State of Minnesota:

What are the marks of a good judicial opinion?

- A law professor should be able to use it in teaching his students. A lawyer should be able to use it in advising his clients.
- It should be as brief and to the point as possible.
- It should be clear and well reasoned.
- It should acknowledge pertinent authority.
- It should be literate and learned, but not pretentious.
- It should be sober, dignified and respectful in tone, not a polemic, not poetry, just good exposition.
- And, above all, it should reach a fair result.

Not Ready For The Truth

Harpo Dexter continues to reach right down to the heart and soul of the subject matter in his "Harpo's Bizarre" column in the Bemidji Pioneer. One of his recent topics is on telling the truth — an action he feels the world is not ready for yet. Here is how he arrived at their decision:

I guess I'm a slow learner. Or a no-learner. I just can't seem to accept things as they are. I'm always trying to prove to myself that things are better than they appear to be and that life is really quite similar to what the dreamers claim it is.

Seven years ago, prompted by the propaganda fed to me by my parents, my school teachers and my Sunday school teachers, I decided to spend one whole day speaking nothing but the truth. To tell not one little lie. And it was a disaster!

But was I satisfied? Was I convinced? Not me. Last week I had to try it again. One full day of speaking nothing but the truth. To respond always with a straight tongue.

My wife started the day when she came out of the bathroom and asked me how her hair looked.

"Like a crow's nest," I said. Which was the absolute truth. And it got the day off to a real good start, believe me.

Ten minutes later she came out of the bedroom wearing her new slacks. "How do my new slacks look?" she said.

"They give you a set of hips like a Clydesdale mare," I said. Which took care of the compatibility at our house for the rest of the week.

When I got to work the boss called me into his office. He was all excited about a new idea he had for getting the job done better.

"How do you like that idea?" he said.

"I think it stinks," I said, still clinging to my resolution of one full day of absolute truth. "No one but a dunder head would think of that."

Now I'm looking for a new job. And when the prospective employer asks me for a reference, I have to give him the name of my last employer. So you can see what my chances are.

When I went to lunch, after pounding the pavements for two hours seeking new employment, the restaurant owner eagerly asked me what I thought of the steak.

"It's about as tender as an old shoe," I said.

He booted me out with the request that I not return. So now I can eat neither at home nor at my usual restaurant.

At two-thirty in the afternoon, the banker called.

"When you gonna pay off this note?" he said.

"Never, if I can get away with it," I truthfully told him.

Now I have no credit. And even before I find a new job, my wages are already facing garnishment.

Last but not least, this morning my neighbor stopped in.

"What was all the racket over here last night?" he said.

"That's none of your business," I said.

"Now neighborliness has disappeared in our neighborhood and I'm expected to pay half for the board fence that's going up between our places.

Today I resolved to be the best liar in the state. And I think it's about time we started treating our children fairly by teaching them how to tell the little lie. Not the big one, but that little one that is so necessary for social acceptance.

I really don't think the world is ready for the absolute truth quite yet.

Artistic Immortality

Following was written by Paul Boswell in the "Dakota Student":

Here's the recipe for "artistic" immortality, the prescription enabling the "artist" to be praised as "brilliant," to be tauted as a "genius," and have his or her work proclaimed as being "classic."

First you must have an aspiring "artist." He or she could be a painter, musician, photographer, sculptor, writer, filmmaker, or something else.

The next requirement is that the "artist" possess at least a hint of real talent. Surely all "artists" have some talent.

To set things in motion, the "artist" should go through a crisis. A personal defeat, a nervous breakdown, the death of someone close, or a divorce all work fine. Whatever it may be, it should cause the "artist" great emotional discomfort.

After the crisis, success should be hard to come by. So the "artist" brainstorms and "creates" something new.

The painter may feel the need to place both eyes on one side of his subjects' heads or paint with animal skins.

The musician may string piano wire between trees and listen to the "organic" melodies as the wind blows through the wire.

The photographer may take pictures consisting entirely of green peppers or balloons in order to reach new aesthetic levels.

The sculptor may use something unorthodox like feathers or breakfast cereal in his or her clay and produce unidentifiable masses to represent "love."

The writer may resort to using large quantities of abstract symbols and insinuate there is a great "hidden meaning" behind the confusion in print.

The filmmaker may attempt to tell a story by using flashbacks or flashaheads to create the "desired mood" and in turn make a "fascinating statement on the futility of war."

In the final tabulation, few "artistic" gambles pay off. But the few that succeed bring much glory to their respective "artists".

Always keeping abreast of the "new trends", the critics describe the new work with such specific and clearly-understandable terms as "spiritual embodiment," "elegant authority," "inexorable normalcy," "problematic simplicity," or "conceptual revelation." The majority of people may fail to see the greatness in the new "art," but it is due either to a lack of intelligence or a lack of appreciation for these "truly magnificent masterworks."

(What follows is an imaginary conversation between two "art" critics viewing a new work of "art".)

1st critic: "Can you see it?"
2nd critic: "Yes . . . I think so."
1st critic: "Are you sure?"
2nd critic: "Can YOU see it?"
1st critic: "Oh, yes. Definitely."
2nd critic: "What do you see?"
1st critic: "It's hard to describe. It's like nothing I've seen before."
2nd critic: "What is it?"
1st critic: "It's absolutely brilliant!"

Borrowed Nonsense:

Flo: "Now that your brother Jack is getting married, we are going to get together and give the bride-to-be a shower."

Mo: "Great idea. I'll stay home and try to clean up Jack."

Net Income Of Soo At High Level In 1980

Net income of the Soo Line railroad company continued at a record level in the first nine months of 1980 in spite of a lower business volume this year than last, President Thomas M. Beckley announced.

Soo earned net income of $24 million or $3.16 per share in the first nine months of 1980, 54 per cent over net of $15.5 million or $2.05 per share in 1979. Revenues for the first nine months amounted to $230.6 million, 13 per cent over revenues for 1979.

In the third quarter, Soo Line had net income of $8.9 million or $1.17 per share, up 15 per cent over 1979 third quarter net of $7.7 million or $1.02 per share. Revenues for the third quarter were $79.2 million, up 5 per cent over the 1979 period.

Total carloads handled were down 10 per cent from 1979 for the first nine months and 16 per cent from the third quarter of last year. Revenue ton miles decreased 5 per cent from last year's first nine months and were 14 per cent lower for the third quarter. While total carload traffic decreased, there were increases in the movement of grain from country origins, sulphur, woodchips and containers during the first nine months as compared to last year. Higher earnings in 1980, Beckley said, were principally due to increased operating efficiency and higher freight rates.

The company has had an extensive track maintenance program this year. During the first nine months of this year, the Soo relaid 61 miles of new continuous welded rail in its main lines and installed 481,000 cubic yards of crushed rock ballast and 228,000 new cross ties. For the first nine months of 1979 the corresponding figures were 42 miles of rail relaid, 397,000 cubic yards of ballast installed and 257,000 cross ties replaced.

During the third quarter the board of directors approved the acquisition of 245 new freight cars, valued at $11.6 million, to be delivered in 1981. New equipment is in addition to 10 new locomotives ordered in May for 1981 delivery.

Outlook for the fourth quarter is uncertain because of current economic conditions, Beckley said. He noted that the reduced size of the grain harvest is likely to result in a smaller grain movement while the recent pick up in the economy has reversed the downward trend in the loadings of other commodities.

To The Editor:

Several weeks ago the Times ran an editorial entitled "Between Apathy and Extremism". The writer appeared to be longing for the good old days of the activism of the late sixties. Having been in college at that time and having seen "responsible activism" — he called it action — I cannot share his yearnings.

I remember well a national SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) crusade on our campus. The leaders and members were not moralistic crusaders. They were rather foul mouthed, insolent, lawless rebels. The thought of such men running our nation gives me the chills. Part of what bothers me about President Carter is that some of the men he has gathered around him as his advisors were anti-war activists.

In addition, the editorial points out the apathy, the commitment to self-gratification of the youth of today, which he blames on the materialism of their parents. As I recall, the rebellion of my generation was attributed to a rejection of the materialism of our parents. It seems hard to believe that materialism could cause both selfless dedication in one generation and self-centeredness in another. It appears to me that there is a better explanation.

First, I believe that both my generation and this present generation are committed to self-gratification. The anti-war movement was not based on political or religious issues. Because I had to face this issue first hand I have given it some thought and it appears to me that the basic motivation for the anti-war movement was resentment that anyone, especially the impersonal government, should tell us that we had to face death or dismemberment. The political and religious issues were superficial rationalizations to justify this basic selfish attitude.

When the heat was off after the war my generation proved to be neither politically involved nor religious. There was much talk of a just war at the time, using World War II as an example. But World War II was a foreign war fought against a dictator whose true colors were not entirely apparent until after the war and we discovered his death camps. Further, the communists of southeast Asia have proven themselves to be just as ruthless as Hitler.

The problem was our lack of a sense of duty, of courage or honor, and of plain old morality. I think most of the blame lies with the educational system. That system the liberals since the 1920's promised would bring social and moral progress. Morality must be based on something higher than ourselves. Something to which we are ultimately accountable, be it family, country, the good of human kind, or God. If you look closely at our educational system today, all those things are debunked or at least their foundation is removed.

Education prior to the 1920's or so had character development as one of its main goals. Thus children were taught right and wrong as well as how to read and write. After this time the goal of education changed to personality development. This meant children were presented a moral information and given as much freedom of choice as possible. The result is entirely predictable, we came to one conclusion, "to thine own self be true" or as we said it, "do your own thing, man".

Of course if there is no such thing ultimately as morality, then the existentialists are right and we should eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we may die. If we can not teach our children truths that truly are the way men should behave toward one another in all situations and circumstances, then we might as well teach them whatever tickles their fancy. Now, I wouldn't be writing this letter if I believed that.

I am in my second year of training in a Bible institute and I am amazed at how reasonable and how verifiable Christianity is when the evidence for it is examined. My basis for belief has been both intellectual (I was converted when I heard the evidence for the resurrection of Christ) and experiential. I experienced real peace and change in my life that I could only account for through the supernatural work of the living God in my life. However, these two years of Bible training have increased my intellectual confidence in the validity of Christianity. I would refer the interested person by the way to a book entitled "More Christianity" by C. S. Lewis. In that book he deals with the existence of morality, the existence of God, and the validity of Christianity.

It is apparent to me as I read what I have just written, that I am advocating a return to a morally based curriculum in our schools. That sounds so controversial, but really why not? We now think nothing of teaching sex education which may cover such things as premarital sex, homosexuality, adultery; do we now cower at the thought of teaching our children the ten commandments?

It is interesting to me that the Bible is taught in British school systems throughout the world today! Will we continue to produce generation after generation of young people, the majority of whom have no foundation for their values or even no values whatsoever? Our nation will not last long with such a populace.

Sincerely,
Thomas S. Shetler

That 46-0 pasting Thief River Falls took from unbeaten Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston Thursday night wasn't the worst loss the Prowlers have ever suffered; it only seemed that way.

The Pirates played terribly well and the Prowlers played, well, terribly. The blustery northwest wind, cold temperature and snow made it that much worse for the Prowlers, coaches and fans.

According to our records, the worst defeat ever handed the Lincoln high school football team was a 71-0 mauling by Bemidji in 1913. The records also show a 61-0 loss to Grafton in 1920; back-to-back losses to Grand Forks 57-0 and Bemidji 56-0 during a winless 1923 season; a 52-0 loss to Devils Lake in 1949; and a 49-0 loss to Bemidji in 1920.

Only other times the Prowlers have given up as many points as they did Thursday night came in a 47-19 defeat at the hands of Bemidji in 1966 and a 46-6 setback vs. Moorhead in 1976.

On the other side of the coin, Thief River Falls once beat East Grand Forks 92-6 in 1919. Other lopsided wins by the Prowlers include a 78-0 blitz of Warren in 1915; 75-0 over Roseau in 1971; 65-0 over Warren in 1922; 64-0 over Roseau in 1969; 61-0 over Warroad in 1957; 59-0 over Grafton in 1951; 60-6 over Crookston in 1953; and 60-6 over Grand Forks Red River in 1968.

Crookston Enters Playoffs

A year ago Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston reached the Minnesota State High School League Class A state football playoff semifinals before losing to eventual champion Rochester Lourdes 14-9. Based upon their season performance to date and especially after Thursday's impressive 46-0 victory over Thief River Falls, you can expect the Pirates to do at least as well again in the 1980 post-season playoffs that start Tuesday.

Crookston (9-0) will host Sea Range Conference representative Hermantown (7-2) in first round playoff action tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. The Hawks shared the Sea Range title with International Falls this fall. The Crookston-Hermantown winner will advance to the Class A quarterfinals Saturday afternoon against Mid-State Conference champion Park Rapids. The Panthers edged Aitkin 6-0 in a match-up of Mid-State leaders Friday. Saturday's 1:30 p.m. game will be played at the site of the most westerly qualifier — Crookston of Park Rapids.

Crookston coach Les Drechsel says his team has a chance to do very well in the playoffs, but he's concerned about Hermantown. "That first one is the big one," he acknowledged after Thursday's one-sided win over the Prowlers. "If we can get by Hermantown we should be in pretty good shape."

Indeed, Crookston handled Park Rapids 28-0 back on Sept. 12, and the same result could be expected in another Pirates-Panthers match-up. Crookston eliminated Park Rapids 24-12 in the first round of the 1979 state playoffs.

Hermantown beat Bemidji 20-14 in the rain and mud at Bemidji Thursday night. The Pirates defeated the Lumberjacks 34-14 in the same type of weather a week earlier, with a final minute breakaway touchdown inflating a 27-14 score that would have been very similar to Bemidji's loss to Hermanton.

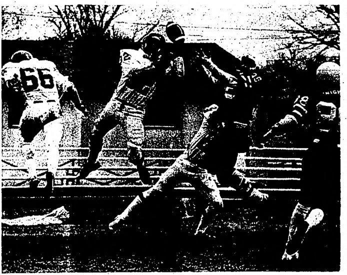
In fact, Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer says the Pirates and Hawks were near carbon-copies of each other.

"Hermantown is very similar to Crookston," reported Carrington by telephone this morning. "It'll be a match-up of two pretty quick teams. It should be a very good ball game."

Bemidji matched two Hermantown touchdowns Thursday and seemed to be on the way to equalizing the third Hawks score when a costly fumble ended a fourth down drive 28 yards short of the Hermantown goal line. Given the break, the Hawks launched a 15-play drive that ate up the rest of the game, finishing at the Bemidji one-yard line.

While matching Crookston's quickness in the line, Hermantown also has an answer for Crookston's star runningback Steve Johnson in the person of 160-pound junior fullback Corey Veech, a very quick runner who gained 129 yards on 21 carries Thursday, including a game-opening 52-yard touchdown run. And then when Bemidji battled back for a 7-7 tie on a 43-yard John Herath touchdown pass to Troy Hendricks, Veech returned the ensuing kickoff 89 yards for a touchdown.

If they should get by Hermantown and Park Rapids, things would get a little stickier in the Class A semifinals for the Pirates. Grouped in the same bracket are defending champion Rochester Lourdes, No. 1-rated Brooklyn Center and unbeaten Sauk Rapids.



BRAINERD DEFENSIVE BACK Loren Keller (32) knocked down a pass intended for Northland fullback John Dillon (36) in the second quarter of Saturday's community college football game played in Thief River Falls. Scott Gaustad (66) and Terry Brasel (22) of the Red Raiders, along with Lyndell Knight (88) of the Northmen were also involved in the play, a pass attempt by Northland quarterback Howard Beito. Brainerd won the game 7-2, dropping the Northmen to 1-5-1 for the year.

Red Raiders Edge Northmen 7-2 In Defensive Struggle

John Helley turned out to be a prophet Saturday — unfortunately. Helley, the first-year Northland community college football coach, correctly predicted the outcome at halftime of a scoreless defensive struggle against Brainerd on the Thief River Falls athletic field, an MJCAA Northern Division game won by the Red Raiders 7-2.

"I told them that seven points would win this ball game; I told them one mistake would decide it; and I told them the play of the specialty teams would determine the outcome. And everything I said came true," explained Helley after the setback that dropped the Northmen to 1-5-1 for the year.

Seven points did win it, with a mistake in defensive coverage allowing Brainerd freshman wide receiver Scott Johnson of Park Rapids to get open in the end zone, and Northland's kick receiving team lost a fumble at a most inopportune time — moments after a safety had given the Northmen a 2-0 edge.

It was a defensive struggle from the opening kickoff; not surprising in light of the fact that neither team has an offense. Northland hasn't scored a touchdown in five weeks and Brainerd coach Al Kilgore admitted, "We haven't moved the ball all year."

All the scoring, what little of it there was, came in the first minutes of the second half.

Northland's always-tough defense broke the ice when nose guard Mark Stock, a freshman from Mahnomen, broke through and hauled down Brainerd quarterback Garry Grewe in the Brainerd end zone with 2:49 elapsed in the second half. The two-pointer was set up when Brainerd's Warner Lewis unexplainably tried to make a return on a missed 42-yard Jeff Gobell field goal that would have easily went into the Brainerd end zone for a touchback. Grewe tried to roll to his left on first down as was caught from behind by Stock — the third safety the Red Raiders have given up this fall.

With a 2-0 lead and about to receive a free kick from the Brainerd 20, Northland looked to be in pretty decent shape. But Ken Crouch couldn't find the handle on Tim Mayclin's punt that was recovered by Brainerd's Loren Keller at the Northland 34.

And that eventually led to a 19-yard Grewe touchdown pass to Johnson, who got behind Northland defensive back Paul Wilcox and made an over-the-shoulder catch with 9:22 remaining in the third quarter. John Lang added the conversion kick for a 7-2 edge.

That was all the scoring, but Northland had two excellent opportunities to put points on the board in the fourth quarter when the Northmen — who were questioned when they chose to kick into the wind to start the second half — had a strong northwesterly breeze at their backs.

Northland punter Duane Kjono used the wind to hit a coffin-corner 40-yard punt out of bounds at the Brainerd two-yard line, and four plays later Mayclin, punting into the wind, got off just a 14-yarder that set Northland up at the Brainerd 19 with 11:35 remaining.

But Northland quarterback Howard Beito was sacked for a 12-yard loss on first down. Still, it looked like Northland was going to get a 38-yard Gobell field goal out of it to pull within 7-5, only to have the kick nullified by an illegal procedure penalty. A 44-yarder came up short.

A roughing-the-kicker penalty on Brainerd gave Northland one more shot with a first down at the Raiders' 39 with 5½ minutes left. But the Northmen surrendered the ball on downs at the Brainerd 34 with 4:18 to go, and Brainerd pieced together the day's best offensive drive to run out the clock.

"We had the chances to win it," sighed Helley, who was forced to scrape what he thought was a greatly improved passing game when expected starting quarterback Jeff Steuck suffered a broken bone in his hand in practice Thursday, an injury that also shelved offensive lineman Jeff Schmitz. Fullback John Dillon then left the game with a broken nose.

"The injuries hurt," acknowledged Helley. "Our offense is making progress, and our defense played well. But I have a few people on defense that are causing me some problems, and consequently we lost the game because of it."

"Northland played a really fine defensive game," mentioned Kilgore, "and that wind is just good for playing good football."

The teams each had one good first half scoring opportunity. A 28-yard Grewe pass to Johnson on Brainerd's first play of the game carried to the Northland nine-yard line, but a penalty, a fumble and a sack pushed the Raiders back to the 29 where Lang missed on a field goal try.

Mayclin then gave Northland a scoring chance at the start of the second quarter when he dropped a low punt snap and then lost nine yards on his pop-fly kick into the wind that went out of bounds at the Brainerd 22. Beito, however, was intercepted on second down at the eight.

Northland will close out its 1980 home season schedule Saturday by hosting Bismarck in a nonconference game.

Sports Boosters Stage MSHSL Open Forum

A regularly scheduled meeting of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club tonight (Monday) will serve as an open forum for the community to discuss several Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) matters.

Lincoln high school principal Frank Hamerlinck and athletic director Russ Smith will conduct the meeting, scheduled to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln cafeteria.

The MSHSL has asked each school district throughout the state to stage the forums, open to the public, to get an input on proposed changes that would affect the lengths of seasons, number of games played, elimination of travel for non-varsity teams; restricting scrimmages and scouting; and bus pooling.

The matters will be discussed from both energy conservation and budget standpoints.

Clint Nelson of McIntosh-Winger and Scott LaBine of Argyle emerged as 1980 scoring champions in the North Tri County and Top of the State nine-man high school football conferences, respectively.

Nelson led the unbeaten Scots to the North Tri County Conference by scoring a league-leading 88 points, 10 more than Scott McKeever of Middle River, who missed the final three weeks of the season because of a knee injury.

LaBine helped once-beaten Argyle gain a Top of the State Conference title tie with Marshall County Central by scoring a league-high 72 points, six more than teammate Jay LaBine.

THIEF RIVER FALLS halfback Jeff Imgrund (40) picked up nine yards off right tackle to the Crookston 45-yard on this play early in the second half of Thursday's Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played at Crookston. Kent Kainz (90) and Scott Kezar (32) tried to help out with blocks on the play as the Pirates' Steve Johnson moved in. The play represented the Prowlers' first venture across the midfield stripe in their lopsided 46-0 loss to the Pirates. Johnson, the Pirates' offensive star, rushed for 143 yards on 14 first half carries. He did not play on offense in the second half. Crookston finished the 1980 regular season with a 9-0 record, 4-0 in the NWAC. Thief River Falls ended 5-4.

Pirates Clobber Prowlers 46-0 In Season-Ending NWAC Game

Crookston Central high school football team capped a perfect 9-0 season with a near-perfect performance Thursday in a 46-0 Northwest Athletic Conference rout of rival Thief River Falls.

The Pirates dominated the Prowlers from start to finish, running up a 33-0 halftime bulge. Reserves played most of the second half for the NWAC champions, who will begin post-season Class A state playoff action Tuesday at home against Sea Range Conference champion Hermantown, a 20-14 winner over Bemidji Thursday.

"We really played well tonight," said Crookston coach Les Drechsel on the wind-swept Crookston field that will be the site of tomorrow's 7:30 p.m. playoff game. "I couldn't believe how well we played tonight. I don't know if we're that damn good or if Thief River just played that poorly. But the last two-three weeks we have really played well."

Thief River Falls, after going 4-1 against non-conference opposition this fall, finished just 1-3 in the NWAC, and coach John Schmitz was bitterly disappointed in the Prowlers' season-ending performance.

"There's not a lot I can say that would be of much value," he said when asked about the Prowlers' poor showing. "They (Pirates) are an excellent football team. I don't know if they have a weak spot."

Crookston didn't show any weaknesses Thursday. On offense the Pirates netted 357 yards on 62 plays, averaging nearly six yards every snap. Most of those yards came on the ground where they rushed for 312 yards, including a 143-yard first half performance by heralded Steve Johnson, who did not play offense after intermission. And quarterback Brian Bachmeier, who rarely throws the ball, completed two of four passes, both for touchdowns.

"Our offensive line just blew them out," noted Drechsel.

On defense Crookston held Thief River Falls to a mere 29 yards on the ground and just 77 yards total offense. The Prowlers, who averaged less than one yard per carry, did not present a single scoring threat. They did not cross midfield in the first half, and ventured into Crookston territory only briefly in the second half.

Crookston, after losing a fumble in the Thief River Falls end zone on its first offensive possession, scored twice in the final three minutes of the first half.

A nifty 22-yard punt return by Brent Weiss set Crookston up at the Thief River Falls 36-yard line, and the Pirates scored in four plays as Johnson went into the end zone on a straight ahead dive play from five yards out. Trent Stahlecker's conversion kick made it 7-0 with 2:47 left in the snowy first quarter.

Two plays later the Pirates had the ball at the Prowlers' 18 when Kyle Roelofs recovered a fumbled Thief River Falls pitch. This time Weiss, who most of the time has to take a back seat to the more publicized Johnson, was the second man through a huge hole off the left side for a six-yard touchdown run with 40 seconds on the scoreboard clock. Stahlecker made it 14-0.

Three rapid-fire Crookston touchdowns in the later stages of the second quarter broke it open.

Weiss capped an 85-yard, 10-play Crookston drive with an 11-yard touchdown burst off left tackle with 4:31 remaining in the first half.

Thief River Falls quarterback Scott Wiebolt was then intercepted on a first down pass attempt at the Crookston 43 to set up a quick strike by the Pirates who sent Johnson around the right side on a 37-yard reverse, then had Bachmeier put a perfectly thrown 20-yard touchdown pass into the hands of Craig Hoiseth in the end zone with 3:28 left.

Moments later another fumbled Thief River Falls pitch-out was recovered by the Pirates' Paul Holmquist, and Bachmeier responded immediately with a 25-yard first down touchdown pass to Nate Johnson. This time the ball was underthrown, but Johnson came back between Thief River Falls defenders in the end zone for the touchdown. Stahlecker's kick made it 33-0 with 1:02 to play.

The scoring pace slowed, but things really didn't change much after intermission. A strong second effort by Jerry Pahlen enabled him to cap a 47-yard, 14-play drive with a one-yard touchdown plunge late in the third quarter, and a Mike Hoganson fumble recovery at the Thief River Falls 22 set up a nine-yard touchdown run off right tackle by Ron Woolever with 1:50 remaining in the game.

Public Hunting Lands Becoming Invaluable Items

While many of us have pleasant memories of the time when you could most always move a covey or two in the fields just past the edge of town in the days before the new addition to suburbia took the place of the honeysuckle and lespedeza, hunting access to private land is by no means a problem unique to today's hunter.

It was almost fifty years ago when the committee on American wildlife policy, chaired by the pioneer conservationist Aldo Leopold, analyzed the current hunter-landowner relationship and reported that there was a clear need for "... some new relationship between sportsman and farmer which carries with it the mutual respect and cooperation characteristic of any effective partnership enterprise."

What's happened since then? For starters, there are some 15 million more hunters today, and our total population is up by approximately 100 million. And, of course, there are far fewer fields just beyond the edge of town.

Fortunately, our state wildlife agencies have done a good job in maintaining, and often expanding, access to available private lands through cooperative agreements, leases and other hunter access programs. New approaches, such as Michigan's $1 public access stamp, hold promise for the future. All income from the stamps, which must be purchased along with the regular hunting license, will be used solely for acquiring public hunting leases on private land. Efforts by wildlife agencies and state agricultural extension services to encourage farmers to open their lands to hunters on a moderate fee basis have also been successful in certain areas, reports the national shooting sports foundation (NSSF).

But what about the attitude of respect and cooperation emphasized by Leopold in his committee's report some fifty years ago? The results of a recent landowner survey in a western state are less than heartening. Of the reasons given for controlling access by landowners, 78 per cent were directly related to the actions and attitudes of hunters who had previously been permited access, or trespassed. The most numerous complaints involved property and livestock damage. Significantly, only 13 per cent of the landowners reported no problems with hunters or hunting.

It is important to note that many landowners in this survey expressed a desire to allow hunting on their lands, but felt they no longer could because of hunter-related problems.

The lesson is clear. While a variety of efforts continue to maintain and develop public access to available private land, a minority of irresponsible hunters often undermine such progress.

The loss of some natural land to new development may be inevitable. Yet, when the "No Hunting" signs go up, we typically have only ourselves to blame.

We can no longer afford to take one step forward while taking two steps back, says the NSSF.

Lincoln Swimmers Beat Fergus Falls

A schedule break that had them idle for almost two weeks and away from dual meet competition for nearly a month ended Thursday for the Lincoln high school swimming team as the Prowlers registered an impressive 100-72 victory over Fergus Falls in the Franklin middle school pool.

"It was outstanding," said Thief River Falls coach John Hustad of the Prowlers' performance that improved their dual meet record to 6-2. "They were psyched and ready to go. They swam really well."

Thief River Falls started with a splash, getting a surprising 1-2 finish in the meet-opening 200-yard medley relay.

"The medley relay was a big help," acknowledged Hustad. "It's pretty hard for any team to come back from 12-2 right off the bat, and it was a pretty nice start for us."

The Prowlers won seven of the 11 events, with Kathy Dillon picking up a double victory in the distance races by going 2:10.84 in the 200-yard freestyle and 5:59.77 in the 500-yard freestyle.

Elsewhere, Brenda Lund, as usual, won the diving competition with 268.4 points; Betsie Hallstrom took the 100-yard freestyle in 59.70; Sarah Green captured the 100-yard backstroke in 1:08.18; and Robyn Dallmann led a strong Thief River Falls showing in the 100-yard breaststroke with a first place 1:17.13.

Green, Franki Kuyath, Andrea Lia and Hallstrom handled the winning 200-yard medley relay that swam a 2:04.3, while Mary Geatz, Dallmann, McGann and Lund were members of the second place 2:09.07 team.

Fergus Falls had a double winner in Barb Hefte, who took the 50-yard freestyle in 26.19 and turned in a first place 1:06.8 in the 100-yard butterfly where Thief River Falls eighth grader Shelley McGann set a new Lincoln team record with a second place 1:08.48.

"We feel good now," noted Hustad, "but I have to impress on the kids that although it was a good meet and we made good improvements, it's not the end of the season yet. We have to continue to show improvement."

Fergus Falls defeated Thief River Falls 97-68 in Thursday's junior high competition.

Rocori, Tech Win Region 8AA Cross Country Titles

Cold Spring-Rocori won the boys title and St. Cloud Tech took the girls crown Saturday in the 1980 Region 8AA high school cross country meet held at Fergus Falls.

Cold weather, wind and snow greeted the runners, who were trying to land spots in the Class AA state cross country meet, scheduled to be held Saturday on the University of Minnesota golf course in Falcon Heights. Top two teams and the top five individuals in both races — boys and girls — qualified for the state event.

Rocori was an easy winner with 60 points in the boys competition. Defending Region 8AA champion Bemidji and Little Falls shared second place with 113 points apiece, but the Flyers gained the state meet berth by a tie-breaking procedure that used the times of the sixth runner for each team (cross country scoring includes the top five finishers on the seven-runner teams).

St. Cloud Tech had an equally easy time of it in the girls race with 33 points. Alexandria out-distanced St. Cloud Apollo for second place 71-94.

Thief River Falls finished seventh in the 16-team boys race and sixth in the 14-team girls event.

Brian Kraft of Bemidji was the individual winner in the boys race with a 15:36 three-mile run. Nancy Dietman of St. Cloud Tech won the girls race with a 12:57 two-mile.

Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer was satisified with the Prowlers' showing Saturday.

"I think they (TRF) ran well. I was happy with it. I was especially happy with the way the girls ran," said Dyer. The Prowlers out-ran Northwest Athletic Conference rivals Bemidji and East Grand Forks by a considerable margin in the girls race.

Sophomore Lon Aune turned in the best Thief River Falls effort of the day with a seventh place 16:12 to earn praise from Dyer.

With only two seniors running Saturday — Todd Bergland and Karen Kloety — Dyer is already anticipating a strong 1981 Thief River Falls cross country squad. "I can't wait until next year," he said.

NWF Suggests Book For Christmas Idea

Only a few human babies walk before they are year old. While still in the crawling stage, they have parents to protect them.

With wildlife, it's different. Many four-footed creatures can — and must — run almost from the moment of birth. Because most wild animals are less protective of their offspring than humans, nature endows their newborn with a variety of defenses against predators — including the ability to run and jump when barely out of the womb.

This is one of many wonders of the animal kingdom examined in Living Wild, a new book on animal behavior published by the National Wildlife Federation in time for the Christmas tabletop book trade.

But Living Wild, with its 268 color photographs of animals in the wild, is more than a tabletop adornment. In its 208 pages David Robinson, a Great Falls, Va., naturalist and author, explores the dark burrows, the gurgling sea caves and the windswept aeries of the planet to report on how animals actually live and why they behave as they do.

He reports, for instance, that although the calves of the wildebeest and the giraffe are almost born running, a newborn deer, lacking the speed to outrun its predators, must rely on two other remarkably effective defense mechanisms: A camouflage coloring that makes it almost impossible to see and a lack of odor that makes it impossible to scent.

"A keen-nosed predator may stalk past the motionless little fur ball only a few feet away and never catch a whiff," says Robinson. But — just as remarkable — as quickly as the fawn's running skills develop, so does a body odor.

Apart from mammals, most animals are born without a protective mother watching over them, and never know either of their parents. Parents who love and care for their children, in fact, are in a very small minority. It's much easier simply to abandon newly-laid eggs, and this is the most common practice in the animal kingdom. "It's also the most wasteful," Living Wild points out, "since without a guardian parent, many eggs must be laid so that a few may survive. One female codfish lay so many that the entire Athlatic Ocean would be packed solid with codfish in only a few years if all the eggs hatched and the young survived to adulthood."

The odds for survival improve dramatically when parents look after the egg-filled nest. A bird nestling on its eggs can be a fierce defender against all comers — even its own mate. To avoid squabbles, many shore birds perform elaborate rituals as they relinquish nest-guarding duties to one another. A Living Wild explains, "when a male grey heron returns to the nest, his mate stretches her neck upwards and then stands, engaging him in a noisy ceremony. Boobies swap slumps of seaweed; gannets and penguins bow in solemn formality. A male turnstone offers a pebble; the female picks it up, drops it in the nest, and turns the incubation over to her mate."

Mammal youngsters, especially carnivores, the meat-eating hunters, have more to learn about living wild than other animals. Naturally, it is these babies who have the most protective, attentive parents, and a fairly large proportion of the youngsters' lives are spent in juvenile dependency. The most important factor in this learning process is the strong bond between mother and young.

In addition to the mysteries of animal parenthood, Living Wild examines many other patterns of animal behavior.

Living Wild is available for $12.95 plus 95 cents handling charge per order from the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St. NW., Washington, D.C. 20036. After January 1, 1981, the price will increase to $14.95.

LHS Volleyball Team Hosts RLF In Final Match

Shooting for a .500 finish, the Lincoln high school volleyball team will close out its 1980 regular season schedule Tuesday when the Prowlers host Red Lake Falls in a 7:30 p.m. match in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls neared the .500 level Thursday with an 18-2, 18-16 home court victory over East Grand Forks as junior Sheryl Stimac served 17 straight points.

East Grand Forks took the preliminary matches, posting an 18-15, 18-10 junior varsity win and an 18-8, 18-10 C squad decision. Thief River Falls is 5-8 in junior varsity competition and 0-12 in C squad play.

The 1980 North Half Region 8AA volleyball tournament will be played Thursday and Saturday at Park Rapids.

TRFAHA Needs Help In Old Arena Tuesday

General Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) monthly meeting for October will consist of a work party Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. in the old arena.

Help is needed to ready the arena for the installation of artificial ice in time for the 1980-81 skating season. "Come dressed ready to work," advises TRFAHA president Les Sabo.

TIPPED UP BY Northland's Mike Busse (30), Brainerd runningback Don Weiss was dropped for a one-yard loss in the second quarter of Saturday's MJCAA community college football game played on the Thief River Falls athletic field. Looking on were Scott Chapman (52) and Todd Tangen (72) of Northland and Mike Lanctot (63) of Brainerd. The Red Raiders won the game 7-2, with Weiss carrying the ball 17 times for 93 yards.

DNR Makes Report On Land Purchases In Minnesota In '80

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reported that it acquired 28,433 acres of land during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980 at a cost of $12,258,624.

During the same period the department sold or conveyed 2,493 acres and received payments of $554,688.

Officials noted that the number of parcels acquired during the past year was more than double that acquired during fiscal year 1976.

Following is a summary of land acquisition by program:

Wildlife management areas — 10,248 acres, $3,986,122; fisheries areas — 780 acres, $803,041; state parks — 4,982 acres, $3,003,182; wild and scenic rivers — 971 acres, $661,193; scientific and natural areas — 5,950 acres, $403,761; state trails — 1,822 acres, $1,359,796; canoe and boating routes — 49 acres, $57,288; public access — 43 acres, $376,048; state forests — 3,513 acres, $1,608,192.

During the past five years the Department has acquired 1,376 tracts at a cost of $34,218,016.

As an example of how state owned lands can be utilized for purposes other than those for which they were originally acquired, DNR officials said that leases were issued to farmers to cut hay this summer on 2,619 acres of wildlife management area lands located within five drought stricken counties in northwestern Minnesota.

The leases were offered to farmers in cooperation with the extension service and the Minnesota Department of Agriculture. The largest number of leases issued (19) and the greatest number of acres leased (1,365) were in the Roseau wildlife management area in northern Roseau county.

Roger Holmes, DNR wildlife chief, said the department is willing to lease lands for hay cutting during emergencies, providing that the cutting is done after birds have left their nests and that there is no damage to wildlife habitat.

Study Answers Question: Does Complaining Help?

by June B. Chocheles
Smithsonian News Service

When a woman in a Zapotec Indian village in southern Mexico has a complaint, she knows she is going to be heard. Her case involving an unfair business practice, for example, is heard by the "presidente" of the village — and her problem is usually resolved that same day.

In technologically advanced societies such as ours, however, the channels available to most people raising complaints are not as simple. Consider the case of a woman in Pennsylvania who spent countless hours, not to mention energy and money, trying to convince someone that a stove she had purchased turned itself on and off unexpectedly.

Before she could convince the seller, the manufacturer or a number of federal agencies about the danger of this appliance, the stove caused a fire and her house burned down. Although she felt vindicated, what remained of her labor were the shell of a house, a three-inch-thick file of correspondence and emotional strain and frustration.

Although a dramatic case, this incident, in Dr. Laura Nader's view, is representative of the frequent failure of America's complaint mechanisms.

Nader, an anthropologist at the University of California at Berkeley, studies the evolution of law in various cultures. She is currently writing a book about Zapotec Indian law, and a new book, "No Access to Law — Alternatives to the American Judicial System," will soon be published by Academic press.

In a recent lecture sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution's office of symposia and seminars, Nader spoke about her research on problem-solving mechanisms in both economically underdeveloped and technologically advanced societies.

Nader began her career by studying problem-solving among the Zapotec Indians of Mexico and the Shia Moslems of Lebanon. In such small village societies, she found, all the residents have a stake in the welfare of the community.

When someone has been wronged, the incident affects many more people than the two parties directly involved in the incident. Laws in these villages, therefore, reflect the commitment of the legal process to the welfare of the entire community. The village can more easily maintain its day-to-day operation when complaints are heard and resolved on a daily basis.

In America and other technologically advanced societies, Nader says, there is often little or no direct relationship between the person raising the complaint and the party or parties who are the targets of the complaints. More importantly, there is often an unequal balance of power in the handling of services and products — the consumer faces a giant opponent. As a result, the problem-solving route is much more complex; more often than not, the problem remains unheard and unresolved.

During the course of her research on problem-solving, Nader became interested in the effects of unresolved complaints on American society and individuals. "The toll is enormous," Nader believes. "Unresolved complaints have a pernicious effect on the machinery of government, the mental health of Americans and the crime rate."

"In particular, unresolved problems concerning consumer items cost citizens disease, injuries and fatalities, as well as money that has, in effect, been stolen from them," she contends. "The psychological costs are substantial."

Nader and her Berkeley students studied problem-solving techniques in America, using data from the center for responsive law in Washington, D.C., which is headed by her consumer advocate brother, Ralph Nader. According to a study done at the center, "one out of every six purchases leads to a recognized ground for complaint."

Despite this high rate of dissatisfaction among consumers, however, only a small percentage actually raises complaints. According to a 1975 survey of 2,419 households in 34 cities, more than half of the consuming public — 60.3 per cent — does not complain about a problem that involves more than price. The survey was carried out by Arthur Best, a lawyer with the New York department of consumer affairs, and Alan R. Andreasen, a professor of business administration at the University of Illinois at Urbana.

And what does the not-so-very silent minority complain about? Analysis of letters sent to the center for responsive law revealed that the most common subjects of complaints were the medical profession, food, cars and appliances.

When a consumer does decide to complain in the name of justice, the legal route often is time-consuming and expensive. People have the option of taking their complaints to a small claims court when a complaint involves a sum less than $500. But many people drop their charges, Nader found, if attending small claims court means giving up a day's pay. She also found that it was rarely worthwhile to go to a lawyer with a complaint unless it involved a sum greater than $5,000.

Because of the expense and bureaucratic procedures involved in initiating a complaint, Nader says, people whose complaints fall within the $500-$5,000 price range rarely resolve their problems.

Of those individuals who did complain, Nader's studies found, women write more letters than men. Urbanites and people living in rural areas write more often than people living in suburban areas on questions involving mail orders.

Nader and her researchers also studied the problem-solving techniques of various consumer-action panels and department store, congressional and federal complaint-handling systems to determine the effectiveness of these non-judicial mechanisms.

They concluded that consumer action panels established by trade associations and large corporations are not effective in handling complaints. "Self-regulation has never been successful," Dr. Nader says. Best-Andreasen-study concurred, noting that "when consumers take their problems to third parties, they come away satisfied only about one-third of the time."

In contrast, Nader found that locally based politicians, neighborhood consumer-action groups and locally controlled department stores had a high rate of success because they provide people with personal opportunities to express their problems.

One of Nader's students, however, did find a complaint-handling system comparable to that of the Zapotec Indians. During his five terms in office, the late U.S. Rep. William Barrett (D-Pa.) made it a daily practice to see all constituents who were having difficulties resolving specific problems. During a 90-second meeting, Barrett could usually analyze their problems and recommend solutions.

Both the Best-Andreasen survey and Nader's studies pointed to the advisability of an active government role in regulating the marketplace. "The 17th-century ideology of 'caveat emptor' — let the buyer beware — is an abnormal principle when viewed in our own tradition or cross-culturally," Nader says. Despite shortcomings in the existing legal system, she believes that, if present laws were enforced to their fullest extent, there would be less reason for people to complain.

For the near future, however, Nader makes a number of recommendations for improving the complaint process in the United States. Among them is the establishment of a federal "complaint bank," where consumers' complaints would be on file for the use of people investigating various products. She is also in favor of publicizing a corporation's misconduct by requiring products or advertisements to carry notices that the manufacturer has recently violated consumer laws.

In a technologically advanced society such as ours, Nader admits, problem-solving may never be easy. However, by closing the power gap between businesses and the consumer and by increased attention to preventative law, Nader sees American complaint-handling mechanisms becoming more equitable and efficient.

'79 Public Payroll Increases By 3,521

Number of state and local employees on the public payroll increased by 3,521 in 1979, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers Association. This means 9.6 new government jobs were created in Minnesota last year.

Over the past decade the number of state and local employees has increased by approximately 47,600, or an average of 13.0 new positions every day for the last 3,650 days. While public employment has risen 31 per cent in the past 10 years and payrolls have risen 146 per cent, Minnesota's population has increased only 10 per cent; the Consumer Price Index has risen 103 per cent.

Association cites figures from the U.S. Department of Commerce which show the growth in full-time equivalent (FTE) employment and payrolls as of October of each year. State and local employees numbered 200,543 in 1979, representing an increase of 3,521 or 1.8 per cent over the 197,022 reported in 1978.

Of the 200,543 employees in 1979, 54,570 or 27 per cent were counted as state employees and 145,973 or 73 per cent were employees of local governments. From 1978 to 1979, state employees increased by 1,214; local employees were up by 2,307 positions. The latter can be broken down further: county employees were down by 1,828; municipalities added 195 positions; townships showed a decline of 528; school district employment increased by 3,494; and special districts added 974 employees.

By function, education is by far the largest employer in the state, accounting for 103,915 employees or 52 per cent of total state and local employment. Hospitals and health was the second largest functional employer with 23,336 public employees. Highways was third with 11,690.

According to Don G. Paterick, executive director of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, "The public employment increase in 1979 is attributable to the rise in education personnel. A total of 4,218 education positions were added in the past year; 724 were added to the state payroll for higher education, and 3,494 positions were added at the local school district level. Offsetting this rise in education was a decrease of 1,202 employees in Welfare and a decline of 600 in highways. In other areas of government, only normal fluctuations in employment occurred. The drop in the number of welfare employees comes as a surprise. The number of employees administering our welfare programs had been increasing at an alarming rate. The one year decline may or may not indicate a permanent curtailment."

According to the data, Minnesota has 494 state and local employees per 10,000 residents. This ranks the state 34th in the nation, compared to 33rd in 1978 and 26th in 1969. The number of state employees only, is 134 per 10,000 residents, ranking the state 37th highest in 1979. On the local level Minnesota has 360 employees per 10,000, which places the state 19th highest. Over half of these employees are employed by school districts.

Figures pertaining to the public payroll were also cited by the association. Monthly state and local public payroll in Minnesota amounts to $260 million, representing an eight per cent increase over the $240 million reported in 1978.

City employment figures for the state's five largest cities showed the following changes: number of city employees in Minneapolis dropped for the second consecutive year. Employees numbered 5,063 in 1979, compared with 5,208 in 1978 and 5,337 in 1977. The monthly payroll rose 8.3 per cent in the past year, reaching $8.3 million in 1979. City employees in St. Paul also declined for the second consecutive year. Employees numbered 3,323 in 1979, compared with 3,473 in 1978, and 3,483 in 1977. Monthly payroll rose 7.7 per cent in the past year, reaching $5.3 million in 1979. Bloomington's employees increased by four in 1979 which followed a decrease of 41 in 1978. City employees numbered 468 in 1979; the monthly payroll decreased by 4.6 per cent, totaling $663,000 in 1979. Duluth's city employment declined in the past year, and showed a slight increase in 1978, with employees numbering 1,260 in 1979, 1,385 in 1978 and 1,315 in 1977. Monthly payroll declined by 2.8 per cent totaling $1.8 million in 1979. Rochester showed a slight increase in the number of employees in 1979. Figures show 611 employees in 1977, 625 in 1978, and 648 in 1979. Monthly payroll rose 10.6 per cent in the past year, reaching $899,000 in 1979.

DNR Tree Seedlings Are Selling Fast

A good share of some 23 million tree seedlings offered for sale by the Department of Natural Resources September 1 have already been sold, it was reported.

Forestry officials said orders for trees to be planted in 14 southeastern counties will be accepted until Jan. 31 and in the balance of the state until March 15 — or until supplies have been exhausted.

Species of evergreen seedlings are sold for $50 per thousand while leaf bearing seedlings have a price of $60 per thousand.

A minimum order is 500 trees and seedlings must be planted for conservation, not ornamental, purposes. Conservation plantings include such measures as reforestation, windbreaks, wildlife habitat and erosion control.

The trees will be shipped for planting next spring. Price lists and order blanks can be obtained from DNR forestry offices, agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) offices, soil conservation service offices, county extension offices or by contacting the Department of Natural Resources forestry division, Centennial Building, St. Paul. Phone 612-296-4479.

Still available in fairly good quantities, said officials, are Norway and Jack pine, white cedar, green ash and soft maple.

Volume 3 - Number 1 November 1980

Congressman Arlan Stangeland – He's still working for all of us.

Special Report

Stangeland reviews his activity during 96th Congressional session

We caught up with Congressman Arlan Stangeland one morning while he was having coffee with a couple of his neighboring farmers in a small town in western Minnesota.

We asked him: "How do you feel, Congressman, about the achievements of the 96th Congress and the part you played in bringing them about?"

Stangeland pondered the question for a moment, took another sip of coffee, and waved at a passing friend.

"I have a very good feeling about the 96th Congress," he said, "because there was a tremendous amount of legislative activity. There were frustrations, yes; but in the main I am happy to have been a member because many of my legislative initiatives on behalf of the Seventh District were received with enthusiasm by my colleagues."

Among other accomplishments, Stangeland led efforts to insure that Social Security benefits would never be taxed. He also co-sponsored legislation, passed by the House, which prohibits the withholding of income tax on interest and dividends.

Stangeland indicated he was particularly pleased over the fact that he sponsored legislation to provide fuel assistance benefits for senior citizens and low-income families.

We asked him about energy related activity.

"I worked to eliminate the Department of Energy's recommendation that would have prohibited weekend boating," said Stangeland, "which would have seriously affected the important tourist industry in the Seventh District."

Stangeland said he also fought in Committee against President Carter's proposal to impose a 10¢ per gallon import fee on gasoline. And he stressed the fact that he had co-sponsored bills in favor of gasohol and other alternative sources of energy such as solar and wind.

The Seventh District Congressman played an important role in encouraging Energy Secretary Charles Duncan to take appropriate action to eliminate pricing disparities in the Crude Oil Entitlements Program – which is a serious hindrance to farmer cooperatives such as the Farmers Union Central Exchange Group (CENEX) – in their ability to compete with other refineries.

Agricultural interests, of course, occupied a major portion of Congressman Stangeland's time in the 96th Congress. During the past summer he traveled to Ottawa, Canada, for a meeting between U.S. and Canadian legislators. Purpose of the meeting was to increase wheat prices and expand wheat markets for U.S. and Canadian farmers.

Stangeland also pointed out that as Chairman of the North American Trade Caucus, he works closely with his House and Senate colleagues, as well as representatives from the private sector, to improve trade relationships among the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

During the session, Stangeland fought for disaster assistance for farmers and for small businesses that suffered from this summer's drought condition.

"And don't forget", said Stangeland, "that I also co-sponsored legislation on meat imports and price supports for sugar."

We asked him about agricultural transportation.

Stangeland said: "I submitted an amendment which was passed overwhelmingly to simplify entry for individual owner-operators and improve agricultural transportation. Under the provisions of the amendment, independent owner-operators are allowed to transport agricultural soil conditioners, agricultural limestone and fertilizers upon meeting a 'fit, willing and able' test."

According to Stangeland, the effect is to substantially ease requirements for hauling products. This helps farmers, co-ops and other independent owner-operators by reducing empty backhauls, which, until now, has often made it very costly to transport agricultural products. This amendment became part of the Trucking Deregulation Bill and has been signed into law.

Inflation – Our Cruelest Tax

Our national economy has been in serious trouble due to the overpowering effects of uncontrolled inflation. No one is able to escape the grasp of this unfortunate economic disease. We feel its impact in the grocery store, when buying clothes for the kids and every time we drive up to the gas pump. Congressman Stangeland has spent a great deal of time examining this economic problem which most economists theorize is caused primarily by excessive government spending and deficit budgets. We cannot afford to spend, year after year, more than is collected in tax revenues.

Since 1971, government spending has increased by more than 200 percent and in the last 25 years, under the Democrat-controlled Congress, the federal budget has increased by 768 percent. For fiscal year 1981, federal spending is expected to top $633.8 billion. In 1981, approximately 11 to 15 percent of the budget, or approximately $75 billion, will go just to pay the interest on our national debt. That is over $197 million per day or about $345 per person per year.

In order to hold down inflation, Congressman Stangeland has intro-

Stangeland for Keeping Social Security Payments in Line With Cost of Living

With inflation reaching a high of 18% this year, Congressman Stangeland questions the fairness of making senior citizens wait a year for a cost of living increase. Our elderly community lives on fixed incomes, and they suffer most from inflation. We must curb inflation – but until we do, we must take steps to relieve those for whom it is a special burden.

Arlan Stangeland introduced legislation to require that increases in Social Security benefits be made twice annually. By doing so, our senior citizens at least have a better chance to stay even with inflation.

'79 Public Payroll Increases By 3,521

Number of state and local employees on the public payroll increased by 3,521 in 1979, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers Association. This means 9.6 new government jobs were created in Minnesota last year.

Over the past decade the number of state and local employees has increased by approximately 47,600, or an average of 13.0 new positions every day for the last 3,650 days. While public employment has risen 31 per cent in the past 10 years and payrolls have risen 146 per cent, Minnesota's population has increased only 10 per cent; the Consumer Price Index has risen 103 per cent.

Association cites figures from the U.S. Department of Commerce which show the growth in full-time equivalent (FTE) employment and payrolls as of October of each year. State and local employees numbered 200,543 in 1979, representing an increase of 3,521 or 1.8 per cent over the 197,022 reported in 1978.

Of the 200,543 employees in 1979, 54,570 or 27 per cent were counted as state employees and 145,973 or 73 per cent were employees of local governments. From 1978 to 1979, state employees increased by 1,214; local employees were up by 2,307 positions. The latter can be broken down further: county employees were down by 1,828; municipalities added 195 positions; townships showed a decline of 528; school district employment increased by 3,494; and special districts added 974 employees.

By function, education is by far the largest employer in the state, accounting for 103,915 employees or 52 per cent of total state and local employment. Hospitals and health was the second largest functional employer with 23,336 public employees. Highways was third with 11,690.

According to Don G. Paterick, executive director of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, "The public employment increase in 1979 is attributable to the rise in education personnel. A total of 4,218 education positions were added in the past year; 724 were added to the state payroll for higher education, and 3,494 positions were added at the local school district level. Offsetting this rise in education was a decrease of 1,202 employees in Welfare and a decline of 600 in highways. In other areas of government, only normal fluctuations in employment occurred. The drop in the number of welfare employees comes as a surprise. The number of employees administering our welfare programs had been increasing at an alarming rate. The one year decline may or may not indicate a permanent curtailment."

According to the data, Minnesota has 494 state and local employees per 10,000 residents. This ranks the state 34th in the nation, compared to 33rd in 1978 and 26th in 1969. The number of state employees only, is 134 per 10,000 residents, ranking the state 37th highest in 1979. On the local level Minnesota has 360 employees per 10,000, which places the state 19th highest. Over half of these employees are employed by school districts.

Figures pertaining to the public payroll were also cited by the association. Monthly state and local public payroll in Minnesota amounts to $260 million, representing an eight per cent increase over the $240 million reported in 1978.

City employment figures for the state's five largest cities showed the following changes: number of city employees in Minneapolis dropped for the second consecutive year. Employees numbered 5,063 in 1979, compared with 5,208 in 1978 and 5,337 in 1977. The monthly payroll rose 8.3 per cent in the past year, reaching $8.3 million in 1979. City employees in St. Paul also declined for the second consecutive year. Employees numbered 3,323 in 1979, compared with 3,473 in 1978, and 3,483 in 1977. Monthly payroll rose 7.7 per cent in the past year, reaching $5.3 million in 1979. Bloomington's employees increased by four in 1979 which followed a decrease of 41 in 1978. City employees numbered 468 in 1979; the monthly payroll decreased by 4.6 per cent, totaling $663,000 in 1979. Duluth's city employment declined in the past year, and showed a slight increase in 1978, with employees numbering 1,260 in 1979, 1,385 in 1978 and 1,315 in 1977. Monthly payroll declined by 2.8 per cent totaling $1.8 million in 1979. Rochester showed a slight increase in the number of employees in 1979. Figures show 611 employees in 1977, 625 in 1978, and 648 in 1979. Monthly payroll rose 10.6 per cent in the past year, reaching $899,000 in 1979.

DNR Tree Seedlings Are Selling Fast

A good share of some 23 million tree seedlings offered for sale by the Department of Natural Resources September 1 have already been sold, it was reported.

Forestry officials said orders for trees to be planted in 14 southeastern counties will be accepted until Jan. 31 and in the balance of the state until March 15 — or until supplies have been exhausted.

Species of evergreen seedlings are sold for $50 per thousand while leaf bearing seedlings have a price of $60 per thousand.

A minimum order is 500 trees and seedlings must be planted for conservation, not ornamental, purposes. Conservation plantings include such measures as reforestation, windbreaks, wildlife habitat and erosion control.

The trees will be shipped for planting next spring. Price lists and order blanks can be obtained from DNR forestry offices, agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) offices, soil conservation service offices, county extension offices or by contacting the Department of Natural Resources forestry division, Centennial Building, St. Paul. Phone 612-296-4479.

Still available in fairly good quantities, said officials, are Norway and Jack pine, white cedar, green ash and soft maple.

Our national economy has been in serious trouble due to the overpowering effects of uncontrolled inflation. No one is able to escape the grasp of this unfortunate economic disease. We feel its impact in the grocery store, when buying clothes for the kids and every time we drive up to the gas pump. Congressman Stangeland has spent a great deal of time examining this economic problem which most economists theorize is caused primarily by excessive government spending and deficit budgets. We cannot afford to spend, year after year, more than is collected in tax revenues.

Since 1971, government spending has increased by more than 200 percent and in the last 25 years, under the Democrat-controlled Congress, the federal budget has increased by 768 percent. For fiscal year 1981, federal spending is expected to top $633.8 billion. In 1981, approximately 11 to 15 percent of the budget, or approximately $75 billion, will go just to pay the interest on our national debt. That is over $197 million per day or about $345 per person per year.

In order to hold down inflation, Congressman Stangeland has intro-

Stangeland for Keeping Social Security Payments in Line With Cost of Living

With inflation reaching a high of 18% this year, Congressman Stangeland questions the fairness of making senior citizens wait a year for a cost of living increase. Our elderly community lives on fixed incomes, and they suffer most from inflation. We must curb inflation – but until we do, we must take steps to relieve those for whom it is a special burden.

Arlan Stangeland introduced legislation to require that increases in Social Security benefits be made twice annually. By doing so, our senior citizens at least have a better chance to stay even with inflation.

National Farm Organizations Rate Stangeland High In Performance

Arlan has been a farmer all his life and understands how farmers are affected by their many problems. He has voted consistently during his 3½ years in Congress to improve the agricultural economy.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau gives Arlan Stangeland a 100% rating, the National Farmers Union says that he's right eight out of twelve votes on their issues.

In the 1977 farm bill, he was recognized by the National NFO Reporter and the Lincoln Nebraska Sun Journal as being one of six members of Congress having the most impact on that farm bill. Congressman Stangeland has fought the FDA ban on nitrates, he has fought the FDA's attempt to ban some of the antibiotics so necessary in the swine industry. Stangeland voted to improve and expand the Federal Crop Insurance program. He authored the identical bill to the one that passed on meat imports to put a counter-cyclical provision in to favor our beef farmers. Arlan organized, and went to Canada to discuss a wheat agreement with the Canadians so that we could get the price of our wheat up to cost of production plus a profit. He consistently worked for potato legislation, for sugarbeet legislation and supported strongly the dairy price support program. Congressman Stangeland's record for farmers is clear. It has been positive and pro-farmer and especially pro-Seventh District farmer.

Arlan introduced legislation to help young farmers buy land of their own

As a farmer himself, Arlan Stangeland knows how difficult it is for young men and women to purchase their own farms today.

Congressman Stangeland introduced legislation designed to help the young person purchase land by encouraging retired farmers and other farm land owners to sell at reasonable prices. This would be accomplished by allowing the interest on a seller-financed loan to be tax free. The tax forgiveness would involve transactions in which the seller was the financer, such as a contract for deed. These loans would be guaranteed by the Farmers Home Administration under the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act.

Congressman Stangeland stated, "This country has the best agricultural technology in the world and, in addition, has the greatest capacity for farm production. The key to maintaining this agricultural potential in the years to come is to provide ways in which the nation's young people can become increasingly involved, not less involved. They are our future and if we don't find ways for them to continue working and growing in agriculture, our nation's food supply may be threatened."

duced two constitutional amendments both of which are currently being examined by the House Judiciary Committee. The first, House Joint Resolution 14, would provide that appropriations made by the United States Government shall not exceed its revenues, except in time of war or national emergency, and to provide repayment of the national debt.

The second, House Joint Resolution 395, limits the growth of the federal government and puts a reasonable and effective limitation of federal spending – not more than 21% of our gross national product.

To improve productivity and stimulate the economy, Stangeland supported a sensible tax reduction plan, one that seeks to allow Americans to solve our economic problems. We must reduce income taxes on personal and business income so as to allow for increased spending, investment and savings by the individual and the private sector, not government. By allowing people to increase their own personal pursuit, greater economic activity will occur. Productivity will be increased because people will potentially spend more, thus resulting in a requirement to meet greater consumer demands. Furthermore, additional people will have to be hired to produce the additional products, thus helping to reduce unemployment and welfare by providing permanent jobs.

We must begin to explore avenues which are new and have the potential to solve instead of perpetuate economic problems.

"Right now uncontrolled inflation, combined with wasteful government spending, are the concerns people express to me the most. These are my concerns, too, and it is because of our mutual concern for solving these economic problems that I have consistently voted during my 3½ years in Congress to reduce wasteful spending, balance the budget, and reduce the heavy burden of taxes currently affecting everyone. All of these measures would help stimulate the economy."

Special Report

By now, Stangeland was slipping into his jacket and getting ready for another day of active campaigning.

"If I give you much more information," Stangeland said, "it will seem like I'm bragging."

The fact of the matter is, however, that Congressman Stangeland was a major achiever in the 96th Congress. Among other activities, he played an important role in meetings between the U.S. and Canada that resulted in keeping the St. Lawrence Seaway open for several days following the scheduled cut-off. He also became a charter member of the Bipartisan Congressional Tourism Caucus because he knows the economic importance of this industry in the Seventh District. An item that is probably important only to Moorhead citizens is Stangeland's success in inserting language in the Surface Transportation Act which specifically designated the city of Moorhead as being eligible for funds for rail/highway crossings.

We Get Lots And Lots Of Letters

Dear Arlan:

I want to thank you for the prodigious work you did on the low income heating assistance appropriation. The times are very infrequent when Minnesota can justify a disproportionate share of a national appropriation. In this instance we could, and you did. Our elderly and low income residents will have some assistance this winter as a result of your efforts.

Dear Representative Stangeland:

Thank you for your prompt action and concern in dealing with the problem I had with the U.S. Veterans Administration. The $178.00 I had previously paid them for my insurance has been returned and I feel the problem has been cleared up to my satisfaction. Again, a very sincere thank you for your time and assistance.

Dear Congressman Stangeland:

More than a year ago it became necessary for me to know what legislative action was passed in the Age Discrimination Act. I am very grateful to you and your efficient staff for the assistance I received. You were the only representative in either party on both the North Dakota and Minnesota sides who took the time and the effort to come up with the specific reply to our question. Because of this assistance we were able to work out a solution.

What an asset to those of us in the 7th District to have a Congressman who actually takes time for an individual with an individual problem. It is our hope and prayer that the voters in the 7th District will over-whelmingly support your re-election. Our family is convinced of the meaning of having a representative in Washington with you there.

Our thanks, sincere best wishes and God bless you.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland Receives Guardian of Small Business Award.

The National Federation of Independent Business has awarded Seventh District Congressman Arlan Stangeland its annual "Guardian of Small Business" award for his voting record during the 96th Congress. Stangeland was cited for voting favorably to the interests of small business 90% of the time.

President of the Small Business group, Wilson S. Johnson, said in presenting the award, "I hope that all citizens interested in preserving small business will take note of Congressman Stangeland's voting record and realize they have someone in Washington who is aware of the problems facing small business."

NFIB is the country's largest small business organization. It is non-profit and non-partisan. Its president noted in making the award to Stangeland, "We initiated our rating system to give special recognition to those legislators who support small business and to make sure that small business owners know how their legislators represent them in Congress."

The American Federation of Small Business, representing 30 million small businessmen, have also officially endorsed Arlan Stangeland for re-election to Congress.

Stangeland commented, "Small businesses, including main street merchants, service providers, manufacturers and farmers, are the largest employers in our Seventh District. In fact, taken together, small business provides 55 percent of the jobs in the private sector of our economy and makes up 97 percent of all American business."

Congressman Arlan Stangeland believes jurisdiction over schools be left at state and local levels

Our founding fathers left educational policy with the state and localities. I believe they were correct in their decision. The proper form of federal aid to education is block grants and revenue sharing to state and local communities.

We must remain committed to a full and equal educational opportunity to all children and help students achieve educational excellence while at the same time allowing diversity and protecting local control and perogatives.

VFW and American Legion honor Stangeland on voting record.

The V.F.W., the nation's only veterans' group to rate members of Congress on their voting records for a strong national security and support for hard-won veterans' programs, announces its endorsement for Congressman Arlan Stangeland for re-election.

This past session, Congressman Stangeland supported H.R. 1918 for World War I veterans; he voted in favor of bills to provide needed cost of living increases; he fought against the proposed bed reduction for the replacement hospital at Fort Snelling. In addition, he actively supported a bill to provide better geriatric care and research, and worked for legislation to provide a realistic increase for those receiving education benefits.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation to the many, many fine people who have made me feel so welcome in their home communities.

My experiences, while traveling throughout the 28 counties, reaffirm the fact that the traditional values found in rural America and small towns are strong and thriving. Northwestern Minnesotans have fostered and maintained on-the-land and in-the-home values; a set of standards, attitudes, philosophies, beliefs, codes and ethics that are an example for Americans in all walks of life.

Legislative Races Take Tuesday Election Interest

MEET THE CANDIDATE session sponsored by the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce Tuesday had an unexpected visitor in the person of Congressman Arlan Stangeland who was in the community during a campaign tour of the northern part of the Seventh District. Congressman Stangeland reminded those present that "government is not a spectator sport" and encouraged them to become involved if they expect government by a free people to continue to serve this nation. At right is Neil McEwen who presided at the session sponsored by the legislative affairs committee of the chamber.

General election interest in the Thief River Falls area centers on the state legislative and U.S. Congress races despite the national interest in the presidential election. General election will be held Tuesday with polling places in the city of Thief River Falls and in adjoining North and Rocksbury townships to be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

All polling places will be open to 8 p.m., but opening hours in some polling places may be different from the 7 a.m. hour. Town boards and city councils have the option of establishing poll opening hours.

Polling places in the city of Thief River Falls are as follows: Ward 1, Northrop school; Wards 2 and 3, city auditorium; Ward 4, Knox school; and Ward 5, Franklin middle school.

Voters in the general election may split their ballots to vote for candidates of more than one political party. Absentee ballots are available at the city clerk's office and the county auditor's office through Monday for those who wish to vote and will be absent from the precinct on election day.

On the U.S. presidential ballot, voters will have a choice of nine pairs of candidates for president and vice president. In addition to the DFL Carter-Mondale and I-R Reagan-Bush confrontation and the Anderson-Lucey challenge, candidates are on the ballot from the Libertarian party, Socialist Workers party, Worners World party, Communist party USA, Socialist party USA and Citizens party.

For Representative in Congress from the Seventh district, Congressman Arlan Stangeland is opposed by Gene Wenstrom. Rep. For State Senator in the Minnesota legislature, incumbent Marv Hanson of Hallock is being challenged by Mark Skogerboe of Thief River Falls.

Special City Meeting Set To Discuss Rezoning Issue

Of interest to a majority in attendance at the Thief River Falls city council meeting last evening was an item concerning an R-2 (medium density residential) zoning request by Seth Twichell and Associates of Fargo.

Previously the developers had appeared before the council with their request for the city to rezone 3.56 acres of land near Greenwood street and Allwood acres addition for the construction of townhouses. The city planning commission has recommended that the request be denied.

The issue was considered closed at a September 8 city council meeting when a majority roll call vote accepted the planning commission's recommendation to deny the rezoning (from agricultural to R-2 with a special use permit to allow the townhouses rather than duplexes if zoned only R-2). Denial at that time was based on the incompletion of Greenwood street, one of three reasons offered by the planning commission as to why the rezoning should be denied.

City planner Jack Quinlivan further explained during last evening's meeting that the planning commission had denied the R-2 rezoning request for three major reasons: The incompletion of Greenwood street; neighborhood concern (property values, traffic in the area) and because the need for subsidized housing in the city, has not been approved, he said.

In opposition to these points, Dennis Shurman, attorney from Detroit Lakes, speaking in favor of the R-2 zoning request, stated that, after checking into these three major points responsible for the denial, there appeared no evident argument as to why the rezoning should be denied. He also stressed the effort made by the developers to speak with people in the area of concern, but found them uncooperative.

Kurt Marben, attorney speaking in behalf of the property owners in the area of the land in question, stated that the decisions reached by the planning commission to deny the rezoning were valid.

Decision reached by the council following discussion was to adjourn the regular meeting last evening to a Thursday closed session at 7 a.m. (based upon pending litigation) in the council chambers. (It was noted by Mayor Carlson that, because two council members were absent from last evening's meeting (aldermen Ambrose Wysoski and Milan Borsheim), a meeting date should be set for further discussion on the issue when all members could be present).

A request was presented by Frank Hamerlinck, Lincoln high school principal, representing the school district, for the use of the city auditorium for activities due to the closing of the small

Special City Meeting Set To Discuss Rezoning Issue

Of interest to a majority in attendance at the Thief River Falls city council meeting last evening was an item concerning an R-2 (medium density residential) zoning request by Seth Twichell and Associates of Fargo.

Previously the developers had appeared before the council with their request for the city to rezone 3.56 acres of land near Greenwood street and Allwood acres addition for the construction of townhouses. The city planning commission has recommended that the request be denied.

The issue was considered closed at a September 8 city council meeting when a majority roll call vote accepted the planning commission's recommendation to deny the rezoning (from agricultural to R-2 with a special use permit to allow the townhouses rather than duplexes if zoned only R-2). Denial at that time was based on the incompletion of Greenwood street, one of three reasons offered by the planning commission as to why the rezoning should be denied.

City planner Jack Quinlivan further explained during last evening's meeting that the planning commission had denied the R-2 rezoning request for three major reasons: The incompletion of Greenwood street; neighborhood concern (property values, traffic in the area) and because the need for subsidized housing in the city, has not been approved, he said.

In opposition to these points, Dennis Shurman, attorney from Detroit Lakes, speaking in favor of the R-2 zoning request, stated that, after checking into these three major points responsible for the denial, there appeared no evident argument as to why the rezoning should be denied. He also stressed the effort made by the developers to speak with people in the area of concern, but found them uncooperative.

Kurt Marben, attorney speaking in behalf of the property owners in the area of the land in question, stated that the decisions reached by the planning commission to deny the rezoning were valid.

Decision reached by the council following discussion was to adjourn the regular meeting last evening to a Thursday closed session at 7 a.m. (based upon pending litigation) in the council chambers. (It was noted by Mayor Carlson that, because two council members were absent from last evening's meeting (aldermen Ambrose Wysoski and Milan Borsheim), a meeting date should be set for further discussion on the issue when all members could be present).

A request was presented by Frank Hamerlinck, Lincoln high school principal, representing the school district, for the use of the city auditorium for activities due to the closing of the small

Ammerman And Hanson Married At Roseau

Beverly Ammerman of Roseau and Michael Hanson, Goodridge, were united in marriage recently at a double ring ceremony at the Moe Lutheran church, Roseau with Rev. Erling Huglen officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Ammerman, Roseau, and Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hanson, Goodridge.

Organist Mrs. Erling Huglen played Handel's "Arioso," for the processional, Doug Ammerman sang "Longer," and Chip Ammerman played the guitar and sang "Time in a Bottle." Both are brothers of the bride. Kathy Pelowski, a friend of the bride, sang, "Through the Eyes of Love." She was joined by Doug Ammerman in singing "O Perfect Love," as the couple lit the unity candle.

Lighted candelabras and bouquets of ivory and peach daisies graced the altar. The pews were marked with ivory bows, accented with peach roses.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She was attired in a sleeveless gown of ivory silesta chiffon featuring a Queen Anne neckline and pleated skirt. Venice lace trimmed the bodice, hemline and chapel-length watteau train. To complement her attire, she wore a derby hat with lace trim, and carried a cascade bouquet of silk peach roses and ivory daisies.

Maid of honor was Rhonda Ammerman, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were the bride's friends: Jacki Erickson and Gwen Kuha, both of Bemidji, and Debi Wentzel of Redwood Falls. They wore spaghetti strapped peach eyelet floor-length gowns with scalloped hemlines and ruffle topped bodices. Their wrist corsages consisted of peach silk roses and ivory daisies. To complete their attire, they carried peach parasols.

Richard Hanson, Fairbanks, Alaska, a cousin of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Fred Parnow, Crookston; Tom Lewis, Goodridge; friends of the groom, and Ricky Ammerman, Thief River Falls, a brother of the bride. The groom wore a dark brown tuxedo with tails, ivory shirt with ruffled cuffs and a silk boutonniere featuring an ivory carnation and a peach rose. His attendants, the ushers, Doug and Chip Ammerman, and the fathers wore dark brown tuxedos, peach shirts and ivory carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ammerman selected a green floor-length gown topped by a matching jacket with quarter-length sleeves. The groom's mother wore a baby blue floor-length gown with a matching floral sheer long-sleeved jacket. Their corsages were silk peach roses.

Honor guests were Mrs. Alphild Erickson, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kruckow, Backus, and Mrs. Louise Hanson, Goodridge, grandparents of the groom. The bride's grandfather, Fred Ammerman, Deland, Fla., was unable to attend.

The bride's personal attendant was Barbara Ammerman, a sister-in-law. Des Mickelson registered the guests and Sandy and Debbie Krockow, Minneapolis, cousins of the groom, distributed the wedding programs.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Erickson, Roseau, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prestebak, Goodridge, as the hosting couple. Nora Foss, Roseau, and Debbie Kruckow served the punch.

The serving table was centered with a chocolate wedding cake, iced in peach and topped by a gold cross and cascading deep peach roses. Serving the cake were Eldyne Erickson and Janice Ekelund, aunts of the bride and groom. Marylou Antell, aunt of the bride, and Loretta Kruckow, aunt of the groom, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Jackie and Jennifer Davidson, Patty Vatnsdal, Vicky Antell and Kristi Haugen. The rice packets were distributed by Dionne and Leslie Ammerman, Thief River Falls, nieces of the bride. Flower attendants were Julie Olson, Roseau, and Janet Davidson, Thief River Falls. Georgia and Leslie Ekelund, McGregor, cousins of the groom, were gift bearers; and Carol Erickson, a cousin of the bride, presided at the gift table.

Following the reception as a bell was rung by Orlin Ostby of Gatzke, the couple was escorted by Ostby to a horse-drawn "Surrey with a fringe on top" and taken around town. Ostby was driver and Tim Prestebak, Goodridge, was guardsman.

Later, a private buffet dinner party and dance was hosted by the groom's parents at Grygla. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Elvon Hamilton, Evon Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Svanjord. The groom's supper, also hosted by his parents, was held at the Legion club room in Roseau.

After a wedding trip to the Black Hills and the Badlands of South Dakota, the couple is now at home on their farm in Goodridge.

Their boutonnieres were yellow tipped roses and babies' breath.

The mothers of the bride and groom wore blue floor-length gowns complemented by corsages of yellow tipped roses, white daisies and babies' breath. All the flowers at the wedding were of silk and were made by Linda Helgeland of Thief River Falls.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cullen, Sr., grandparents of the bride; Doug Cullen, godfather of the bride; Vivian Tally and Henry Schmitz, godparents of the groom; and the bride's personal attendant, Nancy Knott, a sister of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kuznia as host and hostess. Cathy Cullen and Geralyn Kuznia were at the guest book as Lawrence and Margie Nicholes ladled the punch.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with yellow daisies and rose buds. Between the ornate pillars that supported the upper tiers were two white doves. A silver cross topped the cake. The cake was baked and decorated by Norman Johnson who together with Vivian Tally cut and served it. Lucy Harmony and Loretta Stucy poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Patsy Kuznia, Teri Holthusen, Sherleen Johnson, Patsy Genereux, Sheila Knott, Paula Knott and Della Kuznia.

Slight Change Noted In Gas Price Average

Average price of a gallon of gasoline changed only slightly this past month, according to the latest fuel gauge survey taken by the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA).

Overall average price per gallon at full-service stations dropped by two-tenths of a cent, while average self-service prices increased one-tenth of a penny. Diesel fuel increased over two cents per gallon.

At the same time, supplies remain good, and some stations have increased weekend hours of operation. Presently, 63 per cent of the stations surveyed remain open past 6 p.m. on Saturday and are open all day Sunday.

Currently, the average price per gallon at full-service stations is $1.258 for regular, $1.354 for premium, $1.297 for unleaded, $1.347 for premium unleaded and $1.117 for diesel.

At self-service stations, the average price per gallon is $1.159 for regular, $1.251 for premium, $1.216 for unleaded and $1.273 for premium unleaded. Average price of gasohol remains unchanged at $1.229.

In addition, Minnesota AAA alerts motorists that the much publicized method of attaching cow magnets to a car's gas line to increase gas mileage is ineffective. According to Minnesota AAA's automotive expert, Jinx Brady, "There is no scientific proof at all that cow magnets improve gas mileage. . . there's no reason why it should. A magnet will only attract iron or iron alloys." Brady went on to explain that the cow magnets have only a placebo effect. "Using the magnets makes motorists more aware of practicing good driving habits, and that in itself is enough to improve gas mileage," he said.

One of the best ways to increase gas mileage is to give your car a good winter tune-up. For a free copy of AAA's brochure, "Here Are 24 Ways You Can Conserve Gasoline," contact the traffic safety dept., Minnesota AAA, 7 Travelers Trail, Burnsville, MN 55337, 612-890-2500.

Expects State Voter Turnout To Lead Nation

Nearly two million Minnesotans will vote in the November 4 general election. This would be around 69 to 70 per cent of the state's qualified voters, and would be well over what is being predicted for the national turnout, predicts Joan Anderson Growe, secretary of state.

"Minnesotans have a tradition of leading the nation in voter turnout and I think that we will again be a leader in participation," Growe said.

Many observers have been predicting a low turnout, but Growe said that last minute registrations and absentee ballot applications are up, and there appears to be a sharp increase in voter interest in the past several weeks.

"I think", she said, "that the presidential debate is going to be a real stimulus to voter turnout because it should make the differences between the two candidates very clear, and help the undecided voters make up their minds."

One reason that Minnesota led the nation in the percentage of people voting in 1976 and 1978, is that we are one of five states that allow citizens to register at the polls on election day upon proper identification being presented to the election judges. To register on election day, a person must provide one of the following proofs of residence which shows their address: A Minnesota driver's license or instruction permit; Minnesota identification card; student identification card, fee statement or registration card; or by having a person who is registered in the precinct sign an oath stating that she or he knows that the applicant is also a resident of the precinct. Penalty for falsely registering on election day is five years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

"Any U.S. Citizen over the age of 18 who has lived in Minnesota for over 20 days by the November 4 election may vote for president, U.S. congressman, state senator, state representative, four state supreme court judges, various county and local candidates and five amendments to the Minnesota constitution," Growe said.

"It will be very unfortunate", she concluded, "if voters abandon their right to have a say in the outcome of these important races and issues — and allow a small, well-organized group to determine the results."

'Earth Circles' Art Display Set At State Zoo

"Earth Circles," an exhibit of contemporary Woodlands Ojibway art, will be on display at the Minnesota Zoo beginning November 8 and extending throughout the month.

Wolverines, beavers, herons, otters, birds and other animals are depicted in 36 of some of the finest prints in the "Woodlands" style. The art works interpret many of the same animals along the Minnesota Trail where visitors can see them in naturalistic habitats. A multi-slide tape presentation on the conservation philosophy of the Woodlands Indian culture will also be shown daily in the zoo theatre.

Contemporary artists Norval Morrisseau, Clemence Wescoupe, Jackson Beardy and others grew up with one foot in the urban "white" world and the other in the traditional life of the reservation where they have learned their legacy and strive to communite it through their art. Ecology, conservation and the cycle of life are spiritual and practical values that are evident in each colorful print.

Respect for this web of relationships which holds humankind and all creatures together is a philosophy embodied by the "Earth Circles" art exhibits and by the Minnesota Zoo.

Jackson Beardy, a prominent Ojibway artist, will be at the formal opening to discuss his Woodlands art. Exhibit will be incorporated into educational programs at the zoo during November and will then be launched on a year-long Midwestern U.S. and Canadian tour.

Minnesota Zoo is located just south of the Twin Cities in Apple Valley. Admission rates are: adults 17 and over, $3; ages 12-16, $1.50; gaes 6-11, $1; seniors 62 and over, $1.50. Children under five are admitted free. Winter hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

FmHA States Goals, Policies For Rural MN.

In a presentation to the governor's council on rural development, the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) announced its goals and policies for the use of $216 million of loan and grant authority in rural Minnesota during fiscal year 1981.

In announcing the release of its 1981 state management plan, FmHA state director John Apitz noted emphasis in the plan on targeting agency resources to distressed rural communities and individuals with limited credit resources. The document also outlines FmHA's goal of coordinating its efforts with other federal and state agencies to improve assistance delivered to rural Minnesotans.

The Farmers Home administration a rural development agency of the U.S. department of agriculture, is responsible for providing credit assistance to rural families and communities. FmHA provides loans and grants for farmers, housing, water and sewer, community improvement and rural business. The agency provides its credit services through a network of 57 county and district offices across the state.

Last year in Minnesota, FmHA provided loans and grants to 8,000 families totaling $275 million. Also, 190 rural groups received loans and grants totaling $57 million for the construction of rental housing, water and sewer, essential community facilities, and to finance rural business and areawide planning. Loans are repaid with interest and provide a means for rural people to help themselves improve their lives and communities. FmHA in Minnesota presently works with over 38,000 borrowers and has a total outstanding loan portfolio of $1.5 billion.

While $216 million has been budgeted by FmHA for rural development in Minnesota during 1981, the agency expects to also make an additional $100 million in emergency loans to farmers who have suffered losses through natural disaster.

In presenting the FmHA state management plan to the Governor's Council on Rural Development, the agency officials encouraged increased cooperation among government agencies serving rural areas.

"We have developed a good working relationship with Minnesota's regional development commissions and with several state agencies," said FmHA state director Apitz. "The planning expertise of these commissions and a join effort by government agencies is essential if we are to make the best use of limited resources for rural development in the future," Apitz emphasized.

Summaries of the Minnesota management plan, are available at the FmHA state office in St. Paul or by calling (612) 725-5842.

County Board Views Ditch, Sells Property

Pennington county commissioners made a road and ditch inspection in Sanders township prior to the regular meeting Tuesday, then took action on a request from that area and other matters during the afternoon business meeting.

The board determined that ditch improvement would be necessary in the area and noted that it has no jurisdiction in that matter. The petitioners were to be notified that their petition should be directed to the Red Lake watershed district office.

A petition from property owners in the area of county ditch 21 southeast of the Thief River Falls regional airport was received by the board, requesting a new determination of benefits from the ditch. That petition, and a similar one for JD 25 in the Black River area, are being combined with reviewers to be selected to reapportion the benefits.

Kenneth Juel of Heritage Home in Middle River submitted bids for a number of items of equipment at the former Oakland Park home which had been offered for sale by the county. The board accepted the offer by Juel which totaled nearly $1,400.

Taken under advisement by the board pending its decision on the 1981 budget was a request from the Pennington county soil conservation district for $20,265 in county funds toward the total district budget of $34,765. Last year the county granted $13,000 to the county SWCD.

Highway engineer Arvid Olson reviewed progress or lack of progress on county highway projects, particularly county road seven which extends east from CSAH 17 (airport road) between Thief River Falls and the airport. The road has been impassable or nearly so while under construction and efforts are being made to have it graveled before freeze-up.

The board also approved a county allocation of $3,420 toward operation of the paratransit bus for the 1981 operating year.

missioner race is on the ballot although three Pennington commissioners' terms expire. Roger Hoffman of Goodridge in the first district and Glenn Tasa in the fifth district are unopposed for four-year terms. Incumbent Albert Koop in the third district is opposed by Lyle Jennings.

By way of area interest, the county commissioner race in eastern Marshall county between Percy Stokke, incumbent commissioner, and Marcella Gonsorowski is expected to be hotly contested. Stokke won a four-way primary race with 290 votes and Mrs. Gonsorowski received 229. Two other candidates received a total of 169.

A somewhat unusual race has developed in the Ninth District judge category where competition is generally nonexistent or very quiet. Judge James Preece of Bemidji is being opposed by John Remington Graham of Brainerd. Graham has been campaigning actively for the position. Judges are nominated without party designation.

The county and district ballot will also include Clinton W. Wyant who is unopposed for reelection as a district court judge, and Raymond S. Olson and Clair Larson who are unopposed for soil and water conservation district supervisor from districts 1 and 5, respectively.

Voters will also have on their ballots five proposed amendments to the Minnesota constitution. The first deals with establishing a bipartisan commission to handle legislative and congressional redistricting. The second would set campaign spending limits for candidates for executive and legislative offices and require public disclosure of campaign spending for all state candidates.

The third amendment proposed would remove limits on interest rate and increase the debt limit for highway bonds. Fourth amendment would establish a procedure of initiative and referendum whereby the public could have direct input in the adoption or repeal of state laws. Fifth amendment would remove the requirement that notaries public be approved by the state senate.

Voters are reminded that the constitutional amendments require approval by a majority of people voting for passage. Not voting on a constitutional amendment, therefore, has the effect of voting "no" on the amendment.

Zion Church Dedication Is Set Sunday

lounge off the new entrance is highlighted by four stained glass windows which were removed from the north side of the church where the chapel was attached. The new addition is built around a paved courtyard which will be used for fellowship activities. A choir rehearsal room is located in the basement of the new addition.

Considerable remodeling has also been undertaken on the church building itself. The narthex of the church, balcony and basement fellowship hall have been completely redone as well as complete new kitchen facilities. The office wing will be remodeled after dedication. As the sanctuary was remodeled in 1971 when the new pipe organ was installed, the entire building will now be either new or renovated.

Architects for the project were Gordon Olson and KBM, Inc. of Grand Forks. General construction was done by Ranum Construction of Thief River Falls. Members of the congregation have donated thousands of hours of volunteer labor since the project began in August of 1979. They began by removing 40 tons of stone from the north side which was then used on the front of the new building. All the electrical, plumbing, painting, plastering and much help with carpentry and general construction was accomplished by volunteers. This has enabled the congregation to obtain needed facilities for the present as well as the future at reasonable expenditures.

Serving as members of the building committee have been Chuck Richards, chairman, Ken Ose, vice chairman; Jim Feuerstein, Hal Freeman, Cliff Larson, Merle Lindberg, Glenn Peterson, Wally Sparby and Edna Mossestad. The finance committee, which directed the raising of $240,000 in pledges for the building, were Al Sollom, chairman; Fred Rohde, vice chairman; Dick Anderson, Olger Green, Bruce Koppenhaver, Elody Olson, Ed Nelson, Yvonne Peterson and Gordon Reierson.

Special City Meeting Set On Rezoning gymnasium at the high school.

The matter, if accepted, would be a give and take situation, Mayor Bob Carlson stated, since presently the high school gymnasium is used for city sponsored activities when needed.

Following discussion, alderman J. J. Womack introduced the resolution to grant the request. Following a second from alderman Penning, with the inclusion that various time periods for the activities would be worked out for the auditorium use, the resolution was adopted.

Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) youth project discussion continued last evening from the October 14 meeting, in which Jerry Wigness, city clerk, had been instructed to meet with various department heads to determine which projects could be done, what materials would be needed, and who would work on the project. Last evening, Wigness provided the list to council members.

Majority of council members spoke in favor of the various projects mentioned, and it was resolved that studies on the youth project would continue.

Grant offer for $7,293 for a maxi audit for energy consumption alternatives was accepted following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Penning.

In planning commission recommendations, variance request was granted to Eldon Phelps to build a garage behind his house for personal use and for storage. Also, variance request was granted to Marvin Johnson following his request to the Capital Improvement Section of the City Subdivision Regulations due to circumstances surrounding his inability to become annexed to the city.

Resolution offered by alderman Dr. Don Goodrich included the stipulation that housing would not be provided on the area in question until sewer and water could be provided. Following a roll call vote of five to one, the resolution carried. Alderman Penning voted against the resolution and alderman Milan Borsheim and Ambrose Wysoski were absent from the meeting.

November 25 at 7 p.m. was the date set for the first in a series of hearings concerning the proposed use of federal revenue sharing funds.

It was also noted that the final assessment roll parking hearing scheduled for November 18 would be delayed until December 9 at 7 p.m.

Next meeting date was set for November 11.

Myths About Heart Are Explained By Specialists

Not so many years ago most people believed the heart was the center of human life and intelligence. They regarded it with a sense of awe and mystery. Today most of us realize the heart is nothing more than a muscle that works like a two-stroke pump to move blood through our bodies.

However, many of us still cling to old notions or myths about the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cardiac heart problems. Specialists in cardiac care at a St. Paul hospital have provided some facts concerning the most common myths they encounter.

MYTH: The human heart is a fragile organ.

FACT: Not so, says occupational therapist Barbara Johnson, who heads the hospital's occupational therapy department and cardiac rehabilitation program. The heart is the strongest and most hard working muscle in the body. It can restore and repair itself and is capable of numerous adjustments to the varying demands that are made on it. Physical work or exercise increases its strength, capacity and efficiency.

MYTH: Persons who don't smoke and who follow controlled diets and exercise regularly won't develop heart disease.

FACT: While it's true these factors significantly reduce the risk of heart disease, they don't eliminate the risk, says Maureen Smith, RN, who directs cardiac nursing education. Heredity and metabolic disorders like diabetes, for example, are two risk factors in heart disease that can't be changed.

On the other hand, all other known risk factors in heart disease can be modified. These include smoking, high blood pressure, high fat diet, obesity, lack of exercise and excessive stress. Increased public awareness of these preventive measures, along with better diagnostic and therapeutic methods for heart disease, are contributing to a reversal in the increasing mortality rate from cardiovascular disease.

MYTH: Cardiac stress tests are dangerous and cause heart attacks.

FACT: The cardiac stress test is commonly used by cardiologists (heart specialists) for persons who have suspected or known coronary heart disease. The test can be used for diagnosis, exercise prescription and cardiac rehabilitation, according to Dr. Victor Tschida, medical director of cardiology. The patient's heart is monitored closely while he or she walks on a treadmill or rides a stationary bicycle according to an established procedure. Statistics show that fewer than one person in 15,000 might get into some difficulty during the test.

MYTH: The pain associated with a heart attack is always acute and crushing.

FACT: Knowing the difference between indigestion pain and a heart attack could save your life. The pain of a heart attack may not be severe, according to Pat Franz, coronary care nursing supervisor. Symptoms vary, but the usual warnings of heart attack are an uncomfortable pressure, squeezing, fullness or pain in the center of the chest behind the breastbone. These feelings may spread to the shoulder, neck or arms. Other signals may include sweating, nausea, shortness of breath and a feeling of weakness. Anyone who experiences these symptoms for more than two minutes should call an emergency rescue service or go to the nearest hospital emergency room at once.

MYTH: Persons who have heart attacks spend at least six weeks in the hospital and are faced with a lifetime of inactivity.

FACT: At one time this was true, but doctors know better today. Inactivity is no help to a recovering heart, according to Johnson. Most cardiac patients can participate in a graded, well-monitored progression of exercises during their hospital stay which averages about two weeks. Patients are encouraged to continue their exercise program after going home. A high percentage of heart attack patients return to work within two to three months. Most return to their old jobs, depending on how much their hearts were damaged and upon the demands of their jobs.

MYTH: Open heart surgery is a risky operation from which most people don't recover.

FACT: In recent years surgery has opened up new hope for many people. One procedure, for example, has been very effective for patients whose coronary arteries have become clogged, leading to chest pain, restricted activity and heart attacks. The procedure consists of opening the chest, stopping the heart and implanting new blood vessels to bypass the closed coronary arteries. The mortality rate for bypass surgery differs for each individual but is usually below three per cent, according to Dr. Jesse Edwards, a pathologist who specializes in heart disease.

EXERCISE YOUR RIGHT TO LIVE

WAYS TO ATTAIN PHYSICAL FITNESS

These suggestions are excerpted from an exercise booklet prepared by Occidental Life, one of North America's leading life insurance companies, in conjunction with the National Athletic Health Institute (NAHI). Each organization has a special interest in prolonging your life.

NAHI
EXERCISE PROGRAM

Physical fitness may be easier to achieve when you take a dose of preventive medicine like that prescribed by the NAHI. This "medicine," developed originally for athletes, is now being used successfully for nonathletes as well.

The prescription's first part calls for regular conditioning exercises that push your heart and lungs toward capacity. Before you begin, however, you should consult the county medical organization for the name of a physician who can evaluate your heart and lungs under stress. Once he or she gives you the go-ahead, you may begin a program that leads off with warm-up exercises.

Frequent recreational activities are the second part of the prescription. These give you a chance to relax and enjoy a social life. Hiking, tennis, handball, squash and certain team sports can contribute to your fitness development as well. Keeping recreation varied will help you maintain interest.

Sensible diet and active daily habits round out the prescription. Your challenge is to ignore labor-saving devices and to move from a sedentary toward an active lifestyle. You might also step toward a healthy diet. For a free copy of the exercise booklet, "Exercise Your Right To Live," write to Occidental Life Insurance Co., P.O. Box 15085, Los Angeles, Calif. 90015.

Vanishing Prairie - Is It Gone Forever?

Part II

A "garden of the desert," as poet William Cullen Bryant called it. Dr. Richard Pemble, biology professor at Moorhead state university, once surveyed an 80-acre section on the Bluestem prairie in Clay county and counted over 225 species of flowering plants. "We've found as many as 30 species sharing a small 20x20-foot plot of prairie," he said.

To avoid competing in such quarters, Pemble said, prairie plants stagger their life cycles. Pusseytoes and prairie buttercups, for example, bloom when the snows are still on the April ground; diminutive prairie orchards and gentians flower for the first time in late October.

Forming a fraternity, the tall grasses shield flowers and smaller plants from wind and cold, while ground cover plants act as a mulch, keeping moisture in.

It's no coincidence that the prairie became the centerpiece of American agriculture. Its rich, black, loamy soil has been composting for milleniums.

It takes a thousand years to build up a single inch of humus under even the best of conditions, Pemble said.

Unlike a long-lived forest that locks its nutrients in wood for hundreds of years, prairie vegetation dies every year. Even its perennials aren't long-lived, says Pemble. Stocks, leaves, seeds and the deep root systems are recycled quickly into the soilbed.

And heavy rains that often wash away soil nutrients in the forests just aren't common on the prairie.

Fires also help return nourishment to the prairie, Pemble said, and act as a tonic to aging grassland.

Before high-tech agriculture altered the landscape, prairie fires were nearly as common as prairie rains. In the hot, dry summers, the grass lands became a tinderbox.

Lightening or spontaneous combustion from the heat of decaying plant matter caused many of them. So did the plains Indians, who deliberately set fires to divert the seasonal migrations of the buffalo herds.

"Prairie fires would terrorize the early settlers," Pemble said, "sweeping across the plains faster than a man on horseback. But they wouldn't damage the deeply rooted prairie vegetation. Grass fires are relatively cool."

Fires serve several biological purposes, Pemble said. They remove the litter of dead plants that prevent some flowers from blooming, and return nutrients like calcium, phosphorus and potash to the soil quickly.

"Flowering activity, the height of the plants and the diversity of species show a dramatic increase after autumn, spring or even summer fires," Pemble said.

Fires also help kill competing species of plants, stamping out shrubs and invading trees that often take hold where there's enough water to support them.

"Prairie lands in the Red River Valley that were treeless a century ago are now aspen woodland because of the lack of fires," he said.

In the absence of the plains Indians and natural conditions, controlled fires are now set on preserved prairies.

Even with their deliberate fires, the plains Indians never threatened the survival of the prairie. They lived in harmony with it for thousands of years, until they too became victims of civilization.

To the Indians, the prairie was a home, grocery and pharmacy.

When Pemble takes his classes or other groups out to the prairies, one of the high points of the tour is the sampling of prairie vegetables.

"Prairie turnips, or potatoes, were a major source of starch for Indians," Pemble said, chewing on a wild onion he found under the stem of a purple flower during one of those summer tours.

The Indians used practically everything on the prairie, Pemble said. The crushed roots and seeds of the purple prairie coneflower became an anesthetic for toothaches and insect stings. Cold-water infusions of a stone seed mixture served as a contraceptive. Yarrow — later called soldier's woundroot during the Civil War — healed cuts. Big sage brush leaves were chewed to relieve stomach gas. Scouring reed and wild rye were gathered to clean cooking utensils.

Like the plants, the Indians used almost every part of the prairie buffalo — bones for ladles and needles; sinews for thread; tongue as a delicacy; and the wood and hide for clothing and cover.

The prairies once bustled with wildlife, Pemble said. Prairie grasses, with total digestible nutrients almost equivalent to alfalfa hay, attracted large grazing animals like buffalo, elk, pronghorn antelope and deer. And along with them came their predators, the wolves, mountain lions and coyotes.

Prairie dog towns would stretch for 100 miles and the Red River Valley, Pemble said, once was home for one of the largest black bear concentrations in North America.

Alexander Henry, a partner in the Northwest Fur Company who kept a journal of his travels, wrote on Sept. 6, 1880 after crossing the Red River west near Bowsemound, ND: "We found immense herds of buffalo, which appeared to touch the river and extend westward on the plains as far as the eye could reach. The meadows were alive with them."

But the railroads were tracked in. To feed the work crews, to subdue the Indians and just for sport, nearly all 60 million buffalo that lived on the plains were slaughtered.

Henry wrote again, from Park River in 1801: "Wolves are very numerous; they go in large droves, and keep up a terrible howling day and night . . . a large white one came boldly into the door and was advancing toward a young child, when he was shot dead."

The wolves and most other wildlife vanished along with the buffalo and their habitat. And as the buffalo went, in came the greater prairie chicken.

Once it was believed that the prairie chicken was a native of the grasslands around the Red River. But apparently that's not the case, says Pemble, who's also a member of the Minnesota Prairie Chicken Society.

"Prairie chickens thrive in tall grasses. But the buffalo kept the prairie trimmed short," he said. "Around about 1850, with the demise of the buffalo, the grasses grew taller and the prairie chickens moved in from the south."

Since then, they've become a symbol of the tallgrass prairie. The Indians revered them, and it's said that they copied many of their ceremonial dances from the mating steps of the prairie chicken.

But as the cattle replaced the buffalo, and as wheat and corn supplanted the grasses, most of the prairie chickens vanished too.

The Audubon Prairie in Clay County was purchased as a sanctuary for prairie chickens by the Audubon Society.

Is the prairie just another dispensable victim of progress, a bit of nostalgia and nothing more?

"The prairie is our heritage," Pemble said, "a product of hundreds of centuries of natural development. Yes, we obviously have the power to destroy it. But we also have the responsibility to preserve it.

About half of the plants of the prairie aren't found anywhere else in nature, Pemble said. "It's simply good genetic insurance to preserve them. If we destroy just one of those plants, its special pool of genes will be gone forever.

"A few years ago, a medical research team was investigating the uses of meadow rue, a distinctive prairie plant, in a cancer study. I don't know what happened to that study, or if meadow rue is still being investigated. But what if we did destroy it, permanently? And what if it did contribute to some medical breakthrough?"

The prairie provides insurance on another level, too. Only 10 or 12 species of plants are relied on to feed most of the world. If a disease or climate change threatened any one of them, we might have to turn to the prairie for a replacement. Remember, Pemble said, the prairie was a major source of food for the Indians.

"I suppose there are hundreds of other very good reasons to protect the prairie," Pemble said. "It's a habitat for birds, animals and insects that control pest organisms. There are aesthetic reasons, environmental reasons.

"Beyond that, the prairie's just a nice place to be, with its clean, free, wide-open spaces. It would be a tragedy to see them gone forever. And we're really not far from that point now."

Emily Dickinson, the poet, wrote these lines over a century ago:

To make a prairie it takes a clover and one bee,
One clover and a bee
And revery.
And revery will do
If bees are few.

Revery's about all that's left of that "vast something," the wild tallgrass prairie.

Warranty Part Of Shopping For Used Car

"I bought a used car with 'As Is' written on the contract" explained Jack to his attorney. "But the first time I took it on the road it wouldn't stay in gear. What kind of warranty do I have?"

"It depends on the circumstances when you bought the car," his attorney replied. "The words 'As Is' on a contract mean 'no warranty' unless the dealer makes an oral promise about specific parts of the car. Were you told that 'this car has a new transmission' or 'the transmission is in good condition'?"

"Regardless of what the dealer intended," he continued, "Minnesota law considers such statements to be an express warranty, and the dealer is held accountable for what he or she told you to be true about the car."

Many persons, like Jack, examine their warranties only after a car breaks down. If you buy a used car, be aware of the following facts:

(1) A warranty is a seller's promise of what he or she will do if a car breaks down after you sign the sales contract. It usually promises that certain parts of the car will operate properly for some length of time or the seller will fix it at his or her own expense.

(2) For your best protection a warranty should be written out on the contract, stating what kind of repairs the seller will make and how long this promise remains in effect.

(3) However, Minnesota law says that an oral promise made by a car dealer about specific parts of the car is an express warranty to which the dealer is held accountable. Don't confuse this with a generalized statement made by a car dealer such as "this is a good car" or "a great buy." (One person's "good" car might be another's "junker.")

(4) Unless statements are made to the contrary, cars sold "As Is" mean "no warranty." Law requires that the words "As Is" or "with all faults" appear on the contract.

(5) Since your signature means that you agree to the terms of the warranty, know what the contract says before you sign it. This includes making sure you understand the kind of warranty you have. (Don't be afraid to negotiate for a better warrranty, just as you would for a better price!)

Cars sold "As Is" are usually cheaper. If you buy such a car, take certain precautions:

(1) Bring a friend when you shop for cars. A friendly witness can be very helpful if it becomes necessary to confirm a salesperson's statement which is, in effect, an express warranty.

(2) Don't waste time asking if it's a good car. Instead, ask specific questions about specific parts of the car: has the dealer made any repairs to the car or inspected the brakes, tranmission, exhaust, etc.?

(3) Test-drive the car on varying road conditions. Write down what is missing or not working well. Consider having a mechanic look at the car. Some dealers will agree to make minor repairs, but such promises should be written on the contract.

It pays to know the law, and it pays to ask questions before, not after, you sign a contract!

ENERGY SAVING CHECKLIST

October is the 2nd Annual International Energy Conservation Month, in which 20 countries are participating to cut oil imports and thus reduce inflation. This is a "down to basics" campaign, added on top of major reduction programs such as "drive less and slower" and "save a watt".

The U.S. Department of Energy has now developed a checklist to encourage Americans to complete every simple energy-saving step. The improvements italicized below entitle homeowners to tax credits of 15% on the first $2000 spent.

Cooper the Toolmaker says "win 3 ways"—help America fight inflation, cut fuel bills, reduce taxes. These are all do-it-yourself projects with basic tools like Crescent screwdrivers and adjustable wrenches, Lufkin measuring tapes, and Wiss utility shears.

1. Seal door and window frame cracks with caulking, foam sealant or weather-stripping.
2. Set thermostats at 65—5 to 10 degrees lower at night and when away. Consider installing an automatic clock-controlled thermostat.
3. Lower water heater thermostats to 125 degrees, and add an insulation wrap. Install water flow restrictors in shower and taps.
4. Clean or replace dirty heating system filters. Add insulation to ducts and pipes in unheated spaces. Look into automatic vent dampers.
5. Limit lighting use; substitute fluorescents for incandescent bulbs wherever possible.
6. Run clothes and dish washers only fully loaded.
7. Add insulation to recommended levels in attic, over crawl spaces and unheated basements.
8. Install storm windows and doors, double-or triple pane windows to keep cold out and prevent heat loss.

Judge Preece: We need him on the bench

There is one endorsement we cannot make too strongly, an election choice so obvious and involving a man of such stature that it leaves no questions, no doubts.

That candidate is, of course, Ninth Judicial District Judge James E. Preece.

We have been privileged to observe him through many of his 14 years on the bench and in virtually every situation and every type of case imaginable.

We have done this from our neutral-party position, our unofficial fourth side of the judiciary process position, and with frequent comparisons to other judges and their handling of comparable cases.

We have sometimes sought and have always been given additional details, rationale and explanations behind procedures he has used and rulings he has made.

We have discussed his performance with the attorneys who have appeared on both sides of the cases before him, and with law clerks, and law enforcement officials, and probation personnel and others who have had repeated contacts with him.

In an uniquely revealing view, we have on many occasions discussed his role as a judge, as their judge, with defendants he has found guilty of serious crimes and who have been sentenced by him to prison terms at St. Cloud and Stillwater.

And we have been priviledged to glimpse behind the scenes into the processes used before those sentences were handed down.

From this considerable review, and our considerable interest in the judiciary, Judge Preece emerges as an embodiment of all anyone might visualize or hope for in a man who might one day sit in judgement over them.

He is a man of great integrity. He possesses the quiet, but stern dignity that is essential to his role on the bench. He has not turned from the hard decisions, exacting penalties when penalties are due, extending compassion when compassion is warranted. From lawyers on both sides and from defendants en route to prison come the repeated testimony that he is indeed fair and objective and honorable and just.

He is also an active judge, eager to share an understanding of the functions of the court, eager to take steps to improve the judiciary, insistent on the highest quality legal representation and judiciary review possible.

It is no wonder his respect is considerable, a respect that extends beyond the boundaries of the Ninth District, and beyond the boundaries of Minnesota.

Over and over again we have heard essentially the same statement, the same assessment, from those outside our district, those who are knowledgable of the judiciary. "You are very fortunate to have a man the caliber of Judge Preece on your bench," they say. And we know this is true.

Thus, as he faces an opponent in this election, and as we consider that most of the voters have little contact with the courts, have little basis for making their decision, we cannot state our endorsement too strongly, an endorsement that is totally without reservations and with an earnest wish to see this man continue the work he has done.

The foregoing Editorial was published only after the publisher, editor and staff of the Bemidji Pioneer had conducted extensive interviews with both candidates and had examined their records and qualifications. We felt the voters should have the benifit of this recommendation from a neutral observer.

Green Thumb Participates In Conference

Minnesota Green Thumb recently took part in a six-state (Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa) regional rural mini-conference in Sioux Falls, S.D. Minnesota delegation consisted of 19 people with a broad area of the state represented. Participant from the Northwest Minnesota area was LaVerne Swan of Badger.

At the conference, senior Americans declared the need for comprehensive national health insurance.

Lack of available health care services and resources, the inability of some individuals to obtain health insurance and the lack of incentive for health care cost control were cited in the resolution adopted.

In addition, delegates at the conference pointed out that an effective rural transportation system is a vital link in the delivery of all services to the rural elderly.

Cost effectiveness of transporting people to services versus transporting services to people was one element of the resolution adopted. Resolution called for adequate funding for rural transportation purposes.

Other resolutions were adopted on the issues of economic well-being, social and spiritual well-being, social service delivery, energy, housing, and employment.

These resolutions will be forwarded to the National White House Conference on Aging scheduled for December of 1981.

Speakers at the conference included: Cy Carpenter, member of federal council on aging; Jerome Waldie, executive director, 1981 White House conference on aging; Carl Larson, president of Green Thumb, Inc.; Victor Ray, vice president, National Farmers Union; Richard Conn, counselor on aging to the president. Also present during the resolutions session was a "Listening Panel" made up of Sen. George McGovern, Sen. Larry Pressler, Congressman Tom Daschle and State Sen. Bart Kull.

If individuals wish to obtain any information concerning this conference, please contact: Pamela Ebert, Minnesota Green Thumb, Box 310, Wadena, Minn. 56482; or call 218-631-3483.

These series of 1981 White House Conference on aging rural mini-conferences has been made possible through the financial support and staff assistance of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Labor, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services — health services administration — health care financing administration, the U.S. Department of Transportation, and the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Farmers Union Pleased With 4 Year Grain Plan

Carter administration's agreement to sell six to eight million tons of American grain a year to China was applauded by Minnesota Farmers Union president Cy Carpenter. While news of the four year deal is important in determining the future of agriculture, Carpenter said, it points out the growing need for a national grain board.

"I applaud the administration for its action," Carpenter said. "But this brings to the forefront the need for protection for farmers, who must produce the commodities to be sold."

Carpenter, representing more than 24,000 farm families throughout Minnesota, said the pact signed recently is a major achievement in establishing a solid trade relationship with China and sets a positive precedent for trade with other countries. He pointed out the need for international trade to improve farm income and balance the U.S. trade deficit.

"I think this will make a more stable customer of the U.S.S.R. and other countries," he said. "They will become less predatory on the American market because of the addition of Chinese competition.

"However, this agreement signals the growing need for a national grain board. I am excited about the increasing opportunities for agricultural involvement in international trade. Other countries make deals through their governments, and of course we must do likewise. But in the process, we must make sure we don't overlook the producer, the family farmer who must take the responsibility for producing the grain," Carpenter said.

A national grain board can improve on current trade negotiation methods by establishing adequate minimum prices for grain, a stable market for future and existing commodities, and projections for future needs, Carpenter explained. An effective use of grain stored in the farmer-owned reserve could be made by such a board, he pointed out. In addition, the board can provide the essential link between—the farm and Washington.

"If such a board does not exist," Carpenter insisted, "American farmers will get the short end of the deal, and American consumers will suffer as a natural by-product."

Excessive growth of national grain conglomerates would be discouraged by the board, he said.

"Otherwise, like oil, grain will become another commodity used for corporate profit and in the end, will drain the strength from this nation," he said.

"Fair trade must be considered, so that a major contribution is made to the people on both ends of the trade, in all nations involved."

PROTECTING OUR FREEDOMS

LEADING EDUCATOR SOUNDS WARNING

J. Clayburn La Force

America's "competitive economy and free society" are at stake as government moves toward "collective control of all activities," warns J. Clayburn La Force, Dean of the Graduate School of Management at the University of California in Los Angeles.

Government encroachment into all aspects of our lives comes in constant waves, La Force says in an article in Abbott Laboratories' Commitment magazine. First it was the environment, then safety, after that health, and now energy.

The target of the "newest political fad" is the American corporation.

Discussion, La Force notes, centers on two questions: Who should control corporate decision-making? What role should corporations play in society?

"Social activists frequently discuss these questions jointly as if there were no differences between the two," La Force explains. "They argue ... that management should use more corporate—that is, shareholder—wealth for ... 'social needs.' On the other hand, they say that management should be more responsive to the interests of shareholders.

"For shareholder interests to be served best, corporations must make a profit," he continues. "But that is not going to happen if management diverts substantial corporate resources to 'social needs.'"

La Force notes that few "realize, or admit to, the contradictions between these two positions."

If the effort to gain control over corporate wealth and individual property rights is successful, the nation's "free market ... will be damaged, perhaps beyond repair," he concludes. "The least of our losses will be the impaired efficiency and productivity of our economy; our greatest loss will be the diminished freedom of the individual," he said.

La Force's entire speech appeared in Commitment magazine, published by Abbott Laboratories. For a free reprint, send a self-addressed, stamped, No. 10 envelope to "La Force," Dept. 383NA, Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago, Ill. 60064.

Oral Interviews Aid In Preserving Past

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

Historians and archivists are concerned: Americans are writing fewer letters these days and for the most part no longer keeping diaries, once invaluable research sources for piecing together the past. To help counter this loss, however, many professionals are turning on their tape recorders to capture the recollections of the nation's decision-makers and pace-setters.

Pioneered at Columbia university in the late 1940s, the first so-called oral history interviews recorded the memoirs of political and military leaders who had participated in World War II, Gens. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Omar N. Bradley among others.

Since then, the technique has become a valuable resource for such organizations as the Smithsonian's Archives of American Art, where millions of original research materials deeded by artists, collectors, critics and others document U.S. cultural history. The Archives' collection of talks-on-tape, for example, helps chart how New York City became the world capital of contemporary art in the 1950s. And now thousands of families and local history buffs also are finding tape cassettes useful tools for puzzling together their own heritage.

The principles and benefits — not to mention potential pitfalls — involved in taping the histories apply to both the professional researcher and the amateur genealogical sleuth. "At its best," says Garnett McCoy, senior curator of the Archives, "the method stimulates spontaneity which, under informed probing by a detached but sympathetic questioner, produces unstudied and revealing recollections."

The secret of the successful interview, one veteran of the technique maintains, is "an abiding interest in people, an interest which puts them at ease and encourages a good flow of conversation."

But things can and do go wrong. "A 1959 interview in the Archives' collection with the American realist painter Edward Hopper produced little more than a series of blunt "yes" and "no" replies to questions about the theme of his work — loneliness and alienation in America. At last, when Hopper, eager to talk about prices his paintings were commanding, began to open up a bit, Mrs. Hopper cut in, "Edward! Don't you discuss that."

Besides this sort of interruption, faulty memories and lack of objectivity also can flaw an interview. Then, too, some subjects may insist on their own self-serving version of the past; still others wander through a maze of irrelevant trivia.

While written and printed material remains the "bread and butter" of research for most historians, the taped interview, McCoy believes, offers one quality often missing in a collection of papers — "the vivid detail, the graphic phrase, the element of color expressed in spontaneous conversation." Ideally, he adds, the interviews are supplementary research tools, one record among others in an individual's personal papers.

In taping the interview, Archives' staff members recommend that the subject be questioned in a relaxed, unstructured manner. At the same time, the interviewer must know exactly what type of information is needed in order to guide the conversation along. And the interviewer should recognize the significance of off-hand remarks and references so they can be pursued, expanded upon and pinned down.

The ultimate success or failure of an interview, McCoy says, depends on the tact, persistence and experience of the interviewer, but as important as these qualities are, the most important ingredient is preliminary homework. "The more the interviewer knows about the field in which his respondent is a figure, the greater will be the respect and cooperation he inspires."

In reconstructing the past, the more interviews that can be taped the better. A talk with one person will provide information about certain events, other individuals and trends — from that interviewee's vantage point. Two interviews touching on the same subject will produce a more balanced picture, McCoy says, and a whole series of talks will enable the historian to sift, compare and analyze with a "reasonable assurance of arriving at the truth."

Historians and archivists experienced with oral history projects offer the following additional pointers to persons determined to find out more about the past.

Conduct the interview where the subject is most at ease, if possible at his or her home.

Prepare for the interview by reading everything by or about the subject and by developing background information about the person's work and interests.

Compile a fairly detailed chronology of the person's life to give the interview a logical sense of direction; include biographical data, names of friends and topics to be discussed within that framework.

Avoid the beginner's tendency to concentrate on the next question rather than listening to what is being said, a possible lead to good follow-up questions.

Conduct the interview without the presence of the subject's family or friends who may insist on answering for the subject.

Postpone food or drinks until after the interview because the sounds can make later listening and transcribing difficult.

Keep in mind that longer interviews are more rewarding than short ones; rest periods between taping sessions will give the subject time to recall long-ago events, relationships and other aspects of life that will enrich the oral history interview.

The United Mine Workers was organized in 1890 in Columbus, Ohio, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Important Events in American Labor History."

Pirates Upset Spuds

North Half Region 8AA high school volleyball tournament will be held Thursday and Saturday at Park Rapids, and Moorhead, as usual, will be favored to walk off with top honors. The 14-2 Spuds were seeded No. 1 at a tournament seeding meeting Monday.

However, while officials were drawing up the tournament pairings, Crookston was in the process of pulling off a stunning 2-0 upset of the Spuds in the final regular season match for both teams Monday. The Pirates won 18-15, 18-12. Nobody can seem to remember the last time Moorhead lost to a North Half Region 8AA opponent aside from a Crookston victory over the Spuds in 1975.

Crookston's win over Moorhead has made the tournament a lot more interesting. The two-time defending Region 8AA champion Spuds might very well waltz off with another title, but the Pirates proved they aren't invincible, and Moorhead is sure to run into some "fired-up" opposition because of it.

And the Spuds' first major test might be Thief River Falls. The Prowlers have never beaten Moorhead, but coach Sharon Stauss is convinced that her team is capable of such a feat. No. I seeded Moorhead should easily handle No. 8 Bemidji in Thursday's tournament opener, with No. 4 Thief River Falls a slight favorite over No. 5 Detroit Lakes that same afternoon.

That would set up a Moorhead-Thief River Falls semifinal match Saturday at 3:30 p.m. Finals will be played at 7 that night.

"I guess you want to take it one game at a time," noted Stauss on the eve of the tournament, "but at the same time you have to look ahead, too. You can't just prepare for one game, you have to be ready for that second one, too."

And right now the Prowlers are looking ahead to Moorhead. The Spuds' loss to Crookston gave Stauss a shot of confidence.

"Everybody has been waiting for the day when somebody would beat Moorhead," noted Stauss. "It's been getting closer all the time."

No. 2 seeded Park Rapids actually finished with the best record among the North Half Region 8AA teams, but the Panthers' 14-1 finish was met with some skepticism by the coaches who questioned the caliber of the opposition faced by Park Rapids.

Seeded No. 3, Crookston at 9-7 was the only other North Half Region 8AA team with a winning record. The Pirates, not the Panthers, will probably find themselves in Saturday's championship match.

Thief River Falls defeated Detroit Lakes 2-1 in a season-opening match back on August 29. The Prowlers lost a pair of 2-0 matches to Moorhead this fall but fared well in their frequent meetings with Crookston, splitting a pair of 2-1 regularly scheduled matches and beating the Pirates in the finals of two invitational tournaments — at Roseau and at Thief River Falls.

Miscellaneous

Pirates Beat Hawks 42-0

Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston opened post-season play in impressive fashion Tuesday by ripping Sea Range Conference representative Hermantown 42-0 in a Class A state football playoff game played at Crookston.

The Pirates, 10-0, will host Mid-State Conference champion Park Rapids Saturday in a 1:30 p.m. Class A quarterfinal game.

Duplicating a season-ending 46-0 NWAC victory over Thief River Falls last Thursday, Crookston ran up a 35-0 halftime lead (the Pirates led the Prowlers 33-0 at halftime) and then played reserves the second half.

Crookston runningback Steve Johnson destroyed Hermantown last night, gaining 217 yards on just 10 first half carries. He scored on runs of 77, 20 and 70 yards. Against Thief River Falls Johnson, who now has 1,399 yards for the year, carried 14 times for 143 yards in the first half. On both occasions he did not play on offense after intermission.

Johnson's 77-yarder and Trent Stahlecker's conversion kick gave Crookston a 7-0 first quarter lead. The Pirates then exploded for 28 second quarter points to put the game away.

Quarterback Brian Bachmeier was 4-for-8 last night for 70 yards and two touchdowns. The Pirates out-gained the Hawks 391 yards to 67. Hermantown fumbled four times, losing the ball all four times.

In other first round Class A play yesterday, Albany surprised Hutchinson 20-6, St. James blanked Rosemount 22-0 and defending champion Rochester Lourdes handled No. 1 rated Brooklyn Center 32-15.

In addition to Crookston vs. Park Rapids, Class A quarterfinals this weekend will feature Albany vs. Montevideo, St. James vs. Pipestone and Rochester Lourdes vs. Sauk Rapids.

Pine-to-Prairie Conference champion Mahnomen opened its Class B state playoff trail Tuesday with a 16-7 victory over Heart O' Lakes Conference winner Perham. The 10-0 Indians will face Arrowhead Conference champion Ely in Class B quarterfinal play Friday at 7:30 p.m.at Ely. The Timberwolves eliminated Walker 27-6 last night.

In Class C state playoff action, Top of the State Conference champion Roseau lost a 28-6 first round game to Polar Conference winner Sandstone Monday.

North Tri County Conference champion McIntosh-Winger will host Agassiz Valley North champion Mount St. Benedict Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the quarterfinal round of the state nine-man playoffs. McIntosh-Winger defeated Kennedy 16-12 and Mount St. Benedict dumped Argyle 36-20 in qualifying games action last week.

The Scots have been strong on both offense and defense during the season, according to head coach Mike Lhotka, a Thief River Falls resident. McIntosh-Winger averaged 38.7 points per game while allowing just 7.0 points per game. Offensively the Scots averaged 310 yards, with 260 coming on the ground. Senior halfbacks Clint Nelson and Mark Thompson lead the charge with 840 and 500 yards, respectively. Thompson moved into a starting role after senior Steve Rude, the top back early in the season, was sidelined with a knee injury.

Junior Dave Balstad will start at fullback, replacing injured senior Rick Parent. Junior Tim Finseth will also see action in the backfield.

Quarterback Todd Haugen has thrown just 52 times, but has completed 27 for 470 yards, 11 touchdowns and 2 interceptions. Haugen has also connected on 11 conversions.

The offensive line is an all-senior unit with Kevin Kundert (5-10, 225) at center, Glen Smeby (5-8, 205) and Paul Ose (6-0, 195) at guards and Eric Balstad (6-2, 185) and Cameron Burslie (6-0, 165) at the ends. Burslie is the team's leading receiver with 15 receptions for 255 yards and seven touchdowns.

Defensively, McIntosh-Winger has allowed an average of just 74 yards on the ground and 56 yards in the air. Smeby, Eric Balstad and senior Brian Carlson are in the line, with Nelson, Dave Balstad, Ose and Burslie at the linebacking spots. Thompson and Haugen will be the safeties. Nelson and Haugen are team leaders in interceptions with three each. The Scots have picked off 19 opponents passes.

Saturday's winner will move into the nine-man semifinals Nov. 7, playing the survivor among Rothsay, Toivola-Meadowlands and Littlefork-Big Falls. Rothsay defeated Motley 16-0 in a Friday qualifying game, the other two met last night, with the winner playing Rothsay in this quarterfinals this weekend.

Prowlers Top Eagles 2-0 In Volleyball

An 18-13, 18-6 win over Red Lake Falls Tuesday enabled the Lincoln high school volleyball team to close out its 1980 regular season schedule with a .500 record at 8-8.

"It was a really good tough match for us, just the kind we needed right before tournaments," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. The Prowlers begin North Half Region 8AA tournament play Thursday against Detroit Lakes at Park Rapids. "If the kids keep playing the way they have been the last couple of matches I think we'll be all right," said Stauss, looking ahead to post-season play.

Thief River Falls junior varsity finished 6-8 for the year with an 18-3, 18-6 win over Red Lake Falls last night, but the Lincoln C squad lost 18-1, 18-10 for an 0-13 season.

Marsha Erickson Named Lincoln Tennis Captain

Marsha Erickson, a junior on this year's squad, was named captain of the 1980 Lincoln high school girls tennis team at the Prowlers' post-season banquet Thursday in the Lincoln cafeteria.

Athletic letters were presented to seniors Jami Hanson and Pam Wassink, the 1980 team captain; juniors Christie LaCoursiere, Nancy Swanson and Erickson; freshman Kim Lawrenz and eighth grader Michelle Olson.

Nancy Swanson gave the invocation, head coach Whitey Olson introduced the players and presented the letters and Jeanne Olson introduced the Franklin middle school tennis players.

Thief River Falls finished the 1980 season with a 5-5 dual meet record, while also participating in an invitational tournament at Brainerd, the first-ever Northwest Athletic Conference tournament and a pair of Thief River Falls-hosted triangular meets.

Crookston eliminated Thief River Falls 4-1 in first round North Half Region 8AA tournament play.

NAMED TO succeed Pam Wassink (left) as captain of the Lincoln high school girls tennis team Thursday at the Prowlers' post-season banquet was Marsha Erickson (right), a junior on the 1980 Thief River Falls squad.

First Non-Game Wildlife Bill Signed Into Law

A national nongame wildlife conservation bill was signed into law September 29, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

The landmark legislation gives the nation, for the first time, a specific program with which to manage nongame fish and wildlife.

The bill, known as the Forsythe-Chafee Act, authorizes the expenditure of $20 million over the next four years, beginning on October 1, 1981.

This money will be used to match state nongame wildlife funds, explained DNR officials. For example, for every dollar that Minnesotans donate to help nongame wildlife on their 1980 tax return, up to three dollars will be received from the federal government — up to a maximum of about $200,000.

This money will be used to help species like the bald eagle, common loon, pine-marten, bluebird and over 400 other birds, mammals, reptiles and amphibians.

"One of the greatest benefits of having this funding is that the money can be used to help prevent wildlife from becoming endangered," said DNR nongame specialist Carrol Henderson.

Schedule

Thurs., Oct. 30 — Mesabi at Hibbing.
Sat., Nov. 1 — Crookston at Fergus Falls, Itasca at Golden Valley Lutheran, Bismarck vs. Northland at Thief River Falls, Vermilion at Brainerd.

Final football game of the 1980 season will be played on the Thief River Falls athletic field Saturday afternoon when Northland community college hosts Bismarck junior college in a 1:30 p.m. nonconference game.

It'll be the 19th football game played on the Thief River Falls facility this fall: five Northland games; four Lincoln high school varsity games; six Lincoln sophomore-junior varsity games; and four Lincoln freshman games. And with the wet fall weather, the field looks to be in less-than-ideal shape.

However, Lincoln athletic director Russ Smith says the damage has been minimal, and he's not concerned about over-use.

"Damage to the field comes from compaction," reports Smith. "That's what makes it hard to grow good, thick grass. The surface area can be repaired. The wet weather makes it look bad to the naked eye, but it looks worse than what it really is. I'm sure that with a little work it'll come back just as thick and green as ever next year."

And compaction, caused by too many games, heavy use of phy-ed classes and marching bands, hasn't presented much of a problem.

"There's no problem with both of us (Lincoln and Northland) sharing the field. It's worked out real well," said Smith.

Things haven't worked out so well for the Northmen, though. They're 1-5-1 in the Minnesota Junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division. And like a broken record that keeps repeating itself, Northland's hard-hitting defense has been continuously betrayed by its punchless offense.

Northland hasn't scored a touchdown in five weeks, during which time the Northmen lost to Vermilion 26-3, tied Hibbing 6-6, lost to Fergus Falls 28-0, fell to Itasca 31-3 and last week in a game that underlined their frustrations, dropped a 7-2 decision to Brainerd.

Only scoring done by the Northland offense outside of Jeff Gobell's four field goals, came in a 21-12 second week victory over Mesabi. The Northmen lost their opener to Crookston 19-16, with the defense doing their scoring and the offense failing to put the ball in the end zone from the Crookston one-yard line in the final seconds.

And they better score this week because the Northmen close out their 1908 season on the road Saturday, Nov. 8, against unbeaten Golden Valley Lutheran. The Royals wrestled the MJCAA Northern Division lead away from Fergus Falls Saturday by beating the Spartans 16-7.

Bismarck, as a two-year school in the four-year North Dakota College Athletic Conference (NDCAC) is 1-6 for the year. Bismarck beat Northland 29-12 a year ago.

Elsewhere in the MJCAA Northern Division last week, Hibbing upset Crookston 7-6 and Mesabi rallied in the second half to beat Vermilion 27-7.

State Receives $3 Million For DNR Fish, Wildlife Programs

Minnesota is receiving approximately $3 million in federal aid funds for fish and wildlife restoration projects, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

The funds were made available for use October 1 and represent the first of two apportionments that will be made to the state by the federal government this year.

A total of 90 million is being distributed to the 50 states and U.S. territories for projects aimed at restoring fish and wildlife populations.

In the most recent apportionment of funds, Minnesota received $1,979,634 for wildlife restoration including hunter safety programs and $953,423 for fish restoration projects.

HEADED BY THE Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), volunteer workers have been busy installing the equipment that will provide artificial ice in the old arena. TRFAHA, which last year remodeled the facility to the tune of $15,000, hopes to have the ice plant in full operation by December 1. The project is expected to cost about $40,000. Workers Tuesday night were putting the rubber hose in place that circulates the ice-freezing refrigerant. After being put in place and secured, the hose is covered with sand that will later be frozen to make a base for the ice. Additional workers are welcome to lend a hand nearly every night, beginning about 6:30 p.m.

Swimmers Beat Lakers 62-21 For 7-2 Record

A 62-21 winner over Detroit Lakes Tuesday, the Lincoln high school girls swimming team faces a challenging weekend doubleheader on the road when the Prowlers face Section 3 rival Brainerd Friday at 6 p.m. and then journey to the metropolitan Twin Cities area to renew a series with Blake.

Thief River Falls coach John Hustad changed his lineup yesterday to give the heavily favored Prowlers a change-of-pace before the weekend tests, and still came up with 10 wins in 11 starts over the host Lakers for a 7-2 dual meet season record.

Mary Geatz, a sophomore, and Shelley McGann, an eighth grader, were double event winners for the Prowlers. Geatz won the 200-yard freestyle in 2:17.4 and took the 500-yard freestyle in 6:13.4. McGann won the 200-yard individual medley in a strong 2:38 and claimed the 100-yard backstroke in 1:14.4.

Thief River Falls was a 59-12 winner in the junior varsity portion of the meet.

One of the adventures of Autumn is hiding in a pile of leaves. Not really hiding, though. The fun is in poking your head out and surprising someone!

When we're growing up, every season brings its adventures. Our days are full of opportunities for having fun.

Hopefully those days will also be marked by adventures that help build character. With each passing season the soul as well as the body needs to grow.

The opportunity for youngsters whose families are concerned for their spiritual development is in religious education.

We don't belong under the debris of Fall — our convictions are the heralds of a new Spring.

EARTH HEAT FOR GASOHOL

The first known experiment using geothermal energy to distill alcohol for use as a fuel was reported recently by EG&G, Inc., in support of a Federal energy resources program.

Researchers used the natural hot water from beneath the earth to distill sugar beet syrup into alcohol which can be added to gasoline to make gasohol. Gasohol is usually 10 percent alcohol and 90 percent gasoline.

Conducted successfully at the U.S. Energy Department's Raft River geothermal site in south central Idaho, the experiment was given full support by an EG&G subsidiary, EG&G Idaho, as site management contractor to the Energy Department's Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The low-cost experiment used a moderate temperature of 240°F., proving that geothermal water is a potential source of heat energy for distillation and that it can also augment the fermenting liquid, thus conserving water as well as nonrenewable fossil fuels.

Researchers are now evaluating geothermal applications for distilling alcohol from other cheaply supplied, easily renewable products. Colorado State University is participating in the study which includes forest slash, wheat straw, pine chips and surplus farm crops.

Learn To Change Tire Before The Need Arises

If your car hasn't experienced a flat tire, chances are you aren't aware of the workings of your car's jack.

Time to learn about it is before you need it on the roadside, says the automotive information council (AIC), which advises car owners to give the tire-changing process a "dry run" in the garage or on the driveway.

Knowing where the jack is and how it works will eliminate the need for the motorist to try his luck while stopped along the road, possibly in the rain or at night.

Perform the dry run at your leisure when you can carefully follow instructions while not under time pressure or under adverse conditions, says AIC.

Each owner's manual contains detailed instructions for the jack and its operation and tells how to change a tire. It also provides information on the various types of spare tires.

Spares include the conventional tire which can be put on a car for regular use; the collapsible spare which has to be inflated by a special canister, and the already inflated mini-spare. The latter two are for temporary use only.

Jacks include those which fit into slots in the bumper and those which fit under the door sill. They require different methods of operation. Know which one you have and how it operates, says AIC. Again, consult the manual.

Changing a tire is a relatively simple procedure but it should be done with some caution, says AIC. Gear selector should be in the park position and the parking brake should be set. Place an object to block the wheel which is diagonally opposite the wheel being changed. Only then should you remove the jack and tire-wheel combination from the trunk of the car.

Flat tires no longer occur with any frequency, especially if the tires have a moderate amount of tread, but they always seem to happen at an inappropriate time. That's why a practice session will save a lot of mental wear and tear should the need to change a tire arise, says AIC.

An eye disease of diabetics, called diabetic retinopathy, is now the leading cause of new cases of blindness among adults aged 20 to 74. All diabetics are at risk for the disease, and should have regular eye exams even if there is no apparent vision problem. Museum Plans Man-Powered Plane Exhibit

Gossamer Albatross, the first human-powered aircraft to cross the English channel, will be on display at the Science Museum of Minnesota November 4-30.

Paul MacCready, the plane's designer, will be in St. Paul on Tuesday, November 18, for a lecture on the crossing and on his latest solar-powered planes, the Gossamer Penguin and the Gossamer Challenger.

The Gossamer Albatross made the 22-mile trip across the English channel on June 12, 1979, earning the Kremer prize of $213,000 for MacCready, pilot Bryan Allen, and the rest of the crew. Allen pedalled the 55-pound Albatross across the channel in two hours and 49 minutes.

Here in St. Paul as part of a national tour sponsored by the DuPont company, the Albatross is a winged monoplane controlled by a small boom-supported stabilizer in front. It is 18 feet high, 30 feet long, and has a wingspan of 96 feet, three feet greater than that of a DC-9. Its "cockpit," a compartment 19 inches wide, allowed the pilot to pedal from an upright position.

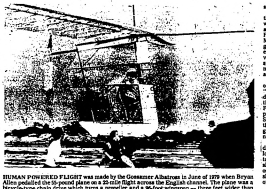
The predecessor of the Albatross, MacCready's Gossamer Condor, won the original Kremer prize of $100,000 on August 23, 1977, when it flew a 1.15-mile figure-eight course in 7½ minutes. The Condor hangs in the Smithsonian's national air and space museum in Washington, D.C., between Charles Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis and the Wright brothers' biplane.

The "engine" for both the successful Condor and Albatross flights was Bryan Allen, a Bakersfield, California, biologist whose leg muscles powered the planes through use of a bicycle-like chain-drive which turned the propeller.

The Gossamer Albatross will be on display in the science museum's first floor lobby during regular exhibit hall hours Tuesday through Sunday. A 2½-minute film of the flight accompanies the exhibit. Admission to see the Albatross is free.

In addition, a 52-minute film, "Flight of Imagination," depicting the history of the Albatross and the channel effort, will be shown daily in the Paleontology hall at the museum. Admission to see this film is included in the price of an exhibit hall ticket.

Paul MacCready, who is a Caltech aeronautics engineer and president of AeroVironment, will speak at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, November 18, at the St. Paul civic center theater. Tickets for the MacCready lecture may be purchased at the science museum, all Dayton ticket offices and at the door of the civic center the night of the lecture.



HUMAN POWERED FLIGHT was made by the Gossamer Albatross in June of 1979 when Bryan Allen pedalled the 55-pound plane on a 22-mile flight across the English channel. The plane was a bicycle-type chain drive which turns a propeller and a 96-foot wingspan — three feet wider than that of a DC-9. The plane will be on display November 4-30 at the Science Museum of Minnesota at 30 East 10th Street in St. Paul. The Albatross is shown during a practice run prior to the channel crossing.

Drivers Must Use Signals While Driving

Minnesotans need to be reminded of the importance of using vehicle or hand signals while driving, according to Public Safety Commissioner John P. Sopsic.

One of the critical times for signalling is while approaching an intersection to turn left or right. Motorists should give signals at least 100 feet before the turn is made. Another necessary time for a signal is prior to changing lanes on freeways or other multi-lane roadways.

Colonel D. Roger Ledding, State Patrol Chief, said many accidents or near-misses are caused by failure to signal.

With the increasing volume of traffic on state interstate highways, it is vital for drivers to make use of signals. Bicyclists and motorcyclists should also signal turns or lane changes.

Another area with potential for serious accidents is in bike lanes. The number of bike riders using bike lanes has increased markedly the past several years. Though the lanes are set aside for bike riders, motorists drive vehicles onto bike lanes prior to making turns.

The law reads as follows: "Whenever it is necessary for the driver of a motor vehicle to cross a bicycle lane adjacent to his or her lane of travel to make a turn, the driver should drive the motor vehicle into the bike lane prior to making the turn. When making the turn, the motor vehicle operator should yield the right-of-way to any vehicles approaching so close as to constitute an immediate hazard."

"Signalling is one means of communications vehicle operators must have with each other," said Ledding. "Failure to signal is hazardous and illegal, and the cause of many accidents."

BLM Begins Land Planning In Minnesota

For anyone with an interest in the future of Minnesota's lands and resources, the federal bureau of land management (BLM) is offering an unusual opportunity. BLM is asking the public to help it determine how best to manage its lands in the state.

"BLM, a part of the U.S. department of interior, administers 43,114 acres of public lands and 1,171 islands totalling another 2,229 acres, scattered throughout 71 of the 87 counties in Minnesota," said Roger L. Hildebeidel, BLM's Eastern States director for Minnesota and 30 other eastern states. "To do the job, BLM has a staff of 12 specialists headquartered at Duluth."

The lands in question are scattered, isolated parcels, all remnants of the Federal public domain, and nearly all of them still in their natural state. The largest areas are in Koochiching and other northern counties. Some areas are significant as wildlife habitat, such as nesting sites for gulls and eagles. Many of the islands under BLM jurisdiction are regularly used and enjoyed by recreationists; some are being occupied without permission. Significant historical, cultural and ecological values are present on many of the islands and in the peat bogs.

"Right now, Jerry Heinz, Lake States office manager and his staff, with the help of many others, are preparing a management framework plan for these lands," Hildebeidel said. "The plan must consider numerous management possibilities, including continued BLM administration; transfer to other Federal, state or county agencies; cooperative agreements with organizations; or perhaps disposal through public sale. The plan will also consider the social and economic impacts on nearby communities and provide for public involvement all along the way."

Work has been in progress for the past few years. An inventory of all the lands and islands still under BLM's jurisdiction in Minnesota has already been completed. Now, thorough analyses of each individual resource value are nearly finished. These individual Unit Resource Analyses (URAs) will soon be presented at public workshops to be conducted at key locations in Minnesota. Public review of these documents is important because they form the basis for the management framework plan and the ultimate determination of BLM's role in the state.

Here are some of the questions BLM is asking: How are the lands now being used? What are the potential uses? Should these lands remain under the jurisdiction of BLM, be transferred to other Federal agencies, State or County departments, or sold to private parties? What is the most feasible way to manage these scattered remnants and still protect the values they include? Is it cost-effective to retain them or to dispose of them? What will existing laws and regulations allow? What changes may be necessary in those laws? What does the public want? What does the State of Minnesota want? Who is most likely to protect significant values? What are other alternatives? Who cares about these lands, anyway?

A public participation plan has been prepared, identifying the steps taken to date and those planned for the next few months to assure that a full range of public interests are included in BLM's planning process.

For more information about BLM lands, where they are located, why they still remain in Federal jurisdiction, and why BLM is developing resource management plans, contact the Lake States Office, Bureau of Land Management, 125 Federal Building, Duluth, Minnesota 55802, telephone (218) 727-6692, Ext. 378. Resource specialists there will be glad to explain what the planning steps are and tell interested persons how they can help.

Starfish Rank Among Strange Ocean Animals

With eyes at the end of each arm, a stomach that can turn inside out, and the ability to regenerate new arms, the starfish — or sea star — surely ranks as one of the ocean's strangest inhabitants.

Starfish, which are found in tidepools of every ocean in the world, are not really fish at all, says the current issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. They belong to a group of sea animals called echinoderms, and come in a variety of shapes, colors and sizes. The largest can measure two or three feet across.

Sea stars get around by way of hundreds of tiny tubelike "feet" located on the underside of each arm, explains the National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children. Suckers attached to the end of the tubes enable the animal to grip onto rocks, as well as its next meal.

Once a sea star homes in on dinner, a scallop perhaps, it locks onto its shell, and its tube feet begin to suck the shell open. The scallop, with only two muscles to hold its shell tightly shut, quickly tires of the tug-of-war.

"It's a battle the scallop always loses. After the shell is opened, the sea star pushes its stomach through its mouth, located at the center of its body, surrounds the scallop with its stomach, and digests it outside its body.

A close look at the ends of a sea star's arms will reveal its eyespots, which enable the animal to see only light and dark, not objects, says Ranger Rick.

The sea star's arms are expendable, eyespots and all, for new ones can be easily regenerated. Shore birds or sea otters may take a dive at a tasty sea star and end up with only a tidbit. Scientists have discovered that even a small part of a sea star's arm can regenerate four new ones.

Colorful as they are, live sea stars shouldn't become part of your summer sea shell collection, advises Ranger Rick, for they are a vital link in the fragile marine life food chain.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Planning for an Energy Emergency

Given the current war between Iran and Iraq, and the growing instability elsewhere in the Middle East, what is the likelihood of a severe disruption of oil production in the Persian Gulf? Does the United States have a contingency plan in place to deal with a possible emergency? If not, what should we be doing?

These were some of the principal questions addressed recently at a special conference "Planning for an Energy Emergency," that was hosted by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D.C. Our panel participants included several of the top energy experts in the country, and the conference featured such speakers as Senator Peter Domenici of New Mexico, and Mr. Frank Zarb, the former Federal Energy Administrator and now a general partner of Lazard Freres and Company. I must tell you that the gist of what we heard was anything but optimistic.

Listen, for example, to the message from Senator Domenici. He warned:

"Let me be blunt with you. My judgment is that the probability of a supply disruption in Middle East oil is 100 per cent. That is, I believe it will occur, sooner, or later, regardless of what policies this nation takes.

"Look at the recent record: Internal dissension in Iran in 1979 removed that nation's oil reserves from our supply mix; accidental fires in a Saudi oil field in 1978 reduced capacity for that nation by 1 million barrels per day; the military conflict in the Middle East between Iran and Iraq is now costing the world even more. "And, single nation embargoes involving individual OPEC or non-OPEC nations always remain a grave danger."

Domenici also emphasized the concerns recently voiced by James Schlesinger, the former Secretary of Defense and of Energy, vis-a-vis the Soviet Union. Since the Soviets are now reaching their peak domestic production in energy, Schlesinger believes they will seek to extend their influence in the Middle East — an influence that is bound to be disruptive.

The impact of a major cutoff of petroleum cannot be overestimated. The Congressional Budget Office has already projected that in the event all OPEC oil were denied to America for a full year, unemployment would jump by 25 per cent, inflation would soar by as much as 15 full points, and, our gross national product would plunge by 10 per cent. I should add that such a worst case is still unlikely since several important OPEC members, Nigeria, Venezuela and Indonesia, for example, are located outside the dangerous Middle East area. Then too, Canada, which is not a member of OPEC, but is an important energy supplier, could be expected to increase its own production.

Nevertheless, what most worried the conference participants was the realization that our government has done virtually nothing to protect the American people from a potential catastrophe. According to Senator Domenici, for example, as recently as last year, a memo from the State Energy Committee staff characterized the possibility of a supply interruption from the Middle East oil fields resulting from a military attack on a major oil-producing nation as "remote".

The Administration was severely citicized for its failure to stockpile oil in the U.S. Strategic Oil Reserve. Frank Zarb stated: "The only sensible embargo insurance in the next 15 years is the stockpiling of oil, but the U.S. program has been victimized by bad judgment and mismanagement." Indeed, as originally conceived by Zarb himself, this program envisioned our stockpiling 1 billion barrels of oil by 1983, and enough by this year to provide us a cushion of several months in case of an emergency. At last count, however, the reserve was filled to only 10 per cent of capacity, and at one time, the Administration had even neglected to install pumps to get that little oil there was out of the ground.

In 1979, when the Iranian revolution caused only about a 4 per cent loss of oil imports, we suffered through long gasoline lines and witnessed outbreaks of violence among American motorists. But now, faced with the prospect of a much larger cutoff, and the possibility of real chaos, the Administration has still not put in place the crash production programs America so desperately needs.

Election Predictions

If campaign rhetoric was nuclear material, 99 per cent of the nation's population would now be glowing like a fluorescent tube. A little more exposure to the clamor for votes and electioneering could require a federal warning as being hazardous to health.

The frustrating thing about listening to and reading much of the political commentary that flows back and forth is that it is almost impossible to sort out what is pertinent. Depending on your outlook, you can view an action by an incumbent as either terrible or terrific, yet the action may have been taken for an entirely different reason or under completely different circumstances.

When an incumbent candidate maintains he or she stands proudly on the record and the challenger maintains with equal fervor that the record shows disservice or lack of representation, both may be entirely truthful. Interpretation is something which the voter must decide for himself or herself.

As difficult as it is to sort out the candidates to support, it is even more difficult to predict how the voters will be moved to vote. This election it seems there is no national trend of over-riding significance. It is a case of a president perceived to be weak and ineffective opposed by one candidate portrayed as old and forgetful and another acceptable to neither party and therefore unworthy of public support.

It is a year when most voters seem disposed to write-in "none of the above" on their presidential ballot.

We will predict a Reagan victory because there are probably enough voters who believe anything is better than nothing. But unless you live on a steep mountain slope, don't look for a landslide.

The Seventh District congressional race between Arlan Stangeland and Gene Wenstrom will be a close one. Congressional races in this district usually are close, although Bob Bergland made a runaway out of a couple of them before shuffling off to Washington to be Carter's secretary of agriculture.

We look for Congressman Stangeland to be reelected. His record isn't as bad as the Wenstrom camp would like the public to think it is, and a lot of people didn't take too kindly to the belittling manner used in Wenstrom's early campaign ads. Wenstrom is a personable young man but no miracle worker, and to expect him to be more effective than the incumbent congressman is a hollow hope.

Interestingly, Stangeland and Wenstrom are from the same part of the district. It is the Republican part of the district, however, and Wenstrom won't poll extensive home area support. He will need to win heavily in the DFL environs of the north, but that won't happen to the extent necessary to win.

State Senator Marv Hanson will be back in St. Paul for another legislative session in 1981. Challenger Mark Skogerboe has made a late rush and, much to his credit, has refused to attack the incumbent's record or positions. Mark has proved to be a nice guy, somewhat of a rarity in today's politics, but he lacks the background, contacts and experience to be a formidable candidate at the polls.

Senator Hanson has responsively served District I and established himself in the legislature. And we might as well face the facts that any representative of the sparsely populated north has a real battle to accomplish much of anything on a state-wide basis.

We'll give Skogerboe credit for making a serious campaign effort, but we suspect that most Independent-Republicans active in the party locally would admit that he received the endorsement more by default than decision because no more established area resident was interested.

On the District 1-B level we look for Clyde Christensen to win over LeRoy Stumpf. Stumpf survived a DFL endorsement battle and a primary election run-off while Christensen was unopposed and therefore missed the publicity of the primary campaign.

But political wounds heal slowly, and we suspect there will be some scars within the DFL party which will seriously affect Stumpf's solidarity there. Couple that with Christensen's long-standing residency and associations within the district and the many people willing to support him on an individual basis and you have a potent political potential.

We believe that for the most part the legislative races have been positive and free from mud-slinging or attempted defamation, and that is to the credit of all concerned. It is also a marked contrast to the U.S. congressional and presidential races which have left little room for anyone to take pride.

Amendment 4 View

Because we have a good deal of confidence in Minnesotans and their ability to think straight on issues affecting them, we have supported the passage of Amendment 4 on initiative and referendum. We feel the knowledge that the public can become directly involved in issues of interest will make more responsible representatives out of the legislature. And we believe it is easier for special interest groups to lobby select legislators than to convince the statewide populace.

But there is a differing viewpoint, and it is expressed in the following commentary by Ken Libbey which appeared recently in Jim Peterson's "Outdoor News":

Should Minnesota sportsmen back initiative and referendum for this state? It's a close "judgment call," but the answer is "no."

"Initiative" allows voters to enact new laws after a petition drive has put the question on the general election ballot. "Referendum" means voters could repeal existing laws.

It's hard to be against this kind of citizen participation. Various pressure groups and others have already lined up on both sides of the initiative and referendum (I and R) issue. Among those opposing it are the Citizen's League, the NAACP, the Urban League and the League of Women Voters, as well as the AFL-CIO and the Minnesota Farmers Union.

Most sportsmen would feel rather uncomfortable with the "environmental affairs" positions of some of these organizations, and it does seem as if the groups that already wield considerable power with the state legislature might just wish to nix direct citizen participation in making the repealing laws so as to retain their political "clout" on Capitol Hill. There may be something to that.

But sportsmen need only look at the current initiative to ban hunting of mourning doves in South Dakota to see what could happen if I and R questions were to go on this state's ballots. This is the second time in six years that the same woman (Maggie Warren, a Hermosa, S.D., rancher) has managed to get a dove hunting ban before the voters. The last time was 1972.

Maybe the dove question will fail. Even so, South Dakota hunters have had to put in tremendous amounts of time, money and effort to convince the voters that the hunting ban should be defeated. And, nothing will stop this woman, and the same groups of her supporters, from having the dove question brought up in another general election.

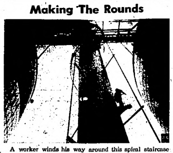
The main reason for I and R is dissatisfaction with the state legislature. Certainly, Minnesota sportsmen have plenty of issues to be unhappy about — Attorney General Warren Spannaus' gun control law, the new "trespass" law and payments to the White Earth Indians out of hunters' license fee revenues, to name a few. But, would I and R have really made a difference in any of these controversies, or could it only make things worse for the state's already beleaguered sportsmen?

It's pretty frustrating for someone who is a dedicated hunter and fisherman, and who loves the outdoors, to go up on Capitol Hill week after week, and watch our state senators and representatives act on "sportsmen's" issues. The first thing you notice is that there aren't very many other sportsmen around when the bills are being hammered out. When you sit in committee hearing rooms with not one other sportsman there, or talk to state lawmakers to find out why they voted against the sportsmen's interests, you learn pretty quickly that the trouble with the Minnesota legislature lies 75 or 85 per cent with the hollow, resounding apathy exhibited by the sportsmen, themselves.

That is, apathy during the legislative session when legislators simply do not hear from sportsmen in the home districts; apathy between sessions, when sportsmen could use the time to organize themselves to take advantage of their great potential for political influence; and, worst of all, apathy during that all-important period prior to state general elections, when sportsmen could help choose candidates, write party platforms, and work for those who will stand up for their interests in St. Paul.

If Minnesota adopts I and R, sportsmen will be faced with questions sponsored by groups like MPIRG, the Fund for Animals, the Sierra Club, Fur and Trapping Ethics (FATE), various anti-handgun organizations and others, every time they go to vote.

Making The Rounds



A worker winds his way around this spiral staircase to the top of two huge storage tanks in Woodward, Oklahoma. The 1,200 ton-per-day plant, 50%-owned by a subsidiary of W. R. Grace & Co., 25%-owned by a subsidiary of Terra Chemicals International, Inc., and 25%-owned by Gulf Oil Corporation, produces anhydrous ammonia, a nitrogen fertilizer used by farmers to help fill increasing U.S. and world food requirements. This plant will provide enough nitrogen to balance with other fertilizer nutrients in producing more than 100 million bushels of grain a year.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q: In completing my annual income questionnaire for the Veterans Administration, should I show my home mortgage as a debt?

A: No. Since you do not show the value of your home as an asset, you cannot show your home mortgage as a debt.

Q: My brother was recently buried. He was a veteran. During the ceremonies the U.S. flag which draped the casket was presented to his wife. Why wasn't our mother entitled to this flag?

Q: One burial flag is presented in accordance with the law to the next-of-kin of a veteran in the following order: widow, children, father, mother, brothers, sisters, etc.

Q: What is the maximum Veterans Administration home loan available?

A: VA guarantees loans made by private lenders. There are no established maximums. However, no loan may exceed the reasonable property value as determined by a fee appraiser.

Q: Will the Veterans Administration guarantee a loan for me to buy a condominium if I meet the credit and veteran eligibility requirements?

A: Yes. However, the condominium must also meet the minimum property standards as for a conventionally built single-family residence.

Q: Are veterans of the armed forces of Poland and Czechoslovakia entitled to hospitalization in Veterans Administration medical facilities?

A: Public Law 94-491 provided authority to furnish hospital care and medical services to certain specified veterans of the armed forces of Poland and Czechoslovakia. Basically, they must have served their home country during World War I or World War II, served in or with the British or French armed forces, and been citizens of the U.S. for at least 10 years.

Q: I served on active duty four months in 1972 and received an honorable discharge. Am I entitled to loan guaranty benefits through the Veterans Administration?

A: Yes. Legislation passed in 1978 provided that 90 days or more service during the Vietnam-era — August 5, 1964 to May 7, 1975 — entitles veterans to VA loan guaranty benefits.

Q: Are all veterans eligible for burial in a national cemetery?

A: Burial is available to deceased veterans who were discharged under conditions other than dishonorable, at all national cemeteries having available grave space, except Arlington National Cemetery.

Q — My father was an honorably-discharged wartime veteran. When he died a year ago, we were not aware of his eligibility for Veterans Administration burial benefits.

A — A claim for VA burial benefits can be filed up to two years after a veteran's permanent burial or cremation. For an application and assistance check with your nearest VA regional office.

Q — If I purchase a home using a Veterans Administration guaranteed loan, am I obliged to occupy the home?

A — Yes. The eligible veteran must certify that he or she intends to occupy the property personally as his or her home. This certification must be completed with the loan application and at the time the loan is closed.

Q — I am receiving a Veterans Administration pension under the old pension law. If I notify the Veterans Administration of unusual medical expenses, will I be entitled to increased VA pension benefits?

A — Unusual medical expenses have no direct effect on a pension under the old pension laws except as a deduction in meeting income limits.

Q — I am a World War II veteran and have never used by GI home loan benefit. Am I still eligible?

A — Yes. Application forms and assistance are available at your nearest Veterans Administration office.

Q — I qualify for the Veterans Administration clothing allowance because of the prosthetic devices I wear. Must I waive that amount from my military retirement pay to receive the allowance?

A — A veteran in receipt of military retirement pay is not required to waive any portion of that pay in order to receive the annual clothing allowance from VA.

Q — I wish to get a Veterans Administration guaranteed loan to purchase a new home. What is the rule about living in the new house?

A — A veteran must certify that he intends to live in the house he is buying or building with a VA-guaranteed loan.

Q — Does the Veterans Administration pay an additional monthly allowance to a widow in a nursing home if she receives dependency and indemnity compensation?

A — A widow who qualifies for either dependency and indemnity compensation or pension may be granted aid and attendance allowance if she is a patient in a nursing home.

Q: My husband received an honorable discharge after several months of service at the end of World War II. He is now disabled by an illness unrelated to his service. Is he eligible for a Veterans Administration pension?

A: If he served at least 90 days between December 7, 1941, and December 31, 1946, is permanently and totally disabled and has income within the limits set by law, he may be eligible. Check with the nearest VA regional office for full details.

Q: Persons just entering military service are no longer eligible for GI Bill education. Is there another education plan for them?

A: The Post-Vietnam Era Veterans' Educational Assistance Program was started when the GI Bill expired. New service members initially entering on active duty on or after January 1, 1977, may participate. Under this plan, the member contributes to a special training fund each month while in service. The government later contributes $2 for each $1 invested. The Veterans Administration and the armed services have full details.

Q: My father was an honorably discharged veteran who died several years ago. My mother remarried but has recently been widowed again and lives on Social Security. Is she eligible for a Veterans Administration pension because of my father's military service?

A: If your father's service was such that she was eligible before re-marriage, she has probably regained her eligibility. She should apply at the nearest VA regional office.

Q: What are the basic rates payable as burial expenses for a deceased veteran?

A: A total of $300 if the veteran died from non-service-connected conditions, and $1,100 if the veteran died from a service-connected cause. Check with your nearest Veterans administration regional office for additional details and assitance.

Q: What are "discount points" in connection with Veterans administration guaranteed home loans?

A: "Discount points" is the term used to express the percentage of the loan which the lender requires as a one-time payment to persuade him to make the loan. The purpose of the discount points is to make a VA-guaranteed loan competitive in the market place for the available mortgage credit.

Q: How much is the Veterans administration clothing allowance for those veterans eligible to receive it?

A: The current annual clothing allowance is $240.

Q: Can a qualified veteran receive a Veterans administration guaranteed loan to purchase a condominium?

A: Yes, provided the unit is located in a project approved by the VA.

Q — What is the interest rate on a GI home loan?

A — Currently (August 1, 1980), the interest rate is 11.5 per cent. Interest rates vary from time to time. However, once a loan is closed, the interest rate ramains in effect until the loan is paid in full.

Q — How may a veteran determine what adaptive equipment has been approved by the Veterans Administration?

A — Information on VA-approved adaptive equipment may be obtained by visiting or calling the nearest VA medical center or outpatient clinic, or by writing directly to the VA Prosthetic Center, 151 Seventh Avenue, New York, N.Y.

Q — I served eight years of active military service before being honorably discharged. Do I still have reemployment rights at my former job?

A — No. To be entitled to these rights a veteran must not have served for more than four years after August 1, 1961. A one-year additional voluntary extension of active duty is permitted if it is at the request of and for the convenience of the government.

Q — May I obtain a Veterans administration guaranteed home loan to include amounts for energy conservation improvements and solar energy systems?

A — Yes. The VA will consider the guarantee of energy conservation improvements and solar energy systems, within certain limits, as an additional guaranteed amount. Eligible veterans should contact their nearest VA regional office for details on specific loan classifications.

Q — Who is eligible to receive a clothing allowance from the Veterans administration?

A — Any veteran who is entitled to receive compensation for a service-connected disability for which a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance, including a wheelchair, is worn or used.

Q — I am a World War II veteran and want to be buried in a national cemetery. How do I reserve a space?

A — Any veteran whose separation from service was for reasons other than dishonorable is eligible for burial in a national cemetery. Reservations are not accepted. Arrangements for burial in a national cemetery may be made at the time of death.

Q: What is the Veterans Administration's objective in setting up career development centers throughout the country?

A: These centers provide disabled and other veterans current career and job information, training in job-finding skills and approaches, an understanding of career development, and direct placement or referral for job placement assistance.

Q: I am a veteran of World War II drawing a non-service-connected pension for blindness. Can I get a seeing-eye dog through the Veterans Administration?

A: Yes. If eligibility requirements are met, VA will pay for your training to use the dog and will provide medical care for the dog.

Q: Can a school be held liable for veterans' individual GI Bill educational overpayments?

A: A school is potentially liable for overpayments directly resulting from false certifications of registration or attendance or failure to report changes to the Veterans Administration in the status of veterans attending the school.

Improving Car Performance UNDER THE HOOD

Vehicle Defects Common -- Some Things To Do

In a survey conducted by the National Highway Traffic Administration of more than 125,000 vehicles that had undergone a comprehensive inspection, more than 75 percent of the vehicles failed to pass.

Oftentimes, the average driver does not have to be an expert to spot potential trouble areas on the family car, and even make some needed repairs.

Here are some things to look for under the hood:

Distributor — Cap should be tight and locked in place to keep out dust, dirt and moisture.

Spark plug wires — Check to see that all spark plug wires are securely in place. However, don't pull on them to check. Rather, push the wire boots down on the plugs, at both ends.

Next, check the wires for wear. Are they cracked or brittle? Do they spark when the engine is running? (With the hood up, check for sparks after dark or in a darkened garage.)

These wires carry thousands of volts to your spark plugs so it's important that they function at top efficiency. Faulty wiring can cause an engine to misfire, waste gas and stall.

Whether you replace the wires yourself, or have a mechanic do the job, it's a good idea to make sure the replacement spark plug wires are silicone-jacketed. Although they cost more than synthetic wires, silicone-jacketed wires last much longer in today's high temperature engines. (For a handy booklet that shows how to detect and replace faulty wires, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: "Car Care Tips," P.O. Box 1726, Midland MI 48640.)

Belts — Make a periodic check of fan and drive belts. A defective belt can break anytime and frequently does. . .at the worst time. Cracks in the rubber indicate "aging" and mean belts should be replaced.

ANTI FREEZE

With the motor off, press down on the belt with your thumb. A properly adjusted belt should have less than half an inch of "give" to it. If there is more, the belt needs to be tightened accordingly.

Hoses — Replace heater or radiator hoses that are brittle or have soft spots. Rust stains around hose clamps can indicate a loose connection or leak.

Radiator — For protection the year 'round, always keep coolant/antifreeze in your radiator, and change yearly.

Battery — Don't wait until your battery fails. If it's not the permanently-sealed type, keep a check on the water levels in your battery. Always refill with distilled water, as needed.

Handy tip: On a rainy day, take a few minutes to read over the owner's manual that came with your car. You're sure to learn something new.

Views On® Dental Health

By Donald R. Goodrich, D.D.S.

DOES PREGNANCY CAUSE TOOTH DECAY?

Once and for all, let's put the myth to rest. Pregnancy does NOT cause tooth decay. It is easy to see where certain factors may lead to this erroneous conclusion. During pregnancy, women tend to be busier preparing for the upcoming birth. Once the baby arrives, she is even busier. Instead of six months, it may be a year or more between visits. Obviously, more dental work will be discovered in a period of one or two years than in a six-month checkup.

Of course, women experience certain hormonal changes during pregnancy. These changes may produce a temporary condition of puffiness or bleeding of the gums. This condition is called "pregnancy gingivitis" and can be controlled by keeping the mouth "preventive clean" by the proper use of brushing and floss.

Equally false is the notion that baby robs the mother's teeth of calcium. The composition of adult teeth cannot be changed once fully formed. Babies may be responsible for stretch marks - but not dental decay.

USDA Plan To Reduce Food Stamp Errors

States would be given financial incentives to reduce food stamp errors under a system of penalties and rewards proposed recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The proposal would hold states liable for a portion of food stamps they issue in error, if the states' errors exceed a national average for all states, according to assistant secretary of agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman. "Penalties may be assessed for issuing food stamps to ineligible households and over or under paying eligible households."

At the same time, the proposed rule would reward states that keep food stamp *errors to a minimum by in*creasing the federal share of state administrative cost, she said. Currently the federal government pays the full cost of food stamp benefits and half the costs states incur as administrators of the program.

New rule would entitle states with error rates below the national average to receive 60 to 65 per cent federal matching funds for administrative expenses, depending upon how low their error rates are. States that reduce error rates by 25 per cent, even though they fail to go below the national average, would qualify for a 55 per cent match for administrative costs.

"This proposal would implement amendments to the Food Stamp Act proposed by the administration and enacted by Congress last May," Foreman said. "It's a tough system because it will measure each state's performance against that or other states. But it also gives states a fair chance to avoid penalties by showing steady improvement."

Once implemented, the regulations could result in states being penalized as early as next summer. Rewards for low error rates would be paid before that time according to a schedule established by Congress.

Under the proposed rule, the period from October 1, 1979 through March 31, 1980 would be used as a base period for calculating a national average error rate. USDA is now collecting data on error rates for that period and the data will be averaged out and "weighted" to account for differences in the size of food stamp caseloads from state to state, Foreman said.

While the national average error rate is being calculated, the states are collecting information about errors in food stamp payments for a new measurement period which began October 1, 1980 and will end March 31, 1981, she said. This new data will be compared to the national average error rate for the base period.

"States with payment errors greater than the national standard would be expected, under the proposed regulation, to reduce their error rate either to the national average or by a substantial percentage during each succeeding measurement period," Foreman said.

"We expect the national average error rate to be forced down each year," she said, "because states will be working to reduce errors to avoid penalties or receive increased funding. Congress envisioned that this carrot and stick approach would save dollars now being lost by states through payments to ineligible households and overpayments and that it would help to assure the public that correct food stamp benefits are going to eligible households."

The proposed regulations were published recently in the Federal Register.

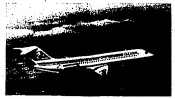
Ozark Becomes All-Jet Airline



This newest DC-9 in Ozark Air Lines' all-jet fleet recently set a distance record with a 2,640-mile coast-to-coast flight. The long range model is one of 39 DC-9 jets operated by the carrier.

For the first time in 30 years no props will spin on Ozark Air Lines aircraft as the carrier moves to an all-jet fleet. The company will operate 39 DC-9 jets.

The DC-9 first entered Ozark's fleet in 1966, the same year service was inaugurated with the FH-227B prop-jet which is being phased out and sold.

Ozark's jet fleet includes seven DC-9-10 models with seating for 80 passengers, and 32 of the stretched DC-9-30 version with 100 seats. Two of the stretched jets are also new long-range models which were recently delivered to Ozark and have since set several distance records for the DC-9. They have a range of 2500 miles compared to 1500 for the other models, and are the only such aircraft operated in the U.S.

At one time Ozark operated as many as 21 of the prop-jets which are being phased out and sold. They were all put into service between December 1966 and December 1967, but during recent years the aircraft has been removed one-by-one from the fleet. Only four remain in the current schedule.

Ozark completed its move to the turbine powered age with these two aircraft when they entered service in 1966. During the next two years they replaced the company's fleet of DC-3, Martin 404 and F-27 aircraft (the latter being an earlier, smaller version of the FH-227B).

As Ozark moved to become an all-jet carrier during recent years the company has grown also. The DC-9 fleet will operate over a system that serves 59 cities in 19 states, with boardings approaching five million passengers a year. Routes stretch from Denver on the west to New York and Washington, D.C. on the east, and between Minneapolis/St. Paul and the Gulf Coast.

A New Dress For Chicken

Chicken takes on a new dress with a ripe olive garlic-accented sauce.

The chicken halves are poached until just tender. Then a smooth cream sauce, deftly seasoned with garlic and pointed up with the ebony hue of ripe olives, is spread over the halves and baked. The nutty flavor of the ripe olives blends with the gentle pungency of garlic to emphasize but not overpower the chicken flavor. Served with hot parslied rice and green asparagus, color contrasted with pimiento strips, it is an anytime appetite pleaser.

A salad of butter lettuce, artichoke hearts, chopped egg whites and sieved egg yolks, accented with whole ripe olives and cherry tomatoes, completes this showy meal.

Poached Chicken In Garlic Olive Sauce

2	(2 pounds each) broiler chickens
2	(13 3/4 oz.) cans chicken broth
3	tablespoons butter or margarine
2	teaspoons finely minced garlic
1/4	cup flour
1-1/2	cups broth from cooking chicken
1	cup half and half
3/4	teaspoon salt
1	egg
1	cup pitted California ripe olives

Cut each chicken in half (or have your butcher do it). Starting from breast on each half, loosen skin and pull off. Skin may be left on wings, if desired. Skewer legs close to body. Heat broth in large skillet. Add chickens. Bring to boil on high heat. Reduce heat; cover, and cook gently for 20 to 30 minutes or until chicken is fork tender. Drain, save broth. Remove skewers and place chicken halves in oven-proof baking dish. Cover with foil or waxed paper while preparing sauce. Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Melt butter; add garlic and cook over very low heat 3 or 4 minutes. Stir in flour. Add 1-1/2 cups broth, half and half, and salt to flour mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils and thickens. Remove from heat. Beat egg until bubbly. Add little heated sauce to egg and return to remaining sauce. Stir in olives. Spoon sauce over chickens and cover completely. Bake in preheated oven for about 10 minutes, until thoroughly heated. Makes 4 servings.

Arlan Stangeland | Gene Wenstrom

Tax Reform
Arlan Stangeland favors the Kemp-Roth tax scheme. Such a plan provides a boondoggle for the rich, and little but inflation for working men and women. Most economists say it will increase the federal deficit, and double inflation!
Gene Wenstrom supports tax reduction geared toward middle and low income familes. He believes taxes are too soft for large corporations, and too hard on working men and women. And he has proposed a fairer tax rate for small businesses – plus reform and simplification of depreciation allowances.

Support for farmers
Arlan Stangeland has failed to pass any of his bills dealing with the family farm. He voted against a tax break for gasohol. He voted against funding a program to preserve prime famland from urban development. He didn't even try to get a seat on the Ag Committee, and he's refused to join the Rural Caucus.
Gene Wenstrom will work to pass legislation to strengthen the family farm. In the Minnesota legislature he authored the popular bill to keep large corporations out of hog, cattle and dairy operations, and he helped to pass the state's Family Farm Security Act. Last year, he directed a statewide study of farm problems. Wenstrom says, "We need to improve our railroads and highways ... speed the local production of alcohol fuels ... get young people started in farming ... and most importantly, we need a congressman on the Ag Committee."

Gasohol
Arlan Stangeland voted against continuing a four cent a gallon tax break for gasohol. The tax break makes gasohol more competitive at the gas station with other fuels and, according to the transportation secretary, it had little impact on funds for highway construction. Said one congressman about the vote, "Anyone who talks gasohol at home, and votes against this (the tax break) is really doing two different things."
Gene Wenstrom has long supported gasohol, and has proposed repeal of two laws that discourage gasohol production. He presented testimony before Congress this summer in favor of gasohol. He refuted a federal study that said big oil – not farmers – should produce alcohol fuels.

Tax Breaks for Big Oil Companies
Arlan Stangeland voted to weaken the Windfall Profits Tax, saving the oil industry billions of dollars. He's voted time after time for tax breaks for oil, but against tax breaks for gasohol. Consequently, the Atlantic-Richland Oil Company has given Stangeland a 100 percent approval rating for 1977, '78, '79 and '80.
Gene Wenstrom feels oil company profits are too high. Big oil is now spending more money buying up electric, copper and insurance companies than they are looking for new oil. He believes we have to wean ourselves not only from OPEC, but also from the public gouging of big oil.

Support for Senior Citizens
Arlan Stangeland voted against restoring the social security system to solvency. He voted to cut senior citizen programs by $6 billion ... opposed slowing the rise in home heating oil costs ... and voted against placing a lid on hospital costs. According to a respected, national senior citizens group, he voted wrong nine times out of 10.
Gene Wenstrom will always vote to provide adequate funding for social security. Instead of opposing funding for senior citizen programs, he feels tax loopholes for wealthy corporations should be closed.

Better Education
Arlan Stangeland voted against an amendment that would have increased funding for vital education programs. He also voted against a bill to raise the eligibility threshold for student assistance to allow students from middle income families to receive financial aid.
Gene Wenstrom strongly disagrees that education should be cut first when times are hard. Rural schools now receive a disproportionately low amount of federal aid. In Congress, Gene Wenstrom will work to give rural schools their fair share.

Support for Small Business
Arlan Stangeland supports a business depreciation bill that would give the largest one per cent of all U.S. companies 75 per cent of the benefits. He voted against funding for the Small Business Committee in Congress. And he voted against drought relief for farmers and small businessmen.
Gene Wenstrom believes over-regulation, inflation and out-dated tax policies all constitute sources of harassment for small business. He's offered a plan for an immediate 25 percent cut in paperwork ... a fairer tax structure ... allowing small businesses to depreciate plant and office equipment at a faster rate ... and exempting the first $500,000 from estate taxes. He realizes that what's good for big business, often hurts the small. His ideas help main street businesses ... tourism and small industries.

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My wife had a mastectomy a few months ago. The operation went well and the doctor says she's fine now, but lately her arm has been swollen. Can this be a sign that the cancer has come back? Is there anything she can do to decrease the swelling?

G.R.

Dear G.R.:

About half of the women who have a mastectomy for breast cancer experience some swelling, called lymphedema, of the arm after surgery. During a mastectomy, the breast, the nearby lymph nodes, and sometimes the underlying muscle and other adjacent tissue is removed.

The extent of the surgery depends upon the location of the tumor and whether or not it has spread. When the lymph nodes are removed some of the lymph passageways that normally drain fluid from the arm are blocked.

If too many of these lymph channels are affected, fluid may collect in the arm causing swelling. In some cases this condition is temporary and gradually improves during the first months after surgery, while in other cases swelling can become a chronic problem. In either instance, lymphedema is usually not an indication that the cancer has recurred.

Exercise is important after a mastectomy in order for the arm muscles to retain their range of motion and flexibility. Sometimes, however, excessive use of the arm too soon after surgery can cause or aggravate lymphedema. It is usually not a good idea to exercise the affected arm for more than 30 minutes at a time. Heat may also cause more swelling. It is important to avoid puncture wounds, cuts, and scratches in the arm because any resulting infections will further inflame the lymph channels.

Your wife should, of course, discuss this problem with her doctor who can evaluate her and recommend some things she could do to help reduce the swelling. Sometimes elevation, massage, or wrapping in elastic bandages can help. The doctor will be able to determine what is best for your wife.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Is there a relationship between psoriasis and cancer? I have had psoriasis for a year and recently it has started spreading. I'm concerned about cancer.

Walt

Dear Walt:

There is no relationship between psoriasis and cancer. Psoriasis is a fairly common skin disorder. The exact cause of psoriasis is not known at this time, but heredity is a factor in about one-third of patients. Climate, emotional or psychological distress, and previous injuries also may be related to attacks of psoriasis.

Dear Cancer Answers:

A friend of mine has been diagnosed with chronic lymphocytic leukemia. The disease was discovered by accident when she was having some blood tests. After four months she's doing okay, even though her white count is much too high. I don't understand why she isn't being treated for this. I thought cancer was supposed to be curable when found and treated early.

Barb

Dear Barb:

Although many cancers are most successfully managed when they are caught and treated early, the nature of chronic lymphocytic leukemia is a bit different. It affects the blood and cannot be treated surgically. This disease usually occurs in older people and progresses slowly.

When chronic leukemia is accidently discovered and there are no symptoms, as in your friend's case, it may be left untreated. Then the patient is simply examined at regular intervals.

Many of these patients continue to do well for many months or years. People who have chronic lymphcytic leukemia do not require treatment unless or until the disease progresses and they begin to have symptoms. Chemotherapy or radiation therapy may then be used to treat it.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Can animals get cancer too? If so, what kinds do they get? What causes cancer in animals? Can it be treated, or must the animal be "put to sleep?

Brian

Dear Brian:

Yes, animals can develop cancer. The same cancers that occur in people occur in animals, which is why animals are important to research scientists looking for the causes of cancer and more effective ways of treating it.

Some animals seem to have higher incidence rates of certain types of cancer than others. Small rodents, such as mice and rats, seem to be more prone to breast cancer than other animals. Bone cancer occurs most often in large animals. Leukemias and lymphomas, cancers of the blood and lymph systems, are fairly common in cats and cattle. Veterinary scientists have found that boxers seem to develop cancer more frequently than any other breed of dog.

Except for certain specific, virus-related cancers in animals, the causes for these diseases are not clearly understood. Animals share the same environment as people and are exposed to many of the same cancer-causing substances. In several cases the development of tumors in farm animals has alerted scientists to the hazards of agricultural or industrial chemical pollutants.

If detected early, cancer is treatable in animals just as it is in humans. Animal tumors can be treated with surgery, radiation, and chemotherapy in much the same ways as cancer is treated in humans. These types of treatment are expensive, however, and in many cases cost is the determining factor in choosing whether an animal with cancer is treated or "put to sleep."

Dear Cancer Answers:

I'm a public health nurse and would like to provide more information to the public about the detection and treatment of the different forms of cancer. Are there individual pamphlets available about lung, breast, colon cancer, etc.? If so, where can I obtain them?

An R.N.

Dear R.N.:

The National Cancer Institute publishes a series of public information pamphlets on the various kinds of cancer. This series, titled, "What You Need to Know About Cancer," is designed to provide accurate current information about cancer in a concise form that is easy to read and understand.

Each 15-20 page pamphlet covers a specific type of cancer. It explains the disease process, its diagnosis and treatment, and current research investigating its cause and seeking its cure. Suggestions are provided for cancer patients and their families on coping with emotional consequences of the disease, seeking help from rehabilitation and service organizations, and communicating with the doctor.

The series currently includes 25 pamphlets. General information about cancer is provided in the pamphlet titled "What You Need to Know About Cancer." The following specific types of cancer are covered in individual pamphlets: bladder, bone, brain and spinal cord, breast, colon and rectum, dysplasia, very early cancer and invasive cancer of the cervix, esophagus, larynx, adult leukemia, childhood leukemia, lung, Hodgkin's disease, non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, melanoma, mouth, multiple myeloma, ovary, pancreas, prostate, skin, stomach, testis, uterus.

Call or write the Cancer Information Service to order any of the titles in this series. The toll-free telephone number in Minnesota is 1-800-582-5262. In North Dakota and South Dakota the number is 1-800-328-5188. Requests may be mailed to Cancer Information Service, 2750 Park Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55407.

Dear Cancer Answers:

What are the seven warning signals of cancer?

Miss M.W.

Dear Miss M.W.:

The seven warning signals of cancer can be easily remembered by the word CAUTION: each letter stands for one of the possible signals of cancer.

1. Change in bowel or bladder habits;
2. A sore that does not heal normally;
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge;
4. Thickening or lump in the breast or elsewhere;
5. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing;
6. Obvious change in a wart or mole;
7. Nagging cough or hoarseness.

These seven signs, listed by the American Cancer Society, are based on the experiences of many physicians. They do not always mean cancer is present, but they should never be ignored. Remember, the first warning signs of cancer are usually painless.

If you develop any of these symptoms and it lasts for more than two weeks, see your doctor. Should you discover blood in your urine, for example or vaginal bleeding between periods, consult him or her immediately. Your doctor will then determine what diagnostic tests should be done.

Even in the absence of symptoms, it is extremely important to have complete physical examinations at regular intervals. Many times, a doctor can discover cancer in its earliest stages, before any warning signs are apparent. For example, a rectal examination, especially important for men and women over 40, enables the diagnosis of many bowel tumors while they are still curable.

You can purchase travel insurance whenever you take a trip in order to cover dismemberment and medical expenses. Policies also provide for your beneficiaries, should you die during your trip, say CPAs. The cost for such coverage depends upon the size of policy and the length of the trip. For example, a $5,000 policy for a one-week trip can cost $2, while a policy for $50,000 for the same amount of time can cost about $17.

Smoke Detectors -- What You Should Know About Them

An ounce of prevention is worth much more than a pound of cure when it comes to home fires.

Smoke detectors can supply that extra measure of protection, providing you and your family with an early warning of fire that can help save your life.

Government officials, fire and safety experts and insurance companies are nearly unanimous in support of smoke detectors for the home because they have proven to be effective.

But, while many people recognize the need for smoke detectors, they may not know how to select a unit for their home. Here are some tips on the basic types of units, and what to look for when buying one:

There are basically two types of smoke detectors: ionization, which monitor a flow of electrical current to sense smoke particles; and photoelectric, which detect smoke by light reflected by smoke particles.

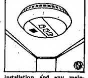
While operating on different principles, both types of detectors are designed to detect the presence of smoke in the surrounding atmosphere. Ionization detectors sense both visible and invisible particles of combustion. Photoelectric detectors sense only visible particles of combustion.

When the level of smoke becomes dangerous, the units will sound an alarm — usually a loud piercing noise that will awaken even heavy sleepers.

Home smoke detectors are available in models which use house current or batteries. Detectors that operate on batteries generally are easier to install, and do not need to be located near an electrical outlet. Battery-operated units also are unaffected by power failures.

Look for Features

Manufacturers of smoke detectors have been updating and improving their units, and many detectors are becoming quite sophisticated. When selecting a unit, compare features, as well as ease of installation and any maintenance that may be required.



Among the newer units now availabe is a "third generation" smoke detector developed by Amway Corporation. Using the ionization principle, the Amway Smoke Detector features a special timing mechanism — called a "Dual Alarm Comparator — that provides protection against both fast and smoldering fires, while minimizing false alarms.

It causes the unit to sound an alarm in case of a real fire, without sounding annoying nuisance alarms caused by smoke resulting from such things as burning bacon or toast.

Pick Proper Location

The location of a smoke detector is crucial. Detectors should be placed as close as possible to bedrooms, and also in the path along which smoke would flow. In single floor homes, this usually is in a hallway off which the bedrooms open. In a house with upstairs bedrooms, the unit should be near the top of the stairs.

A detector should be installed in the center of the ceiling, or it can also be installed on walls between 6 and 12 inches below the ceiling, away from accidental bumps and children's reach.

The unit should never be placed within six inches of where the wall and ceiling meet, since this is a "dead air" space with poor circulation of air and possible smoke. Avoid putting detectors on a ceiling which is significantly warmer or colder than the rest of the room, since a "thermal barrier" can prevent smoke from reaching the unit.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, the smoke detector is "one of the most significant improvements in home fire safety ever to occur." The safety of your family may depend on your smoke detector. Choose and maintain it wisely.

Election Day — A Time For Decision

A Last Word To Voters:

For the past several months I have been actively campaigning for election to the office of State Representative from District 1B.

I have appreciated the many courtesies extended to me, the efforts of so many volunteer workers, and the opportunity to meet, visit and discuss issues with hundreds of voters.

Now it is time for the voters to make their final decision about who they would like to represent them in the legislature.

During my campaign I have stressed my experience in public service and my concern on a number of important issues. Now I need something important from you — your vote Nov. 4.

Following Surgery . . .

Matthew Smith Adjusts To Life With Breathing Help

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

(Following is a follow-up to an incident described in the November 19, 1979 issue of the Times concerning Matthew Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Smith, former Thief River Falls residents, whose life was saved by application of cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) techniques provided by Mrs. Ted (Myrtle) Mills.

According to the previous story, Mills, a registered nurse and past house supervisor at Northwestern hospital prior to moving to Oregon nine years ago, came to the assistance of Matthew and his mother along Highway 32 just south of Thief River Falls. At that time, Mrs. Smith (Marlene) stated that the child had a previous history of breathing difficulty).

Today, nearly a year after the incident, Matthew has had corrective surgery, and with the help of special parents, nurses and teachers, is nearly as healthy as any other child at 15 months.

Matthew's disease, according to his mother who visited Thief River Falls last week with her parents, Walter and Marion Bratland of Strathcona, is a chronic illness called tracheobronchomalacia — a condition in which there is an absence of cartilage rings necessary to keep the windpipe (trachea) open when breathing.

"The only corrective surgery for this type of illness is a tracheotomy," Matthew's mother said. "The surgery involves making a small incision through the skin into the windpipe."

The surgery, performed by Dr. Siegel at the Children's hospital in St. Paul, involved a four-hour procedure, Mrs. Smith said.

This is the first case such as this in Minnesota in the past 10 years, she confirmed.

Matthew experienced similar incidents such as the one last November in Thief River Falls, including one prior to his surgery last December, when he had to be transferred from Wheaton, where the Smith's lived at the time, to Fergus Falls, where he was treated by Dr. Magnusen, a pediatrician, and from there to St. Paul.

For five weeks following Matthew's surgery he remained in intensive care —

MATTHEW SMITH 15-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Smith, formerly of Thief River Falls, is adjusting to a normal life following corrective surgery (tracheotomy) at the St. Paul Children's hospital to replace missing cartilage needed to keep his windpipe open when breathing.

Arctic Reports Quarter Results

Arctic Enterprises, Inc., in reporting operating results for the second quarter of fiscal 1981, noted net income for the three months ended September 30 was $213,000 or seven cents per common share. These results compare with net income of $1,587,000 or 51 cents per share for the same period a year ago. Net sales for the quarter were $39,987,000, down from $68,642,000 for the second quarter last year.

These results reduce the year-to-date loss to $7,237,000 or $2.29 per share, compared with net income of $1,122,000 or 36 cents per share for the first half of fiscal 1980. Year-to-date sales are $52,402,000 compared with $105,479,000 for the same period a year ago.

Commenting on the quarter, president and chief executive officer Ken Severinson, said, "Improved second quarter results reflect the effects of consolidation and cost reduction programs together with the July start-up of snowmobile production and acceptance of early season deliveries by our snowmobile dealers. Although deliveries in September did not fully meet our expectations, we are confident that with early snow our snowmobile group will show continued strong operating improvement during the third quarter."

Sales of marine products, particularly fiberglass boats, which are reportedly soft during the months of July and August, now are showing signs of recovery. Marine product sales were $6,844,000 for the quarter, up slightly from the same period last year principally due to the acquisition of Larson Industries in December of 1979.

"Our surveys indicate continuing improvements in consumer buying attitudes. More importantly, the farm

Dr. Milton Hoff, Franklin Middle school principal, announced that parent conferences will be conducted at Franklin Middle School November 6 and 7 from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Parents who are unable to attend during the scheduled Thursday and Friday conferences are invited to contact the Franklin guidance office in order to establish individual conference times.

"It should be pointed out that we do not schedule individual times during the actual conference days," Hoff stated, "so parents may feel free to come at any time and be reasonably certain that they will not have too much delay in seeing their child's teacher."

Voters Await Election Tues.

Only one county commissioner race is on the ballot, that in the third district between incumbent Albert Koop and Lyle Jennings Sr. Roger Hoffman in the first district and Glenn Tasa in the fifth district are unopposed.

State Vocational Officials Visit

Dr. Mary T. Phillips
Assistant Commissioner
Vocational Education

Dr. Mary Phillips, assistant commissioner of vocational education, led a visiting group to the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute for a whirlwind session Wednesday afternoon, during which she heard from local AVTI personnel, made a few comments on her own, and took part in a press conference along with Bob Madson, manager of post-secondary vocational education.

Dr. Phillips, who has been in the assistant commissioner post for only the past four months, emphasized her preferences for a combination of local and state control in vocational education. The Minnesota Higher Education Coordinating board (MHECB) has been studying consolidation of vocational-technical institutes with the state's community college system.

"I believe that the best system we can have is what we have now because we have been so successful with it," Dr. Phillips said in the press conference following the meeting. "I see increased cooperation on the state and local levels between the community colleges and vocational system, and there are instances where cooperative ventures are being studied or underway."

She mentioned student housing as one area where cooperative effort can be successful. Nursing programs were also mentioned, as was an air traffic controller program at Anoka, as situations where college and AVTI programs were integrated. But she told the meeting that she didn't believe consolidation would be too helpful to AVTI goals and mission.

Dr. Phillips said that the vocational education division of the state department of education is very concerned about adult programs and is looking at ways of being more responsive in that area. Terry Lerner, adult vocational director at the Thief River Falls AVTI, had stressed that area of education during the prepared local presentations.

The assistant commissioner also noted the funding cutback and said that everyone "has made an effort that programs in operation have not lost the quality that they are known for in Minnesota".

She mentioned that comprehensive workshops are being arranged in the state to permit many areas to be covered at one time, thereby reducing travel and related time loss and expense.

Both Dr. Phillips and Madson agreed that the tuition charge applied to vocational-technical education a couple of years ago has not been a deterrent to students. "We don't feel that it has curtailed our AVTI enrollment," Madson noted, "and student aids are available in the vocational program in the same manner they are available in other post-high school programs."

Role of the Minnesota Higher Education Coordinating board is to review,

"Good Doctor" Opens NCC Drama Season

Northland theatre will open its drama season with "The Good Doctor," a show representing a delightful composite of the contemporary writer of popular comedy, Neil Simon and the Russian playwright Anton Chekhov, from whose short stories Neil Simon adapted the charming vignettes in this collection of 12 short playlets.

Production will be presented November 13, 14, 15 and 18 with curtain time at 8 p.m. each evening. Admission charge is $2 for adults and $1 for students. Northland students and faculty are admitted free of charge with activity tickets.

The production, under the direction of Northland theatre director Roger Vaughan, includes the following cast members: Alan Johnson, McIntosh; Robert Netterlund, Karlstad; Daniel Levenhagen, Lake Bronson; Ruth Hasnedl, St. Hilaire; Lynette Waswick, Viking; Ellen Larson, Newfolden; and Jim White, David Swanson, Leslie Williamson, Diane Lusignan, Terry Beich, Sue Rosetta and Robert Kinsman, all from Thief River Falls.

Various scenes provide more than an evening's-worth of entertainment with the humorous and affectionate portraits of life in Russia including "The Seduction", in which a crafty seducer goes to work on a wedded woman, through her own husband, never realizing that the woman is well in command of the situation.

There are also the classic tales, "The Drowned Man," in which a man offers to drown himself for three rubles, and "A Defenseless Creature" in which a harridan storms a bank demanding funds for the welfare of her ailing husband, upbraiding the manager for his gout and lack of available funds. She's totaly illogical, but very entertaining.

The scenes, ranging from subtle humor to slapstick and vaudevillian in nature, provide a varied evening of comic styles combining the techniques of Simon and Chekhov for infectious humor.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad motored to Minot, N.D. to attend the Hostefest festival last week. They were guests of Mayor Chester Reiten along with Helen's cousin Eilvind and Borgny Strondi, curator of the museum at Morgedal, Norway. Eilvind and and Borgny were honorable guests of the Hostefest. Approximately 10,000 people attended this special Norsk festival. Byron Dirks Are Feted On 25th Anniversary

Open house honoring Mr. and Mrs. Byron Dirks on their 25th wedding anniversary was held recently at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

The event began with a program with their granddaughters in charge. Mrs. Bill (JoAnn) Evenson served as program chairman. She also participated in the program, by singing two solos and reading the newspaper account when Viola and Byron Dirks were married in this city on Sept. 11, 1955 with Rev. Mead officiating. Other musical selections were two violin solos by Mrs. Paul (Dianne) Loe with Julie Johnson as pianist.

Special guests were Mrs. Jennie Shroeder and her son, Robert of Mekinock, N.D. Mrs. Shroeder and her husband, the late Harold Shroeder, were attendants when the Dirks were married.

For the reception that followed the program, the tables were graced with silk roses in ceramic vases made by Mrs. Dirks. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered anniversary cake, a gift from the Kenneth Manning family, Jennie Janisch and family, and David Strong. Topping the cake, decorated with blue roses and silver 25th anniversary emblems, was a silver Christogram, a gift from their son, Marland, his wife, Sharon, and family.

Seated at the head table with Mr. and Mrs. Dirks were Jennie Schroeder and Robert; Rev. and Mrs. Berton Hushagen, Rev. and Mrs. J.M. Hovland, Mr. and Mrs. Marland Johnson, Julie and Kevin, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Johnson and Kathi, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson and Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Evenson and Enock and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Loe.

Serving the head table were Mrs. Kathy Chalmers and Susie Manning. Sharon Johnson and Jeanne Janisch cut and served the anniversary cake, Myrtle Woods of Oklee and Sharon Carlson of Trail poured the coffee, and Joyce and Kathi Johnson ladled the punch as Lillie Johnson presided at the guest book. At the gift table were Dianne Loe, JoAnne Evenson and Julie Johnson.

Approximately 90 relatives and friends attended the open house. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Carlson, Kay, Shawn, Marcia and Jackie of Trail; Eleanor Ernstad, Glyndon; Gladys Christiansen, Ada; Nellie Peterson, Morris; Marie Fjeld, McIntosh; Kenneth Manning and Tommy, Erskine; Susie Manning, Borup; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hagen, Lorie and Kert, and Lance England of Gatzke and Mr. and Mrs. Basil Stavness, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Howland and Ida Mae and Leland Korstad of Grygla.

For the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Dirks wore the same attire as they wore on their wedding day. Their corsages, of lasting flowers, were of roses, accented with silver ribbons and leaves. All the corsages and boutonnieres worn at the event were made by Mrs. Dirks.

Of special interest at the open house was the silver butter dish used as the mint candy container. Engraved with the date 1878, the dish had been given to Mrs. Dirks grandparents at their wedding 102 years ago.

Yards, gardens and woods are full of pretty plants that attract children, but some plants can be harmful. Among the common but toxic plants are rhubarb leaves, Lily of the Valley and May apples. If your child eats a plant, call the Hennepin poison center, 612-347-3141, with a description of what's been eaten. Make sure your children know that plants are for looking at, not for eating.

Matthew Smith Adjusts To Breathing Help

on heart and respiratory monitors. But problems did not end there, Mrs. Smith recalled. Matthew experienced respiratory problems following the surgery — once the family was back in Wheaton, and he was transferred immediately to St. Paul where he remained in the Children's hospital for three months.

Children with a problem such as this are more susceptible to disease, and Matthew had developed pneumonia following the surgery, and had trouble gaining weight, Mrs. Smith said. While he was in the hospital for the second time he contracted a second case of pneumonia.

Matthew's mother, who now lives with her son in St. Paul, spent nearly five weeks in intensive training while her child was a patient at the Children's hospital, she said. As a result of that, she has learned to use two special machines — a suction machine and a mist machine — necessities to help Matthew breathe properly and to prevent further breathing problems from occurring.

The suction machine, which has become "an everyday task which doesn't bother Matthew" is performed regularly to clear the trachea. And, each night as Matthew lies in bed, a mist machine, similar to an oxygen mask, which fits over the trachea instead of the face, helps him to breath. When Matthew first came home from the hospital after his surgery, he and the mist machine stayed together 24 hours a day, his mother said.

Mrs. Smith has also learned to treat her son if he should contract pneumonia again, she said. With cupped hands, she gently taps Matthew's chest, sides and back for 15 minutes to drain his lungs.

Does he mind? "No," he mother assuredly confirmed. "He usually goes to sleep."

Matthew's "custom-made" trachea must be changed every other day, his mother explained. It had to be ordered special from California and took four weeks to make. Meanwhile, Matthew waited patiently in St. Paul, living on a normal trachea and oxygen.

In St. Paul, a nurse visits Matthew twice a day for three hours at a time to give Mrs. Smith the opportunity to perform duties she is unable to do while caring for her son. Another registered nurse who takes care of children with problems also visits the Smith home.

"I can only leave him with someone that is trained to care for him or with a registered nurse," Mrs. Smith said.

A speech pathologist and physical therapist work with Matthew once a week. And, it was Matthew's own determination that taught him to speak and make sounds, his mother said. Most people with tracheas learn to speak by placing their fingers over the opening in their throat — or the trachea has an extra valve on it. But Matthew learned on his own that by putting his chin down over the opening, he could produce sounds. So far, he has learned "mamma" and "daddy" — two words describing two very important people in his life.

"Matthew is just like a normal baby now," his mother exclaimed. He crawls, is learning to walk, and has no problem eating any type of food.

"French fries are his favorites," she smiled.

He is also advanced in hearing as compared to others his age, she said, because he has learned to hear above the sounds made by the trachea.

The Children's hospital in St. Paul is presently doing video tapes of Matthew to be used in educating others in the medical field of the child's problem and how it can be treated.

The trip Matthew and his mother made from St. Paul to Fosston last week to attend a birthday party for Mrs. Smith's grandmother, Gina Larson, 78, was Matthew's first long trip made in a vehicle other than an ambulance since his surgery, she explained. The trip took nearly three days.

Frequent stops had to be made at gas stations to use facilities for the suction machine, his mother said. All but one station along the way made those services available to the travelers.

"Everywhere Matthew goes, the machines go," she stated.

Mrs. Smith highly recommends the Children's hospital in St. Paul, she said, and especially remembers Dr. Gehrz, head of pediatrics at the intensive care unit there, and Dr. Wiegel who performed Matthew's surgery last December. Matthew's present doctor in St. Paul, Dr. Paul Cubic, and Dr. Duane Davidson of Thief River Falls, who attended Matthew upon his arrival at the emergency unit of the hospital last November, are also special, she said. Davidson was available to aid Matthew and his mother if they needed it during their stay in Thief River Falls last week. At the time of the interview, no complications had occurred, and Matthew was doing fine.

A lot of the worry Mrs. Smith sustained has dissolved, she admitted, adding that their visit to Thief River Falls last November was one of the worst times she has experienced.

"The hardest thing to get used to after the surgery was not being able to hear him cry," she said, "and he had to learn to drink from a bottle again."

Doctors have said that by the age of three, Matthew should have grown out of the problem he has. If he hasn't, he will have to live with it for the rest of his life, his mother said.

"The doctors are very optimistic," she added. "So far, he's doing better than expected."

Agri-Energy Receives Loan For Distillery

Loan agreements for the financing of a $9.8 million fuel alcohol distillery were signed Friday between the Farmers Home administration and Agri Energy, Inc. in a formal ceremony at Crookston. The facility is among 15 projects around the U.S. recently announced by U.S. agriculture secretary Bob Bergland that will receive federal loan guarantees through the FmHA.

Fuel alcohol distillery, to be owned and operated by Agri Energy, Inc., will produce four million gallons of 200 proof alcohol from barley, wheat and corn grown in the area. The alcohol will be mixed with gasoline to produce gasohol that will be sold statewide through cooperative outlets. Construction of the plant will begin shortly with completion set for the fall of 1981.

Farmers Home administration will provide a $6.3 million loan guarantee to the Northwestern bank of Minneapolis which will finance construction of the project. Operating credit will be provided through the Red Lake county state bank of Red Lake Falls.

As part of a national effort to develop greater U.S. energy independence by reducing the demand for foreign oil, the new alcohol distillery will also provide between 25 and 35 jobs in an economically distressed area of Minnesota.

At a press conference following the loan signing ceremonies, John Apitz, FmHA state director, noted that the Agri Energy project was one of several which the agency was hopeful of assisting in the coming year.

"With the passage and implementation of the new Syn Fuels act, FmHA will have another tool to help stimulate the construction of fuel alcohol plants in rural areas and create added jobs," Apitz said. "This is essential to the nation's future economic stability."

Farmers Home administration, a rural development agency of the U.S. department of agriculture, provides direct loans for farmers, rural homeowners and small towns and loan guarantees to rural businesses for creating jobs. Requests for over $30 million in fuel alcohol loan guarantees have already been received by Farmers Home administration in Minnesota. Over $1 billion in loan guarantee applications for alhohol distilleries have been received to date nationwide.

Answers To Questions On Election Are Summarized

Secretary of state Joan Growe has compiled answers to some of the questions that are commonly asked on election day. These are general answers and the county attorney may be consulted for answers in specific circumstances, Growe said.

What type of campaigning is prohibited on election day? Radio, TV and newspaper advertising is prohibited as is the distribution of campaign brochures through the mails or in person. Campaign buttons cannot be worn at or near the polling place and campaign signs cannot be put up. Candidates cannot transport voters to the polls.

What type of campaigning is allowed on election day? Candidates can personally solicit votes and campaign committees can call voters, to solicit their vote, and remind them to go the polls. Campaign committees can transport voters to the polls as long as they do not solicit the voter to vote for any candidate nor have any campaign material in or on the vehicle. Campaign signs can be within 100 feet of the polling place as long as they are not put up on election day.

Who is eligible to vote? Any citizen of the U.S. who is 18 years of age, has been a resident of the state for 20 days prior to the November 4 election and has not been placed under guardianship over his person, adjudged insane, or convicted of treason or felony without having his civil rights restored.

Do I have to register? Yes, registration is required in all 87 of Minnesota's counties.

If I'm registered, do I have to re-register? Not unless you have changed your name or address, or failed to vote in the past four years.

What if I'm not properly registered? You may register on election day by providing one of the following proofs of residence with your current address: Minnesota driver's licence or permit; Minnesota ID card; Student fee statement, ID card or registration card; or by having a person who is registered in the precinct sign an oath stating that she or he knows that the applicant is also a resident of the precinct.

Can I use my utility bill or deed to register on election day? No; only forms of identification that have been specifically authorized may be used. People could have a utility bill (or deed) for a place other then their residence. Likewise, credit cards, welfare cards, social security cards, birth certificates and marriage licenses are not acceptable forms of identification.

Are election day resistrants checked after the election? There are a number of "safeguards" to the system beyond the actual proof of residence on election day. The primary method of determining fraud is the nonforwardable postcard that is sent to each person who registers on election day. If the post office cannot deliver the postcard, it is returned to the auditor who investigates the nondelivery and reports any possible fraud to the county attorney who, in turn, is required by law to determine if fraud has been committed.

What is the penalty for falsely registering? Anyone convicted of voter fraud is guilty of a felony and subject to up to five years in prison and-or a $5,000 fine.

Can I get time off from work to vote? Minnesota law allows voters time off to vote in the forenoon on election day without penalty or deduction from their wages.

How do I find out where to vote? Contact your city clerk or county auditor.

What time do the polls open and close? The time for opening the polls varies in different areas, but it is generally 7 a.m. All polls close at a uniform time of 8 p.m.; anyone in line at 8 p.m. will be allowed to vote.

How many presidential electors does Minnesota have? Minnesota has 10 electoral votes.

How many votes does it take to pass a constitutional amendment? A majority of those voting at the election.

Can I stay in the polling place and see what is going on? Only after the polls close. Prior to that time only election judges, challengers, vouchers and persons authorized by the county auditor or secretary of state may remain.

Can I write in a candidate's name if it doesn't appear on the ballot? Yes; however, the procedure varies from place to place depending upon the type of voting system used. Voters should ask the election judge for directions if they want to do this. In the case of a presidential candidate, they must also write in the names of the 10 electors as well as the candidates' names.

Who determines the order of the candidates' names on the ballot? For partisan candidates, the order is fixed by law with the candidates of the party receiving the least number of votes at the last election going first in every case. Non-partisan candidate's names are rotated on each ballot so each candidate's name appears an equal number of times in each position.

What candidates and issues will be on the ballot? President, U.S. congress, state senate and house, supreme court justices, five constitutional amendments and various county and local candidates and questions.

If I feel that the election laws have been violated, what should I do? The county attorney is charged with prosecution of election-related offenses. If you bring something to his attention, he must investigate it and bring the facts, if warranted, before the grand jury.

Isn't it true that no one is ever prosecuted for election violations? Wrong; in 1979, three persons were accused of voter fraud and all three received very severe sentences.

Studies Show 1 In 23 Persons Has Diabetes

In a country of over 230,000,000 Americans there are over 10 million who are prime candidates for heart attacks, blindness, heart damage and other very serious medical problems. Studies indicate that one out of every 23 persons is likely to have diabetes, the nation's third largest killer disease, after cancer and heart disease.

Diabetes mellitus is a disease in which the body does not make proper use of sugars. It has become the second leading cause of blindness in the United States and the leading cause of new cases of blindness.

Without treatment, diabetes may cause irreparable damage to the heart and circulatory system, such as hardening of the arteries, which occurs more frequently and at an earlier age in diabetics. Heart attacks occur two-and-a-half times more frequently in diabetics than in non-diabetics of the same age. Blood vessel changes may affect the central nervous system, the kidneys and circulation of the legs and feet. Similar changes may occur in the small blood vessels of the eye.

Early detection, early medical treatment and education are possibly the best weapons with which to fight diabetes. Mount Sinai Hospital, 2215 Park Avenue, Minneapolis, maintains a complete Diabetes-Metabolic Care Center, which is designed to help people with diabetes learn how to successfully manage their illness. Classroom learning is followed by opportunities to gain practical experience through a "learning by doing" method. All participants are involved in planning their own programs. Daytime classes are offered to both hospitalized and non-hospitalized patients and family members.

Mount Sinai offers free diabetes testing to anyone in the hospital lab, every Thursday from 9 a.m. until noon. No appointment is necessary. For more information, call (612) 871-3700, extension 1758 or 1872.

Area Economy Strengthens, Report Says

According to the minnesota department of economic security's regional labor market information center in Moorhead, overall employment conditions in August, 1980 can be described as somewhat improved from the previous month.

Throughout the nation, the number of persons estimated to be unemployed declined by almost 400,000, and the unadjusted rate of unemployment dropped to 7.5 per cent. Employment in manufacturing was up by about 90,000 in August, which was a contrast to the steady declines which had been occurring in the month of July of 1980.

In the months of July and August, the number of persons who were unemployed due to a layoff dropped by 425,000, with the majority of this decrease occurring in August of 1980. The number of persons in a layoff status represented about one-fifth of the number estimated to be unemployed in August. While these conditions looked favorable, in comparison to the earlier months of the summer of 1980, the overall employment situation was still not as good as it was during the summer of 1979. There may be some indications, though, that the economic downturn of this year has bottomed out, if current trends continue into the fall.

In Minnesota, a contraction in the labor force which was greater than the decrease in estimated employment caused both the number of unemployed and the unemployment rate to go down between July and August, 1980. However, employment in certain industrial sectors showed some improvement between these two particular months. The manufacturing sector recorded an increase of about 8,000 jobs during this time, with gains occurring primarily in fabricated metals, transportation equipment, and food processing firms during August. The retail trade sector also experienced some favorable employment developments in this particular month. Employment in most other industrial sectors tended to remain fairly stable.

The northwestern region of the state (now defined as the 26 counties contained in economic development regions 1, 2, 4 and 5) fared reasonably well in terms of labor market conditions during August of 1980. Unemployment rates declined in all counties between July and August, which can be interpreted as a typical seasonal development. Construction and other outdoor work was in full swing by August, as was the region's tourist industry. Some recalls by manufacturing firms in the region also helped the overall employment picture. Prospects for the next few months look favorable as employment activities related to the fall harvest season begin.

Unemployment benefit claimant levels in northwestern Minnesota have increased sharply over last year's figures. In August of 1980 there were 2,443 or 94 per cent more claimants than there were in August of 1979. All industrial categories experienced some increase, with durable manufacturing and construction leading the way, experiencing increases of 998 and 488 respectively. The higher claimant levels were in response to the general economic downturn that has been occurring in the region, state and nation as a whole.

The over-the-month changes in the numbers of persons collecting unemployment benefits followed historical patterns from July to August, 1980. Almost all industrial categories registered some decline in claimant levels. Due to program delays, complete information on persons receiving extended benefits was not available for August, and, therefore, not included in this article.

The most frequently listed openings in Northwestern Minnesota at this time were concentrated in the clerical, sales and services categories during this particular month, while skilled trades openings were in relatively short supply. However, between July and August of 1980, the number of construction-related job openings increased, which was a reflection of increased construction activity during this time.

LON'S RESTAURANT in Thief River Falls will have expanded management, according to an announcement made last week by owner Lon Gobell (left). Dave Carlson, employee at the restaurant for nearly two years and bar manager for the past year, has been named restaurant manager. Carlson is a 1975 graduate of Lincoln high school and attended Moorhead state university for two and one-half years. Lon and Joyce Gobell purchased the Dine-A-Mite drive-in 10 years ago, remodeled and expanded it five years ago and recently completed remodeling of the basement. The restaurant has seating for about 400 people. "Joyce and I felt we needed help in managing the business to provide better customer service and convenience," Gobell said. "We feel Dave is very qualified and we are glad to have him with us."

Middle-Aged Face "Midlife Transition"

"Burned out" as an insurance agent at age 43, Paul Gauguin quit his job, left wife and children, and sailed off to Tahiti for a second career as an artist.

Such drastic "Midlife transition" was unusual a century ago. Today it is more commonplace. A recent survey, for example, claims that nearly half of those over 35 change careers. Many more in their middle years are taking a second look at their work, marriages and goals and wondering which way to go, according to Clifton Fichtner, director of Action for Independent Maturity (AIM); the national leader in pre-retirement planning programs. AIM is a non-profit division of the 12-million member American Association of retired persons.

"The 'Pepsi generation' is becoming middle aged," said Fichtner, and cited current U.S. Census Bureau estimates of 55.6 million Americans in the 40 to 65 age group which includes the vanguard of the post-war baby boom.

This largest midlife group in history is recording some other impressive "firsts." Compared to preceding generations they will, on average:

+ Live longer. Experts predict many will see their 80 birthday — and still blow out all the candles;

+ Be healthier, more alive;

+ Be wealthier. There was no social security, few pensions in 1930;

+ Have more choices in lifestyle. To retire or keep working. To move or stay put;

+ Have more "clout" in national affairs. More midlifers register and vote than any other age group;

+ Continue to grow intellectually. In regard to the mind, experts advise, use it or lose it.

In short, today's midlife men and women have a lot going for them. But not all is bliss in this middle age heaven. In addition, government statistics indicate that, contrasted with its ancestors, this age group today has:

+ More divorces among those married 20 years;

+ More single heads of households; more widows;

+ More suicides;

+ More alcoholism.

With all these potentials for both a positive and negative future, it is not surprising that men and women in midlife are going through some kind of transition, a shifting of gears and reappraisal.

"If you are in your prime middle years," says Fichtner, "the decision you make now could determine the course of the second half of your life — for better or worse."

Based on experience gained in helping thousands of midlife workers through AIM programs, Fichtner emphasized that the common fears about growing older can be transformed into anticipation of an enjoyable and rewarding future if practical action is taken well ahead of time. "And that takes commitment," he said.

To assist people in self-evaluation and planning for their later years, AIM has published a series of guides. One of these, AIM's "Guide to Midlife Roles and Goals," may be obtained by sending your name and address with 50 cents handling charge to AIM, Dept RG, P.O. Box 19269-Sta A, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Roseau Seeks New Manager For Airport

Roseau is seeking a new municipal airport manager after Greg Schultz, the manager for the past two years, refused to renew the contract for one year with a 20 per cent pay cut.

The city's subsidy of $800 per month for the winter months and $500 per month for the other months was being cut, according to Mayor Milt Arneson, because Schultz has been given two years to build the business.

Schultz said he would have accepted the cut if the contract offer had been for more than one year, but that the area has few planes and poor crops cut down potential business.

TGE Virus Is Hazard For Hog Operations

Transmissible gastroenteritis (TGE) is an ever-present menace to swine herds. TGE is noted as a killer of baby pigs and crippler of profits. With cold weather, the problem becomes worse.

"The TGE virus is around major swine areas all the time," says Dr. Hal Sinclair, manager of technical services at a Des Moines, Iowa, laboratory. "Usually, however, it is at its worst during freezing winter weather.

"Not only is cold weather a good time for the spread of the virus, but when accompanied by a significant amount of snow on the ground, the problem is even worse," Dr. Sinclair said.

TGE is an extremely contagious virus and spreads at any time. For several reasons; however, it is more prevalent in winter.

"The virus does not survive outside of living cells," points out Sinclair, "except under one condition — when it is frozen." When frozen the virus can remain viable for a considerable length of time. In its frozen state it is much more prone to being transported from place to place."

Movement of the TGE virus occurs in virtually every manner imaginable. Birds, starlings in particular, are a major TGE carrier.

"The amount of avian transport of the virus is directly related to the amount of snow on the ground," says Sinclair. "When snowfall is heavy, birds are forced to feed more extensively from feed troughs, thus picking up and spreading the virus more often. When there is less snow the birds feed in more diverse areas and do not frequent hog feeding equipment as often."

Dr. Sinclair hastens to point out however, that birds are not the only form of animal transport for the virus. "Farm animals, such as dogs, and non-farm animals spread the disease as well. As they travel through pork production areas these animals pick up the virus in one manner or another and move it to other buildings, farms and states."

In a highly mobile society such as ours, humans are an easy source of transportation for the TGE virus. "Anyone entering a hog operation is a potential bearer of the disease," warns Sinclair. "The virus may be introduced on the hands, feet, clothing or even by the cough of an individual.

"Severely restrict the access to pork production facilities," cautions Sinclair. "Allow access by only those persons who are absolutely essential to the operation; and insist on compliance with rigid sanitation procedures."

Bringing under control the $4 to $5 million per year loss due to TGE-induced baby pig deaths requires a multi-faceted program, suggests Dr. Sinclair.

"If we can cut down on the transportation of the virus, we stand a better chance of controlling the disease in the long run," says Sinclair. "But we need to couple that type of control with a sound, pre-farrowing, sow vaccination program."

Providing baby pigs with passive immunity is vital to cutting losses. "A sow vaccination program can provide this passive immunity.

"Administering two vaccine injections to the sow at 30-day intervals, with the last injection seven to 30 days before farrowing, will insure that each sow is receiving the proper dosage," says Sinclair. "Protective antibodies are then transferred through the sow's milk to the suckling pigs.

"There are literally thousands of portals through which the TGE virus can enter a swine herd," concludes Dr. Sinclair. "A multi-faceted approach of shutting off many of these portals, which are particularly prevalent during cold weather, and vaccinating sows prior to farrowing, offers pork producers a chance to even the odds between themselves and the profit-ribbing TGE virus."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I am an English teacher of the high school in Seoul, Korea. As an English teacher I take this pleasure of writing to you in behalf of my students, because so many students here eagerly want to exchange letters with people in your country.

By exchanging letters, they will surely increase the knowledge about other countries and will enjoy exchanging information about students' life, customs and other various topics between countries. And I also think they might have fun in swapping items of their hobby collections.

In this repsect, I wish you would put this ardent wish of Korean young students in your esteemed paper, even so shortly only if your space may permit. But your more consideration will mean so much to the young hearts.

I am sure the boys and girls here will share warm fellowship for long. And I hope the people who wish to write to them will kindly write their names, ages, addresses and other information in their first letters, then I will pass along the letters to my compatible students, who are mainly 12 to 20.

In sincerely hope this could be something fruitful in future and the young boys and girls have their cherished dreams come true by your help. May you have a good prosperity in the worthy business.

SDA life style is commended

Widespread publicity throughout the media in Australia has urged people to follow the Seventh-day Adventist life style.

In September, press and radio reported the findings of a survey on the health status of Seventh-day Adventists conducted by two researchers at the University of New South Wales and published in the Medical Journal of Australia.

The Australian Broadcasting Commission featured the benefits of the Adventist life style on its midday news bulletins, and the story was picked up the next day in the leading Australian morning paper, the Sydney Morning Herald. Under the title "How to Live Longer and Be More Healthy," Science Reporter Richard Eckersley said, "Many Australians would do well to take a leaf out of the book of Seventh-day Adventists."

Ian Webster, head of the university's School of Community Medicine, and Graeme Rawson, a lecturer in its School of Health Administration, compared the health of 779 Seventh-day Adventists with that of two other groups of people—8,363 people referred by doctors and representing above-average incomes and 9,825 volunteers from a lower economic group.

The survey showed that of 98 factors relating to health, the Adventists rated superior in all but three—previous hay fever, back pain, and family history of asthma or hay fever.

Among general conclusions reached by the researchers are the following:

"The Adventist life style is conducive to less sickness, longer life, and less call on medical services than that of the rest of the community. Adventists have fewer problems with blood pressure, high cholesterol, and obesity.

"They sleep better, have fewer suicidal thoughts and less mental illness, anxiety, tension, and difficulty with personal relationships."

What are the reasons for Adventist superior health?

Any explanation made on the basis of genetic selection is rejected. The fact that Seventh-day Adventists do not normally eat meat, do not drink alcohol, tea, and coffee, and do not smoke is important. Generally Adventists are more health-conscious, exercise more, and avoid self-damaging behavior.

But their physical health is not gained at the cost of an increase of psychological symptoms. In the final analysis what counts most appears to be the Adventist world view.

"Adventists have a sense of personal worth reinforced by belonging to an accepting and caring community."

"Adventists have a sense of purpose." Their beliefs provide them with spiritual security at present and lasting happiness in the future.

Adventists are likely to have an abundance of coping resources. Their system of values and their emphasis on stable marriage and family relationships make for a better health status and "ameliorate the perception and effect of stress." In contrast, other alienated groups "reveal a high rate of health impairment."

The Sydney survey pointed out that "as the Australian Government turns its attention to cost-containment policies in health care, the cost advantages of the Adventist life style are worthy of examination. Emulation, if not replication, of the Adventist life style may result in significant personal and community health benefits."

FACTUAL NEWS REPORTING EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

The Shooting

One of our readers recently brought to our office an eidtorial clipped from the Freeport (Illinois) Journal-Standard. The editorial discussed an incident in which a man was shot and killed by a police officer, and concluded with a question about firearm ownership.

The reader is familiar with our general position on gun control and the clipping was presented to provide another viewpoint on the question. What the Journal-Standard editor perceives to be a flaw in the law, however, we believe to be misunderstood and misinterpreted. And we also believe it points out the problem with sweeping federal legislation in relation to regulation better suiting local or area circumstances.

Let us quote the pertinent parts of the editorial first and later respond to them:

"The facts are that an individual was not allowed to cash a check at a local bank because he needed a specified co-signer. He vowed to return to the bank with a gun. He went home and got a shotgun. He was enroute back to the bank along a busy Freeport street with the shotgun in his possession. He was confronted by an officer, who told him to put the gun down. The officer was threatened that he would be shot, if he did not shoot the assailant first. The assailant was then shot," the editorial states.

"In our estimation the officer was correct in confronting the individual. It must be assumed that a man carrying a shotgun along a busy street represents a danger to the community.

"After the warning was rebuked, the officer had every reason to believe his personal safety was endangered. In a legal sense, the threat constituted intent and the shotgun gave the individual the apparent means to carry out that threat. Self-defense in such a situation is justifiable.

"The individual had given some indication that he was capable of making good on a threat. After all, he was enroute to fulfilling a threat made at the bank."

"The problem that arises is that policemen must answer to a higher standard than the population in general. They are expected to toe a fine line between self-defense and self-sacrifice. The presumption is that an appropriately placed shot would have disarmed the assailant, now allowing a return volley. Maybe there is some thought that a shot fired in the air was the appropriate action to take against a cocked shotgun and a threat against one's life.

"On the other hand," the editorial continues, "we are surprised that not one word of outrage has been heard that a person with emotional problems was in possession of a shotgun. Certainly society must take some precuations against such occurrences.

"This is the second time in two years in this community that a fatal shooting has occurred when a person with apparent emotional problems was in possession of a shotgun.

"We think critics of the shooting last week are better advised to express their concern about a society which sets few standards on the ability to obtain a firearm.

"We do not argue with the right of Americans to obtain a firearm. We believe it is incongruous that government will mandate something as innocuous as a fishing license, but can be so lax regarding ownership of a firearm."

So says the Journal-Standard, and we can appreciate the writer's concern and perhaps frustration. But there are some assumptions made and some gaps in the reasoning used that we would like to consider.

We don't know several things... if the shotgun was the man's own gun, if he purchased it through commercial means, if he had a previous history of emotional problems, if he did intend to fire it in the bank or at the officer, or if the officer was aware of the man's destination and stated purpose when he confronted the man on the street. All could have a bearing on the circumstances and the conclusions drawn by the editorial writer.

The writer is apparently unaware, or chooses to ignore, that it is against federal law for people with a history of mental illness — as well as felons and drug addicts — to purchase a firearm. A purchaser must sign a statement that he is not any of those when he purchases a firearm. It is impossible, under any law, for a firearms dealer to assess whether a customer is emotionally stable. To expect such a judgment to be made if totally unreasonable.

Perhaps the man shot by the officer in the Freeport incident had owned the gun for some time, perhaps even inherited it. The editorial indicates that he went home to get it, not out to a store to buy it. What type of law or ordinance or regulation could keep a firearm out of the hands of an emotionally disturbed person in his home that would not deprive hundreds of thousands of emotionally stable people of ownership?

Our contention is that regardless of the standards set on the ability to obtain a firearm, they would not have applied in this particular caxe and there would be no way they could be effective without depriving the law-abiding public to the fundamental right of ownership of private property.

Finally, we take exception to the oft-expressed thought that government will license fishermen or automobiles without licensing firearms. Fishing licenses, hunting licenses, vehicle registration and other similar acts are intended more to produce revenue than to control participation. Anyone can buy a fishing license or register an automobile; there is no restriction whatsoever. The purpose is to provide revenue in all cases.

"It must be assumed that a man carrying a shotgun along a busy street represents a danger to the community," the editorial writer states. Why must a danger be assumed? Because in Freeport, we presume, there is no reason for someone to be doing so. In Thief River Falls, however, it is an everyday occurrence and nobody thinks anything of it. The guns are cased because the law requires they be cased in a motor vehicle, but they are bought, sold, bartered, traded, borrowed, carried or transported without any problem.

In South Dakota, where shotguns may be carried loaded and uncased in motor vehicles, the sight of shotguns being carried or transported is so commonplace that to note a vehicle without one seems to be an exception. Our point is that what Freeport residents may think is good for Freeport may be ludicrous for Thief River Falls or South Dakota. National legislation, however, does not recognize those obvious differences.

We must remind the concerned writer in the Journal-Standard that the laws intended to keep firearms from the hands of the dangerous and the undesirable have already been passed. The fact that they are unenforceable is the bigger problem, and no amount of legislation will solve that without trampling the rights of millions who present no danger to the public.

Farm Price Stories Unfair

Following editorial is from "Agriculture Today":

Any day now, you're going to be reading — if you haven't already — headlines about farmers receiving record high prices for the goods they produce. The stories will, of course, go on to say how the prices consumers pay for their food items will be going up as a result.

It won't be at all fair, but then nobody ever said it was fair. If it was, there'd have been headlines for 34 of the 35 months saying that prices paid by farmers hit a new record high. But, you see, when something happens with that much regularity, it's hardly news.

The fact that the last time that prices paid by farmers fell off — and then less than one half of one per cent at that — was in August of last year. The time before that was June-August of 1977.

What we're saying is that except for August of last year, the prices farmers paid for their goods and services have either set a new record high or equalled one every month but once since August of 1977.

So, in effect, farmers shouldn't at all be defensive about the prices they receive being a record high. It's not only about time, it's something that's long overdue.

Some recent comparisons made by the department show that the price of diesel fuel has increased 150 per cent since 1975; that fertilizer prices have increased 13 per cent; combine prices have gone up 74 per cent. The price of hired labor has increased 49 per cent, feed prices have gone up 28 per cent and the price of hay balers has gone up 55 per cent. Overall, since 1975, prices that farmers pay for items have gone up an average of 54 per cent.

On the other hand, the prices farmers receive for their goods have gone up an average of 30 per cent in the past five years. That means they've lost a lot of ground in the past five years.

Asian Refugee Diet Can Be Healthful

by George E. Jordan
'U' News Service

Picture a community somewhere in the Twin Cities area gearing up to welcome a newly arrived family of southeast Asian refugees.

To honor their guests, the sponsoring family and neighbors plan a feast with all the American favorites: hamburgers, french fries, casseroles, soda pop, ice cream and rhubarb pie.

The guests finally arrive. None of the refugees speak English, but the language of a firm handshake and smile makes them feel welcome.

Then everyone sits around the dinner table to enjoy the meal. But the refugees cannot eat, for American food is too strange for them to stomach.

This scenario was a reality for many Indo-Chinese refugees and their sponsoring families in the Twin Cities area, according to a study by the University of Minnesota department of public health nutrition.

A major finding of the study, based on a survey of 350 refugees who resettled in the Twin Cities metro care in the last year, was that many newly arrived Indo-Chinese were confused in deciding what American foods to include in their diets.

"The hardest thing for them to get used to is shopping in a supermarket," said Patricia Splett, University of Minnesota professor of public health nutrition and director of the study.

Before resettling in the United States it was a common practice for southeast Asians either to barter for fresh foods in outdoor markets or to harvest crops in small farms, the study noted.

But it is difficult to avoid the grocery store in an urban setting like the Twin Cities. And the supermarket can be a confusing experience even for native Minnesotans.

According to the state Department of Public Welfare, about 14,600 southeast Asian refugees have resettled in Minnesota. At one time the state had the second-largest population of Indo-Chinese in the country. The department estimates that 3,500 refugees now live in the Twin Cities area.

All southeast Asians in the Twin Cities area who arrived in the last year came from Vietnam, Cambodia or Laos. Majority of refugees in the Twin Cities are of the Hmong tribe (pronounced MUNG) from the mountainous regions of Laos.

Study reveals that the traditional Hmong diet consists of meats low in saturated fats, fish and fish sauces boiled or stir-fried begetables and a wide variety of fruits. "Americans could learn something from them," Splett said, noting the low intake of calories. She said refugees contacted in the survey appeared healthy.

The study also found that most of the sponsoring families that volunteered to accept refugees in their homes knew little or nothing about southeast Asian food preferences. And sponsors were of little assistance in helping refugee families decide what American foods to eat.

A principal recommendation of the study was the sponsoring families be taught more about Indo-Chinese culture and, in particular, food preferences.

NCC, AVTI Host Financial Aid Workshop

Northland community college and the Thief River Falls AVTI will be hosting an area high school financial aid workshop on Tuesday (tomorrow) sponsored by the Minnesota Higher Education coordinating board. Persons who are invited to attend this workshop are area high school principals and counselors. During the noon luncheon the Minnesota Northwest counselors association will hold a short business session.

Purpose of the workshop is to assist persons who are counseling students planning post secondary education with up-to-date financial aid information for the 1981-82 school year.

Workshop will focus on the Minnesota State Scholarship and grant-in-aid application, the family financial statement and the student financial aid report. Other federal and state financial aid programs including the basic grant program will also be covered.

Hetteen Chairs MS Sno-Rally '81 Campaign

Edgar Hetteen of Thief River Falls, the father of snowmobiling, will serve as honorary chairman of the MS sno-rally '81 campaign, it was announced recently.

Hetteen designed, built and sold the first reliable forward engine snowmobile manufactured in the United States. He became a pioneer in the snowmobile industry, founding Polaris Industries and Arctic Enterprises. In 1960, Hetteen rode a Polaris Sno-Trailer, 1,200 miles across Alaska to prove the machine's durability in extreme conditions.

Hetteen brings this same creativity and determination to the fight against multiple sclerosis. He will spearhead a campaign that is expected to raise over $150,000 for MS this year. Last year, the event raised $95,000.

On January 30 and 31, Hetteen and his wife, Hannah, will lead the way in the MS winter carnival sno-rally, a 250-mile marathon ride from Duluth to St. Paul. The ride takes place in conjunction with the St. Paul winter carnival and has the approval of the Minnesota united snowmobilers association. Arctic Enterprises will provide sponsors for the ride. Every Minnesota snowmobiler is eligible to participate in the ride, but only the first 150 to secure $500 or more in pledges to MS will actually make the trip.

In addition to the winter carnival ride, MS is sponsoring a second sno-rally program, "Club Rally '81." In the club rally, snowmobile clubs from around the state will hold rides for their members to benefit MS. Each member secures pledges on a per mile basis for the length of the ride. Proceeds from these pledges are then received by the MS society.

Participants from both the winter carnival sno-rally and the club rally will be competing for prizes and awards in sno-rally '81. Every participant in the winter carnival sno-rally and two representatives of every club participating in the club rally will be invited to the December 14 Minnesota Viking-Cleveland Browns football game. Following the game will be the festive Viking kickoff banquet. Edgar Hetteen, as honorary chairman, will be the keynote speaker; Matt Blair of the Vikings will also speak.

For more information call the MS society at 870-1500 or (toll-free) 1-800-582-5296.

Flu, Pneumonia Season Around The Corner

Flu and pneumonia season is about to begin, and the Minnesota Lung-Christmas seal association advises protective action be taken now.

Minnesota lung association committee on chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), recommends, influenza immunization using trivalent vaccine for all individuals at increased risk of adverse consequences from infections of the lower respiratory tract. This "high risk" group includes those with chronic illnesses and older persons.

Most common of all pneumonias and the most common bacterial form is caused by a bacterium called the pneumococcus. An estimated 200,000 to 1,000,000 people suffer from pneumococcal pneumonia each year; about 65 per cent of them are hospitalized and many thousands die.

A vaccine highly effective against 80 per cent of the disease is now available. The COPD committee advises pneumococcal pneumonia vaccination for people who are at high risk of contracting pneumonia, especially older people, the sick and the chronically ill. People who are in nursing homes or other chronic-care facilities are particularly vulnerable, too, as are those recovering from surgery.

Free brochures — "Flu Facts" and "Pneumonia Facts" — are available by writing the Minnesota Lung Association, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102.

Inter-City Gas Will Not Raise Retail Rates

Inter-City Gas corporation announced today that the recent increase in the wholesale price of gas from Northern Natural gas company will not cause an increase in Inter-City's retail rates.

There are two reasons for this. The first is a reduction in the price of gas purchased from Great Lakes gas transmission company and the second is a reduction in the quantity of higher priced Canadian gas being purchased by Inter-City.

Increase in the price Inter-City must pay Northern for gas is the result of a general rate increase filed by Northern several months ago to become effective on October 27.

Decrease in the price Inter-City must pay Great Lakes for gas is attributable primarily to a reduction in the compressor fuel used during a recent period of time as compared with the period used to establish current rate levels.

"Inter-City serves 39 communities in northern Minnesota with natural gas purchased from four pipeline suppliers," according to Fred Little, vice president and general manager of Inter-City. "Several of these communities receive gas from more than one supplier. For this reason, the cost of gas from all suppliers is 'rolled in' to produce an average cost."

"Inter-City's domestic supplier of gas is gradually replacing gas under old contracts with reserves of new higher-priced gas," according to Little, "These higher prices established under the Natural Gas policy act have encouraged gas exploration, and has permitted our domestic supplier to significantly improve its supply situation. This, in turn, permits Inter-City to decrease its purchases of high priced Canadian gas, thereby reducing our average cost of gas."

This past week Northern has also announced a purchased gas adjustment increase in its wholesale rates to be effective December 27. Should this increase be approved by the federal energy regulatory commission it will result in an increase of five per cent to Inter-City's rates effective January 1, 1981. This will increase the average residential customer's gas bill by approximately $30 per year.

There has been a great deal of speculation as to whether or not there will be in increase in the price of imported gas from Canada in the near future. Under a recent agreement between the U.S. and Canadian governments, Canada has agreed to give 75 days notice prior to the effective date of such increase.

Because U.S. buyers of Canadian gas have reacted to the high price of this gas by reducing purchases, Canada has elected not to impose further increases as provided for in this recent agreement. Any opinion as to actions by the Canadian government to either increase or discount the price of gas in the next few months is speculative according to Little. Little adds, "Any increase in the Canadian border price at this time will further depress the demand for Canadian gas."

Honor Steigers At Harvest Bowl

Douglass and Maurice Steiger, designers of the tractor that bears their name were among 10 outstanding individuals honored at North Dakota state university's harvest bowl in Fargo November 1 for their contributions to the agricultural equipment industry.

Honorees were guests of the university at the NDSU-University of South Dakota football game and a luncheon before the game and took part in other Harvest Bowl activities, according to the NDSU news department.

Like others honored at Harvest Bowl, the two brothers weren't satisfied with the way things were at one time and proceeded to do something about it. In the process of solving the need for a four-wheel drive tractor with more horsepower and yet efficient, the Steigers began what has become one of the most successful manufacturing sagas in the Red River valley.

The Steiger operation, from the early 1960's to the present, has evolved from "building a tractor for a few neighbors" from used parts to a worldwide company. In the continents of both Americas, Europe, Africa and Australia, Steiger tractors continue to aid farmers, growing into something far beyond any conception the brothers had when they began.

The Steiger corporation was formed in 1969 and moved to Fargo. With the coming of the decade of the 70's, both the Steiger brothers and their company underwent a series of changes. Maurice and Douglass disengaged themselves from tractor production and expanded their interest to other pieces of agricultural machinery.

In 1970-71, the brothers and others founded Hydra-Mac, Inc., a skid-steer loader manufacturing business in Thief River Falls. Douglass also became involved in founding Toreq, Inc., a Thief River Falls manufacturer of large agricultural scrapers and backhoes.

Despite their expanding interests, the two brothers, keep an active interest in their original company. Douglass is a member of the Steiger's board of directors and Maurice maintains active stock in the organization.

While the Steigers say they are no longer in the "inventing game", their original product continues to prove its worth to the American agricultural community.

Fire Fatalities Reduced In Mobile Homes

Minnesotans living in mobile homes should be aware of the unique fire hazards in them, according to Public Safety Commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Studies have shown that mobile homes burn quicker and that escape from them is more difficult.

Since June 15, 1976, when the federal mobile home construction and safety standard act took effect, requirements for mobile home fire safety have become more stringent.

These regulations have apparently helped reduce the number of fire fatalities. A California study, for instance, shows that reported fire incidents in mobile homes were reduced by one third after June 15, 1976.

In Minnesota there were six deaths in mobile home fires in 1978, 17 in 1979 and three so far this year. State Fire Marshal Wes Werner believes the situation is improving with more awareness. Average property loss rose from $6,750 in 1978, to $9,127 in 1979. That, Werner said, is less than the national average. Same is true of mobile home fire deaths in the state.

Although actual fire loss in terms of dollars is up, the increase is more attributable to inflation than to increase in fires, Werner said. Last year mobile home fire loss in Minnesota was estimated at $1,752,481. Estimate for one and two-family dwellings was $25,653,711.

The state fire marshal's office strongly recommends that if they do not have smoke detectors, mobile home models of pre-June 1976, be retrofitted with them.

Werner also reminds residents that the highest occupant fire risk is between midnight and 6 a.m., another good reason for smoke detector protection.

Torgerson To Head Regional Heart Fund

David E. Torgerson, Clinton, has been named 1981 northwest regional heart fund chairman for the American Heart association, Minnesota Affiliate, Inc., according to Peggy Atmore Mason, 1981 state heart fund chairman.

"Torgerson will direct fund-raising activities for the 1981 heart fund campaign in 11 counties in northwest Minnesota," Mason said. "These activities include special events, special gifts, residential and business campaigns."

Funds obtained are used to finance Minnesota affiliate programs in heart research, public and professional education and community services.

Torgerson has been a heart association volunteer for over seven years, serving as Big Stone county chairman, district chairman and 1980 northwest regional chairman. He also is a member of the Minnesota affiliate public relations and public information committee.

"The American Heart association has helped to bring about a 24.1 per cent reduction in the heart disease death rate in the last 10 years," Torgerson said.

The American Heart association, Minnesota Affiliate, Inc., is a statewide health agency and is part of the American Heart association which is represented by 55 affiliates in all states and territories of the U.S. It is the only statewide voluntary health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases, Torgerson added.

Voluntary leadership comes from medical, paramedical and other professional groups, and from business and lay persons throughout the state.

SOMETHING NEEDED IS COMING

TAKING CARE not to get the wet plaster bandages into his partner's eyes, Brian Joppru, a fifth grade student from Peter Tri's class at Northrop elementary school, carefully molds his partner's mask for Halloween. Waiting to see the likeness of himself is Mike Rehm.

WAITING PATIENTLY for his mask to dry, is Jason Haugen, a student in Peter Tri's fifth grade class at Northrop elementary school in Thief River Falls. Each mask is created using strips of plaster bandages dipped into a bowl of warm water then folded and applied to the face and carefully smoothed out. Examining his nearly finished product is Tony Quevedo.

"THAT'S ME!" was the final result of masks created by Peter Tri's fifth grade class at Northrop elementary school in Thief River Falls this week. The masks, created out of plaster bandages, will be used after Halloween to create a mold of each student's face. Picture is Nancy Jorde.

Many Ordinary Expenses Are Tax Deductible

Did you know that if you have so many investments that you need to hire a bookkeeper or secretary to keep track of them all, you can deduct that person's salary from your federal income tax?

You may not have to worry about that tax deduction yet. Nevertheless, the Minnesota society of CPAs suggests that you keep complete records. Many ordinary expenses in making investments are tax deductible.

If you invest in a mutual fund the fee you pay for custodial services — collecting and reinvesting dividends, keeping records and holding shares — is deductible.

If you buy stocks on the margin — that is, you borrow part of the cost from the broker — then deduct the interest you pay from that loan.

To be a savvy investor, keep abreast of financial events and don't forget to deduct the cost of subscriptions to investment services and periodicals.

Deduct any travel expenses that take you away from home to look after your investments, or to talk with CPAs, attorneys, trustees or investment counsel.

Deduct the rental fee for the safe deposit box in which you keep your stocks and bonds and other investment papers.

Many legal costs are tax-deductible, but it is best to consult with your tax advisor about these. It may be possible to deduct the legal costs of suing a stock broker, for instance, if he lost all your money.

Deduct the fees you pay your CPA for services such as tax preparation and investment record keeping. You may also deduct the CPA's fee for general tax advice if you can show that the fee relates to the production of investment income or management of income-producing property.

The fee you pay your stock broker is not tax-deductible. However, it is included in any gain or loss when you sell the stock. For instance, if you buy $1,000 worth of stock and pay a broker's fee of $100, you can't deduct the $100 as an investment expense. But if you sell the stock later for only $700, then you calculate your loss as $400 because you include the broker's fee. By the way, the fee you pay an investment counselor is tax-deductible.

As you invest more of your money, you will become aware of many more tax deductions. For instance, a state transfer tax paid on the sale of stock is deductible. So are certain dividends paid on short sales, trustee commissions, and purchased accrued bond interest.

Generally, tax deductible investment expenses evolve from three areas: Expenses in producting and collecting income; managing and maintaining property which does or will produce income and determining your tax on these investments.

So keep track of your expenses. You'll earn more from your investments if you take full advantage of tax breaks that go with them.

Solar Energy Discussed At Crookston Meet

A group of solar enthusiasts who met October 14 at the University of Minnesota's Northwest experiment station at Crookston viewed a solar presentation by Gene Miller, president of the new Northern Tier Solar Energy society.

Miller spoke on the long history of solar use and showed pictures of successful collectors and engines going back to the 1800's. Glenn Houske, treasurer of the society, spoke of the group's plans and possible accomplishments in the setting of an energy short society.

Minnesota energy agency provided a movie which depicted solar projects around the nation, some specifically designed to help low income groups with their energy problems.

In a wrap up review of questions and comment on the new solar society, Miller noted that solar means a lot of things in regard to forms of energy. "Solar is really also wind, biomass burning, photo voltaic and all the energy that those techniques can provide. In this time and place, with only a thin line of oil tankers keeping us warm and moving, we have a civic responsibility to be interested in and to promote solar energy."

The society will meet again Thursday, November 13, at the agricultural research center of the Northwest experiment station at 7:30 p.m. for charter ratification and for a solar panel construction presentation by Lloyd Eisert, and Ed Amiot, Crookston builders. This will be another open meeting, but the society expects later that only society members will attend.

A HUGE HOLE opened up for Bismarck runningback Dave Cleveland, who stepped into the end zone for a two-yard touchdown run that gave the Mystics a 17-0 lead over Northland with 1:57 remaining in the first half of Saturday's nonconference college football game played on the Thief River Falls athletic field. Duane Kjono (45), Todd Tangen (72) and Kelly Turgeon (77) of the Northmen were effectively taken out of the play that capped a six-play, 46-yard Bismarck touchdown drive. The Mystics beat the Northmen 31-17. Northland, now 1-6-1, ends its 1980 season Saturday at Golden Valley Lutheran.

Bismarck Ground Game Beats Northland Passing Attack Saturday For 31-17 Win

A dormant Northland community college offense, which hadn't produced a touchdown in five weeks, finally showed signs of coming to life Saturday, but the team's publicized defense did not match its past success and the Northmen wound up losing a 31-17 nonconference football game to Bismarck junior college on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

It was far from an awesome offensive display by the Northmen, but beggars can't be chosers. Northland's passing attack proved effective, with quarterbacks Howard Beito and Jeff Westberg combining on a 14-for-30 afternoon for 193 yards. Beito, who is supposed to be Northland's non-passing wishbone quarterback, did most of the work by completing 12 of 23 passes for 155 yards and a touchdown. He also scored a touchdown himself to end the prolonged Northland touchdown drought.

However, it was a one-dimensional attack. Northland's ground game was all but abandoned as the Northmen lost 47 yards on just 24 rushing attempts. And six of those "carries" were actually quarterback sacks resulting in a minus-72 yards. That means the Northmen tried only 18 running plays.

Bismarck, on the other hand, ran the ball 68 times. And quite effectively, gaining 348 yards — one of the highest figures of the year against a Northland defense that had gained plenty of respect and recognition in the MJCAA Northern Division. But the Mystics play in the four-year North Dakota College Athletic Conference (NDCAC), and their polished attack handled Northland's defense.

Steve Maher, a hard-running 5-9, 175-pounder from Bismarck St. Mary's, led the Mystics' ground assault with 168 yards on 23 carries, a 7.3-yard average. Backfield mate Kori Martin contributed 119 yards on 25 carries. Bismarck averaged 5.1 yards every time the Mystics carried the ball; a fact not lost upon coach Leo Ringey, who had quarterback Jim Evans throw just five passes all afternoon.

And Northland's offense contributed to Bismarck's success by committing six turnovers — losing two of five fumbles and throwing four interceptions.

It was a 33-yard interception return for a touchdown of a Westberg pass by defensive back Steve Chuppe that finally sealed the decision with 1:31 remaining in the game. Ron Altenburg, who was 4-for-4 in the conversion department and kicked a 31-yard field goal, added the placement kick for the 31-17 final.

Until then it had been a gutty effort by the Northmen, who trailed 17-3 at halftime.

Limited to a mere eight yards and one first down in the first half, the Northland offense finally produced some points at the start of the third quarter following a fumble recovery by Mike Busse at the Bismarck 31. Lyndell Knight went up in a crowd to pull down an 11-yard first down pass from Beito at the 20, and Beito reached the end zone on a quarterback keeper out of the shotgun. He rolled to his right, made a nice cut near the sidelines and leaped over three defenders at the goal line for Northland's first touchdown since a 21-12 victory over Mesabi here back on Sept. 20. Jeff Gobell's conversion kick pulled Northland within 17-10 with just 2:35 elapsed in the second half.

That's the way the third quarter ended, but it shouldn't have. Beito laid a perfectly-thrown 52-yard bomb into the hands of Darryl Robinson for a first-and-goal at the Bismarck 8-yard line in the final minute of the period. Robinson was just tripped up by the defensive back on the play; a situation that proved decisive. A quarterback sneak by Beito took the ball to the five and a fullback dive by Rick Olson inched it to the four. But on a third down pass play, Beito was sacked for a 13-yard loss, fumbled and Bismarck came up with the ball at the Mystics' 17.

Seven plays later Maher broke a simple dive to the outside and sprinted 45 yards for a touchdown and a 24-10 cushion with 12:27 remaining in the game.

Still, Northland battled back gamely, with Beito and Robinson teamming up for a nifty 35-yard touchdown pass. The long pass was underthrown, but Robinson came back for the ball and came down with it in a crowd in the end zone. Gobell added the kick for a suddenly-close 24-17 game with 5:55 still to play.

But two Northland interceptions in the final three minutes ended it.

"Everything considered, I'm very pleased with the way they played," said Northland coach John Helley of his 1-6-1 Northmen. "I think for losing this many ball games the team spirit is really good; there are no complaints, no give-up attitude. They don't quit. They don't give up."

Scoring started Saturday when Martin capped a nine-play, 67-yard Bismarck march with a five-yard touchdown run 3:06 into the second quarter. Martin, who had trouble finding the handle on a pitch-out, looked like he was going to be mailed for a loss on third down. But he fumbled the ball ahead (to some it looked intentional), and then sprinted to fall on the pigskin before it bounced out of the back of the end zone.

Altenburg's field goal with 6:31 remaining in the first half made it 10-0, and Dave Cleveland's two-yard touchdown dive through a huge hole on the right side increased the margin to a seemingly safe 17-0 lead with 1:57 left in the first half.

But a fine 56-yard kickoff return by Coby Burslie that was aided further by a 15-yard Bismarck penalty for a facemask call set up a 29-yard Gobell field with 57 seconds left.

Northland will finish its 1980 season Saturday in the Twin Cities where they'll play Northern Division leader Golden Valley Lutheran.

Area teams Crookston, Mahnomen and McIntosh-Winger all reached the semifinal rounds of the 1980 Minnesota State High School League state football playoffs with weekend victories.

Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston advanced in Class A competition with a 19-8 victory over Park Rapids Saturday afternoon when quarterback Brian Bachmeier passed for one touchdown and ran for another. The Panthers bottled up the Pirates' vaunted running game, but Bachmeier hit four of five passes for 90 yards, including a 34-yard touchdown toss to Steve Johnson, who was held to just 43 yards on 11 carries. Earlier in the week he rushed for 213 yards in a first-round 42-0 rout of Hermantown.

Region 8AA Volleyball Tournament . . .

Moorhead, Sauk Rapids Meet For Volleyball Title

Moorhead and Sauk Rapids will meet Saturday at Moorhead in the state tournament-qualifying championship match of the 1980 Region 8AA high school volleyball tournament.

The Spuds, going for their third straight state tournament trip, emerged as the North Half Region 8AA tournament representative by beating Park Rapids 18-9, 18-12 Saturday night. Meanwhile, the Indians surprised top-ranked St. Cloud Apollo 18-7, 18-6 to win the South Half Region 8AA event.

Saturday's winner will advance to the 1980 Class AA Minnesota state high school volleyball tournament November 14-15 at Met Center in Bloomington.

Thief River Falls opened post-season play Thursday with an 18-16, 18-7 victory over Detroit Lakes, but Moorhead eliminated the game Prowlers 18-14, 19-17 in the North Half Region 8AA semifinals.

"I was not impressed with our play against Detroit Lakes," admitted Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "We didn't play a good game; we were flat."

However, the Prowlers put together a strong effort against Moorhead Saturday. "It was touch-and-go all the way," reported Stauss. "My kids played very well and Moorhead was having problems. We worked our tails off — we just came up a little bit short."

Thief River Falls, in dropping that first game to Moorhead 18-14, had nine serves either hit the net or go out of play. In the second game the Prowlers rallied for a 17-17 tie, but lost service and Moorhead won it in overtime.

"The kids really played hard," added Stauss. "It's disappointing to lose a close match like that, but I think I'd rather go out this way; you can live with yourself."

"My kids played the best ball in the entire tournament," said Stauss of the Prowlers' efforts against a Moorhead team they have never beaten.

Thief River Falls finished the year with a 9-9 overall record.

Possible MSHSL Changes Bring Group Response

Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association (MAHA) has gone on record as opposed to any change in the present number of games being played by Minnesota high schools or any change in the length of the high school season. The MAHA Board of Directors voted unanimously to support a continuation of the high school hockey season and game limitation in their present format and number at their fall meeting in Eveleth.

Newly-elected MAHA president Ted Brill of Grand Rapids said: "MAHA feels strongly that the present high school program is the breeding ground for the tremendous successes enjoyed by such teams as the 1980 Gold Medal United States Olympic team. The high schools are also a major developmental level of competition for student athletes who might not otherwise be able to pursue further educational goals at the college level."

"Any change to reduce the length of season or number of games would adversely affect the student-athlete's development and may place Minnesota high school athletes at a disadvantage for scholarship opportunities," continued Brill.

Brill noted that MAHA has no jurisdiction over actions of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) and emphasized that MAHA is not attempting to intrude into what he called "a fine program." The MAHA is the group responsible for developing high school players during their formative years and wishes to support their continued development at the high school level.

Brill indicated Minnesota has one of the largest youth hockey programs in the nation which in turn feeds directly into the largest and finest high school hockey program in the country. "Hockey is Minnesota's native sport," said Brill. "Every effort should be made to enhance its growth."

MAHA's directors took their extraordinary vote in the face of a Minnesota MSHL Adhoc committee report which called for reductions in the number of high school athletic events, and a cut in the season length among a number of "cost-saving measures for the 1981-82 school year." The board of directors of the MSHL is currently studying the committee report and is expected to make recommendations to the MSHL representative assembly in early November.

Meanwhile the area Polar Conference coaches association, meeting at Warren, agreed that "we are aware of the ever increasing problems involving energy conservation and the financial pinch in our school systems."

"After looking at the different options which have been presented by the Minnesota State High School League, it was recommended by our coaches group to accept option 4A as the proposal most suitable," said the conference report.

"We have made an attempt to become more cognizant of increasing costs in all activities. Therefore our group suggested last spring to have both the boys and girls basketball tournaments held at three different sites instead of one site on the first night. This will make for less travel, bigger gates and more interest. The district committee accepted this proposal as a way of cutting costs and actually creating more revenue," the report indicated.

Option 4A in the four-part MSHSL proposal calls for establishing a maximum number of contests which may be scheduled on a limited number of playing dates, with basketball being limited to 18 games, but just 16 playing dates; football 9 games on 9 dates; wrestling 15 matches on 13 dates; hockey 20 games on 18 dates, etc.

The other options range from no established limit to the number of contests to varying numbers of maximum contests and playing dates.

Trainers May Be Regulated

Possibility of regulating athletic trainers in Minnesota will be discussed at a meeting set for Monday, Dec. 8, at the state health department building in Minneapolis. The meeting is open to the public.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in room 105 of the health department building, which is located at 717 Delaware St. S.E.

NORTHLAND LINEBACKER Paul Kiecker (33) came up to stop Bismarck runningback Dave Cleveland after a six-yard gain in the second quarter of Saturday's college football game played here. Cleveland ran past Jeff Reese (74) of the Northmen on the play, while defensive back Jim McCue (16) looked on. The Mystics beat the Northmen 31-17.

Sportsmen Aid FWS Programs

Minnesota sportsmen are blessed with an abundance and great diversity of hunting and fishing opportunities. But each year population increases along with various human encroachments place added pressures on the state's fish and wildlife resources.

These pressures are partially offset by management programs designed to enhance and perpetuate fish and wildlife populations — programs that require substantial sums of money. And where does the money come from? To a large measure from the sportsmen themselves.

First, there's the obvious, direct source of revenue from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses. Another, lesser known source of revenue for fish and wildlife management is derived from federal excise taxes on hunting and fishing equipment. They include an 11 per cent tax on sporting arms and ammunition, a 10 per cent tax on pistols and revolvers, an 11 per cent tax on certain archery equipment and a 10 per cent tax on fishing rods, reels, creels and artificial baits, lures and flies.

Through these federal excise taxes Minnesota received nearly $3.5 million last year — $2,108,636 for wildlife restoration; $1,049,137 for fish restoration; and $305,248 for hunter education. Nationally the amount came to $117 million — $77.7 million for wildlife restoration, $28.0 million for fish restoration, and $11.3 million for hunter education programs.

As the excise taxes are collected they are deposited in a special fund in the United States Treasury. Twice a year these special, earmarked funds are apportioned by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's federal aid program to each state according to a formula based on the size of the state and the number of paid hunting and fishing license holders in each state.

Federal aid program contributes up to 75 per cent of the total cost of approved state projects in fish and wildlife restoration, planning and hunter education. These projects are carried out through the cooperative efforts of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service and state fish and wildlife agencies (in Minnesota, the Department of Natural Resources).

A few highlights of fish and wildlife support and restoration projects currently being funded by the Federal Aid program in Minnesota are:

Wildlife land acquisition. Minnesota uses a substantial percentage of its federal aid money for the purchase of wetlands. Last year the state purchased some $2 million worth of these lands, $1.5 million of which was furnished by federal aid. The availability of wetlands is critical to the survival of the state's breeding waterfowl population, as feeding and resting areas for migrating waterfowl, and for other wildlife species such as furbearers, song birds, etc. Most of the state's original wetland acreage of high wildlife value has been drained and converted to cropland. Preserving the remaining wetlands and adjacent uplands for nesting habitat is considered by conservationists to be of prime importance. In some cases lands are purchased and preserved as habitat for species that are of special concern to states, such as Minnesota's prairie chickens.

Hunter education. In Minnesota hunter education is mandatory for hunters under 16 years of age, and is considered essential to the perpetuation of safe, lawful and ethical hunting. The training is provided to about 25,000 young hunters a year by 3,500 volunteer instructors. This project includes funding for long-term investment in shooting clubs for the construction of classrooms and expanded shooting facilities considered necessary for the safe handling of firearms. The program entails the purchase and distribution of printed training materials, training aids such as films and slide presentations, leasing ranges, salaries for full-time coordinators, etc. Last year this cost was $283,000; federal aid provided $212,000.

Fisheries research. This category of research funded in part by federal aid consists of a variety of projects aimed at perpetuating and improving sport fishing in Minnesota. The work covers such projects as studies of how continuous fishing on the Mississippi River affects walleye and sauger populations; new, more productive methods of incubating walleye eggs; evaluating the use of flathead catfish as a predator to thin out over-populations of panfish in certain lakes; how spring water levels affect northern and walleye pike populations; evaluating smelt as forage for inland water lake trout; testing Madison, Kamloops and Donaldson strains of rainbow trout in Lake Superior; evaluating chinook slamon as sport fish in Lake Superior; study of brown trout reproduction in southeastern streams; testing the possibility of Atlantic salmon becoming a sport fish in certain Minnesota lakes; testing various aeration techniques to prevent fish winter kills.

This research costs about $320,000 a year, roughly half of which comes from Federal Aid.

Surveys and inventories. Many Minnesota fishermen use depth, or contour maps of their favorite lakes. These maps are produced as part of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources survey and inventory program. The program also includes surveys of fish populations in lakes and rivers; creel censuses, and other projects to support fisheries management. Some $700,000 is spent annually on this category of fish and wildlife management, 75 per cent of which is supplied by federal aid.

Access acquisition. As the demand for land increases, access to public waters becomes an increasing problem. Federal aid is used by the state to acquire access sites to trout streams for fishermen and for state crews in carrying out stocking and stream improvement projects such as fencing to keep livestock out of the streams, etc. Some access acquisitions are to protect northern pike spawning areas on lakes, and some are solely for the benefit of hunters and fishermen. Federal aid pays 50 per cent of the $400,000 spent yearly for trout stream and northern pike spawning acquisitions, $12,000 of the $16,000 spent on hunter accesses, and $150,000 of the $200,000 spent each year for fisherman accesses.

Federal aid funds are also used for lake and stream improvements throughout Minnesota, for construction of new facilities such as the $1.6 million fish hatchery on the French River north of Duluth, and for building fish passages over stream barriers to facilitate steelhead spawning in North Shore streams.

Wildlife development. These funds are also used for managing wildlife lands to keep the desired mix of stages of plant succession, and for other wildlife projects such as cuttings in forests to help ruffed grouse, dug-outs in lowlands to help waterfowl and shorebirds and establishing logging trails for use by commercial pulp cutters, hunters and hikers. The trails are seeded to clover to benefit the forest wildlife and to keep the trails open.

Water levels are altered in man-made impoundments to improve the aquatic vegetation. Nesting cover is planted and renovated to keep

Franklin Pupils Show Strong In Basic Skill Test

Seventh and eighth grade students at Franklin middle school showed dramatic improvement in all areas of basic skills, according to James Fremstad, counselor at the school.

The Iowa test of basic skills indicates that the Franklin sixth grade exceeds the scores of 71 per cent of the sixth grades tested throughout the nation. Seventh graders exceed 66 per cent of other seventh grade groups tested and eighth graders exceed 72 per cent of other eighth grades in the group on which the test was initially normed, Fremstad said.

Of even greater significance was the improvement of each group when compared to scores from 1979, he added. The sixth grade at 57 per cent in 1979 advanced to 66 per cent as seventh graders while the seventh grade at 59 per cent in 1979 advanced to 72 per cent as eighth graders.

It should be noted that seventh graders improved nine per cent over their sixth grade scores on the 1979 testing and eighth graders improved 13 per cent, the counselor said.

Comparing grade equivalent data between 1979 and 1980 showed the sixth grade's 6.31 grade equivalent in 1979 went to 7.47 in 1980 and the seventh grade's 7.33 grade equivalent in 1979 went to 8.74 in 1980.

"Therefore, sixth graders gained 1.36 years of growth during the 1979-80 school year and seventh graders gained 1.41 years of growth during the 1979-80 year as measured in September of this year," Fremstad said.

"The only cautionary note," stated Fremstad, "is that we used a different edition of the Iowa Basics which has scores based on more recent data. Therefore, it may be unfair to compare one year to the next. Nevertheless, we scored very well compared to other districts, on whom the test norms were based, with our eighth graders being nearly as well prepared as the average ninth grader in the United States.

"It should also be pointed out that the middle school concept of involving students in art, home economics, shop, music and physical education appears not to have hurt our performance in the basic skills areas," Dr. Milton Hoff, Franklin principal, pointed out, "and the desirability of keeping programs such as these available to sixth graders is widely supported by parents, teachers and students. We feel we now have additional data to show that students thrive in this program."

Strengths were shown in using work-study skills which require students to use reference and visual material to solve problems. Other high scoring areas included math computation and problem solving and concepts where students went from doing better than 53 per cent in 1979 to doing better than 75 per cent in 1980. Language arts scores grew between 1.25 and 1.49 grades in one year, and reading scores grew from 1.1 to 1.25 grades per year. In no area did the Franklin sixth, seventh and eighth grades score below the 50th percentile when compared with other sixth, seventh and eighth grade classes in the national norm sample.

Don't Confuse Wilt For Dutch Elm Disease

If elm trees in your area are showing signs of wilt, don't jump to the conclusion that they have Dutch elm disease. Other ailments can cause wilting which sometimes resembles Dutch elm disease.

Clusters of yellow leaves that appear on the ends of some elm twigs are most often caused by prolonged drought. The symptoms are usually confined to the affected twig. There is no discoloration of the wood under the bark, a clear distinction from Dutch elm disease, which causes staining under the bark.

Another ailment which more closely resembles Dutch elm disease, but is not nearly as dangerous, is native elm wilt. Symptoms of native elm wilt include wilting, yellowing, curling, and browning of the leaves on the tips of twigs. Wilting twigs usually appear scattered throughout the crown and in larger numbers than usually found in trees infected by Dutch elm disease carrier beetles. (In the early stages of Dutch elm disease only one or two branches are affected.) A dark brown to reddish-brown discolored band of wood is usually found under the bark of wilting twigs. This discolored band differs from the brown streaks usually associated with Dutch elm disease.

Native elm wilt is not new to Minnesota. It is native to the United States and was known before Dutch elm disease was introduced here. However, because it does not kill large numbers of trees, it has been of secondary importance, compared to Dutch elm disease. Now that inspection for Dutch elm disease is more thorough and communities have adopted good sanitation programs for Dutch elm disease control, tree inspectors can start paying attention to native elm wilt.

Number of trees affected by native elm wilt varies throughout the state. Areas with poor soil conditions and trees under stress show larger percentages of native elm wilt than areas with vigorous, healthy trees. The fluffy, gray fungus that has been consistently associated with native elm wilt symptoms has been identified as Dothiorella ulmi. This fungus enters the tree's vascular system through wounds and forms fruiting structures on the bark of dead or dying twigs. Spores produced in these pimple-like structures are spread by wind, rain, or insects. Fungus moves down the twig slowly; therefore, control of native elm wilt can be achieved by pruning out the infected portion of the branch at least a foot below the end of the vascular discoloration. If large branches have been affected and the tree has been severely weakened, it should be removed because it can provide breeding areas for elm bark beetles, which transmit Dutch elm disease. Fertilization of the tree is also recommended to increase the vigor and help the tree recover from mild infections.

Study Before Investing In Land, Say CPAs

Owning undeveloped land could bring you satisfaction, security and profit several years down the road, or it could leave you with less money in your pocket. Keep in mind that your money will be tied up when you buy land, as real estate is not very liquid (not easily converted to cash).

Don't assume that all land will appreciate. How much a piece of land is worth depends upon many factors, and an important one is how suitable the land is for commercial development. Is it located in the path of future development? How much you profit from your land will depend primarily on how a buyer can use the land. Raw land located in exurban areas (beyond the suburbs but still accessible to the city) and urban areas generally carry a higher rate of risk than land located in suburban areas.

Before you consider investing in land, says the Minnesota Society of CPAs, do some thorough research. Consider the costs involved, including a cash down payment; mortgage payments; property taxes; maintenance costs; a realtor's commission when you sell, and the tax aspects. Start looking for land where you live or vacation, where you're most familiar with property values and real estate development.

Investing in land, CPAs say, often requires a greater initial cash outlay than other types of investments. Other expenses are also involved, such as property taxes and interest on the mortgage you assume to buy the land. Consider the effect of these deductions on your federal income tax return.

A good way to get high returns and leverage from a real estate investment, say CPAs, is to pay as little as possible with your own resources and as much as possible with borrowed money. For example, if you buy five acres at $30,000, you may contribute $10,000 cash and a $20,000 mortgage. Should you be able to sell the property for $50,000, you would have $30,000 remaining after repaying the mortgage. Subtracting the $10,000 in cash you paid originally, your pretax profit would be $20,000.

Tax benefits are a major consideration with any investment, and CPAs remind you that investing in raw land is not considered to be a tax shelter. The advantage to owning land is that profits on the sale are treated as capital gains. If the property is held for one year or less, the gain is considered to be short-term and is fully taxed as ordinary income. But if you own the land for more than one year, the gain is long-term. Then, only 40 per cent of any gain from the sale is taxable.
